

CLEARING HOUSE

Not Boasting, But The Kernel's anti-syllabus war is well on its way towards being a success.

Continuing From last issue, Clearing House is printing a list of pamphlets on syphilis obtained from a pamphlet issued by the state department of health of Kentucky.

Methods of Transmission Syphilis is transmitted from a diseased person to a well person by direct contact.

The first manifestation of syphilis usually appears at the point where the germ entered the body.

Some Suggestions Comes a letter from T. B. C. offering some criticisms and suggestions.

On Columnists "First, I think that there are too many mediocre columnists."

Intramurals "Second, why is not more emphasis placed on intramurals?"

On Other Contributors "Third, why do not the editors waste so much space on letters from such a wide variety of sources?"

Panning Pep Rallies "Fourth, why not start a campaign to hold better pep rallies."

Clearing House is what its name implies—old student opinion clears through it.

Independent I'm an ardent supporter of The Kernel and think it merits the publication.

Cheer Leaders Again Two more initial correspondents wrote us why we can't have more cheerleaders.

A Liberal Education Is Essential To Leadership

At the opening of the 185th academic year at Columbia University, Dr. Henry J. Carman, of the department of history, made an address which was of unusual interest and importance. He dealt with the subject of a liberal education, and pointed out four major imperfections which today are undermining educational theory and practice, and which tend actually to crowd out the liberal arts.

These he listed as the widespread introduction of vocational courses supposed to supply the immediate needs of students who must face the competitive struggle and make a living; the too rapid growth of specialization; too great an emphasis upon the immediate present and neglect of the past; and the failure to develop men of genuine wisdom and strong leadership.

With respect to leadership, for example, Dr. Carman said that the liberal arts courses should be stressed because "wise leadership in public affairs and, indeed, in all walks of life, comes not from those who have followed only narrow specialties, but from those who are broadly grounded."

Mr. Chamberlain, the British premier, in his brief but noble speech which recently was broadcast to the world in a great crisis, illustrated the truth of this. It was unimpassioned, clear, incisive, moving upon a high plane of reason and morality, and reflected his long training, his scholarship, and his historical and philosophical background. Millions of Americans compared it with the harangue in which Chancellor Hitler a short time before had indulged, full of demagoguery, malice, and vituperation and delivered in a manner to arouse the worst instincts: a passions of the crowd.

"Vocationally, we are the wonder of the world," said Dr. Carman, "but in other realms where circumstances demand high character, the attitudes of objectivity, calmness, patience, tact, broad sympathies, depth of understanding and insight into the springs of human action, we have been much less successful. America has a plenitude of technicians. It needs more and wiser pilots."

There are five disciplines which are recommended as essential to the proper equipment of a people, all to be gained primarily from the liberal arts. These are precision, appreciation, toleration, reflection, and constructive imagination. "The discipline of appreciation should be the gateway to the realm of the emotions, and poetry, music, and the fine arts rather than stenography, office filing, and shop practice."

Dr. Butler, president of Columbia, recently remarked that a liberal education "is sufficiently broad to serve as the foundation for every form of vocational training." Such a training is a necessary foundation for specialization but should never be confused with it, nor should vocational training ever be made a substitute for it. —Lexington Herald-Leader.

Take Your Time And Spell It Correctly

Carelessly spelled words are becoming more and more noticeable in campus life each year. There are some persons who cannot spell, but the large majority could if they would take the time to learn.

Although spelling is taught in freshman English classes, there is no real incentive for the student to master the art. The student of French, Spanish, or German is graded down seriously if he does not spell the words correctly; yet that same student may misspell twenty percent of the words in his written papers in classes where term papers are required and the grade will not be affected.

Students do not confine their poor spelling to themes, since evidences of it are apparent in posters, bulletins, and letters. During the recent Senior Class election a handbill, printed and sponsored by seniors, carried the phrase "Don't be Mised" when it meant "Don't be Mised." Another recent example was the cardboard sign put out by Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, which offered to sell "boutennaires" when it evidently meant "boutennieres."

There are many persons in Lexington to whom errors of this kind stand out. These persons see the signs, know they come from the University, and marvel at the ignorance of the younger generation.

Let's be more careful of our spelling and help maintain the good reputation of our campus. —S. M. R.

Yankee Doodles

By BILL COSTEL and ALLENBY WINER

JEFF Wolpert met us on the campus the other day, a mischievous gleam in his eye. He resembled a tired scientist who had been experimenting for years on the validity of the red corpuscles, and at last had succeeded. Under his arm was a volume of poetry by Gertrude Stein. He raved about Ger Stein.

"If ever there was a genius, it is Gertrude Stein," he said. That statement interested us. We are scholars at times. So we went to the Browning room at the library and picked up one of her books. Maybe we picked out the wrong poem to read, but the first one we saw was this Valentine poem. We read no further. We were convinced that Gertrude Stein is a genius.

A VERY VALENTINE
Very fine is my valentine.
Very fine and very mine.
Very mine is my valentine very mine and very fine.
Very fine is my valentine and mine very fine very mine and mine is my valentine.

Dolly Madison is getting on our nerves. Last month to celebrate the opening of school we bought a Dolly Madison watch. Last week we walked into the Colonial and ordered some Fresh Pastry. Imagine our chagrin when it turned out to be labeled, "Dolly Madison." Now, every time we look at our watch we think of Dolly Madison and every time we think of Dolly Madison we think of Fresh pastry. The whole thing looks like a low advertising trick.

Since our good chum, Dunkelbert, became blessed with a boy, we have acquired an evident interest in bald heads. There's nothing exciting about some bald heads, they being of the standard manner. But the sight of this baby's bald head aroused us to thought, because someday we expect to lose our OWN hair.

Through what media do men get bald? The answer is difficult and confusing, but here are several immediate causes:

1. Phi Beta Kappa.
2. A course in engineering.
3. Worrying about how Kentucky can beat Alabama.
4. "It's in the germ plasm!"
5. There is one bald head of prominence that thrills us beyond imagination; the cranium of Ben Mussolini. We're not sure about this, but there is a current rumor that Big Ben shines his skull with egg-white manufactured under the trade name of "Baldoni-Skulleri Oil Massage." That's the secret of Mussolini's brilliant appearance.

His efforts apparently are not in vain. From all indications he is very popular with the weaker set. If that's what a bald head will do for a man, then we too can use "Baldoni-Skulleri Oil Massage."

Along with the host of old grads that came drifting back to the campus for the homecoming game came a host of jokes that, like the grads, will simply have to be put up with for a few days.

Among those that came to these ever-inquiring cats was this priceless gem of wit:

First al, (alumnus, not alcohol) — "Do you know why Mrs. Cab Calloway can't tend her garden?"
Second illuminite — "Nay indeed sir, wouldst thou inform me?"
First ditto — "Because her husband hi de hoes."

Speaking of the syphilis campaign, we feel obligated to contribute to such a worthy cause, so—

I was strolling on the campus
With hopes and spirits high;
What a grand old life this was,
Watching the Fords and girls go by.

As I reached the Old Law Building
And was about to pass it by,
A great big Indian Chief ran out
And poked me in the eye.

"Sucusim, please," he slyly muttered
With a twinkle in his eye,
"But me no like to see 'um pass
This good old building by."

I was stary-eyed and irked no end,
But I felt my face grow red
As he pointed to the doorway
And a great big sign which said,
"TAKE YOUR WASSERMANN TEST TODAY"

CAMPUSCENE

By JIM CALDWELL

COMMONEST criticism of this generation by prominent educators is that it does not read enough, write enough, or speak enough. As a result, so they say, we are less able to gather ideas and less able to express those ideas than any generation since that elusive fellow named Hector was a youthful canine. By reading they mean not the daily inspection of the headlines and conscientiously keeping up with L'I Abner, but the actual perusal of intelligent, thoughtful, probing novels and non-fiction books. By non-writing they refer to the current litterer's inability to express itself with the pen in such things as themes, letters, and those extremely painful what's known as term papers. And, as for our lack of speech, they refer to Joe and Josephine Columbia's tendency to splutter and get red around the ears whenever he or she is called upon to publicly present his or her opinion on the subject in question. In other words, Percival Prof doesn't seem to think we've got all our marbles.

But seriously, we must admit that we, as a group are not so well-informed, not so skillful with the pen and tongue as we might be—or perhaps even as we should be. Sinclair Lewis, who probably is our outstanding authority on the American Scene has expressed this opinion in several of his latest books. And Sinclair Lewis is not exactly a professional viewer-with-alarm. Since he is not alone in this belief, the old adage of "where there's smoke there's fire" is perhaps more truth than fiction.

Why the boys and girls of today have neglected to cultivate the senses for purposes of culture and expression remains clear. This mechanistic, standardized thing called modern living calls for practicality and more practicality. And the base of modernity is sophistication. As a result, the average college student has become so sophisticated that he sniffs with disdain anything that smells "intellectual." Drama, art, music and literature are frowned upon as impractical play-thing of the "intellectuals."

Efforts of the English Department

to promote a taste for worth-while literature among the students too often fall short, simply because the student is prejudiced against literature. He explains his attitude with that magic phrase so dear to the heart of the common, everyday, Botanical Garden variety of college student—"So what!"

The powers-that-be in the Kernellish field believe this to be an unhealthy attitude. And we are inclined to agree with them. So we have been commissioned to write a mildly informative column along the "lively arts" line; perhaps in the George Selig vein. Now, hold on—this is NOT an attempt to become "intellectual." The "intellectuals" rile us almost as much as it does you. We shall merely try to comment on the antics of the lively arts as seen by an ordinary, everyday, dumb guy like us. And the lively arts, my dear friends, include the "moon pitchers," radio and swing. And, of course, there are books, plays, magazine articles, etc. but...

Debussey In The Groove
Speaking of swing music, has it ever occurred to you that the fathers of classical music might be putting something over on the hep-cats and alligators? Well, they are. They're making us take some of the classiest of the classiest hook line, and stinker. And do we love it!

Girls! Here's the "Hit of the Season" IN THE CAMPUS HAT SHOP $2.95 Kitten Fluff GOLD, WINE, BLUE, BLACK, BROWN, LAUREL, KELLEY, BRIGHT RED Other Campus Hat Shop Styles $1.95 to $4.95 MAIN FLOOR Wolf Wiles INCORPORATED

That swing classic, "Martha" that was all the rage several months ago, comes to us from one of the most operatic opera ever operated. And that current rug-cutter that goes by the name of "My Reverie" was composed years ago by a man named Debussy. That Larry Clinton had a lot to do with both is true, but he merely put them in his swing-line. Not a note of the melody of either was changed.

Why, at the rate things are going, will be shagging in "The Treadador's Chorus" and waiting to "The Pilgrim's Chorus" ere the winter is over? Why not? Hoop skirts, starched collars, and three-button suit-coats came back didn't they? Maybe we're not so sophisticated after all.

Leave It To The Wellies' Boys
That Orson Welles is a fine actor has long been the opinion of New Yorkers. That he is an excellent (or, perfect) actor became the opinion of the United States in general on Sunday night last. What he did and the affect it had upon people is by now history. But the fact remains that people had never before seen to him in his own person. Consequently, they had never listened to Orson Welles. Many probably didn't even know who he was. Had they previously taken the trouble to listen, they would have known immediately who was speaking Sunday night, as Mr. Welles has a voice which, once heard, can never be forgotten.

Now, "The War of the Worlds" is far from being the Mercury Theater's first frightening presentation. The think that scared people so much was that it was so fantastic. Paradoxically, the reason that it was so easily believed was that it was in reality so unbelievable. Last summer Mr. Welles presented an extremely blood-curdling version of "Treasure Island." Since there was nothing really fantastic about it, it created practically no furor at all. It was merely slightly morbid, entirely earthy affair, and was received as such. It has since been followed by other dramas, but it took a fantasy of the rarest form to stir people into realizing that such a thing as the Mercury Theater actually exists. We'll wager that next Sunday evening finds the Theater's listening audience increased by at least 500 percent.

Who's Who-ey

By DIDI CASTLE

As was Winchell here three weeks ago, a certain KD lovely has trouble keeping her dates straight, either intentionally or otherwise. Washington and Lee donated a letter to our files the other day by pasting the clipping on some stationery and confirming the word "sometimes" used in reference to the Come-back-for-more lads. Evidently someone is burning brightly about being stood up, and way down in Virginia... what power hath this KDelicious to incite tempests in the hearts of faraway males?

Our staff of embryonic snoot-scopes has pestered completely out of the picture. Bill Costel is busy writing columns. Re-headed Nellie Rash is concerned with toe-headed political candidate Joe Bailey. R...

tion of this amazing ear spectacle is an Englishman commonly known as H. G. Wells. Mr. Wells has long made it a business to write of past history, to predict future history, and to create just such studies in weirdness as you heard the other night. Several years ago Mr. Wells wrote a movie entitled "Things to Come." It was his prediction of the future, and for sheer imaginative genius, it runs a close second to last Sunday's amazing catastrophe.

But the irony of the matter is this—a man in faraway England, merely by writing a play, caused the entire American nation to feverishly read his Bible and prepare to meet a ghastly fate. Drama marches on!

GUIGNOL TO GIVE STUDENT DRAMA

"Country Lawyer" To Be First Of Plays' Lab Shows

With cast and directors composed entirely of students, "Country Lawyer" makes its premiere appearance on the stage of the Guignol theatre at 8:30 p. m. Monday night.

Frank Saunders, (Tom Downing) a small town Michigan lawyer is a real friend of the people. He believes that "a good lawyer keeps his clients out of court."

He goes to Detroit and is attorney for a big business, but finds not quite too late that true happiness and contentment for him and his family is back among the more quiet and less wealthy people.

The cast consists of Frank Saunders (Tom Downing), Miriam Saunders (Jane Crump), Mary Ellen (Theresa McKinney), Adrienne Turner (Louise Nisbet), Patsy Dean (Sara Revel), Edith (William Allphomb), John Barlow (Morry Holcomb), and Mrs. Wheeler (Virginia Coates).

Associate directors are Sarah Elizabeth McLean and Dorothy Love Elliott, with Catherine (William Allphomb), Jim Barlow (Morry Holcomb), and Mrs. Wheeler (Virginia Coates).

"Country Lawyer" was submitted by Betty Smith of Chapel Hill North Carolina, for the annual prize play contest conducted by Guignol Theatre.

The Studio players take the place of the laboratory players of last season. The series of plays is to prove as a testing ground for any hidden talent in writing and directing.

"Susan and God" sets have been transported in order to be used for the current play, with the third act of the first Guignol play used as the first act set of "Country Lawyer."

By dropping a wall where there were originally four columns, re-pointing the walls green and the woodwork, and replacing porch furniture with office furniture, and transposing the aquarium into bookcases, the set is reconstructed into a prosperous law office.

Prof. Frank Fowler, director of the theatre, stated that there were unlimited possibilities for a studio theatre of this type, and that any original plays or experimental plays will be considered for production.

Distance To Union Makes Life Oh, So Hard

"Hey, tools, come on over to the Union building for a coke. Oh, don't go to class. Why, school has hardly started yet. I'll bet he won't even check the roll today."

And with his feeble persuasion, the freshman is initiated into the Brotherhood of Glass Cutters of the growing difficulties in college.

Trodding across the half-mile more or less, (seems like more, is really less) between McVey hall and the Union building, the freshman impressed by his companion of the growing difficulties in college.

Even two years ago, the hard working student could ride on the elevator for a coke from any floor of McVey, for the Commons was then located on the third floor of that building.

Last year at this time he had to go to the basement to catch the elevator or climb all 27 steps to the coker on the top.

Now another complexity has arisen. The thrifty student that requires atmosphere with his coke must hike across campus to the new Student Union building.

"Well, maybe the walk does have an advantage, anyway, because you're so tired then that you can really persuade yourself that you need a rest," the upperclassman lectures.

Entering this lounge heaven, the frosh sees his friends among the other hundred refugees from education (intellectual).

Soon, several of the female loungers arrive. "Hello, Gang," one exclaims as she sits in the nearest chair. "You know, I think that I'd do well to go to college, but I'm just not in the mood."

Then two minutes before the bell, one of the group rises with the intention of going to English class. "Oh, don't go to class!" "I have English and I can't cut."

"Sit down." "Yes, really," and with this she is helped into the nearest chair by two veterans of the art.

And so education marches on to the Student Union building for a coke.

Election Parade Provides Many Highlights

Five hundred student "constituents" massed at Patti Hall Wednesday night to take part in the first outdoor "political rally" in recent years. Band music, placards, baby-kissing, speeches—a burlesque of the huncamony of a fire-and-thunder political campaign—marked the meeting. The rally was sponsored by supporters of Clarke, "The Crocin' Candidate" for Junior Class president.

Girls in sympathy with another party, dumped the clothes if not the spirits of the speakers, and a huge bonfire had to be extinguished after requests by the dormitory official. Immediately afterwards, the gathering was thrown in temporary darkness when the porch lights were extinguished. But no amount of opposition discouraged the politicians.

The rally was staged with all the noise and music of the old-time torch-light parades, being led by a rally band composed of cornets, a clarinet, bass drum, and snare drum. Starting in front of the Chi Omega house, the parade proceeded down Maxwell with placards blazoning forth "Clarke, the Singing President," and a line of cars estimated at anywhere from 40 to 75.

At Patterson hall, before the deluge, Johnny Clarke, SAE from Mayville, and presidential candidate was introduced by George Jesse, master of ceremonies. Clarke's speech, advocating a "winning football team and no o'clock classes" was greeted by a conglomeration of cheers and boos.

Rodger Lyons, Triangles from Cave City, and candidate for vice-president, had to relinquish the speaker's stand due to the noise and confusion from girls with independent leanings from the dormitory windows.

Some helpful soul, spurred the reception along with cards bearing the words "applause."

"As exchequer of the Junior class funds, I will furnish a $1,000 band."

Alpha Gamma Rho, Franklin Pierce of Upper Tyeart, candidate for treasurer. He also advocates that mass buildings be equipped with escalators for the students.

Noami Bell, Chi Omega from Bluefield, West Virginia, candidate for treasurer, said that she was for "more dark 'smooching' corners."

After cigars had been distributed, and the babies (dolls to you) had been kissed, the parade proceeded down Line to Main and then over the viaduct, up Lexington avenue and on to Dumas, where it disbanded.

An aftermath of the rally took place when three carloads of boys invaded enemy territory by driving to the boys dormitories. They were rudely repulsed, however, when the occupants sallied forth and took to throwing any solid objects that could be found.

All in all, in spite of the "deluge," it was a political rally that "took you back."

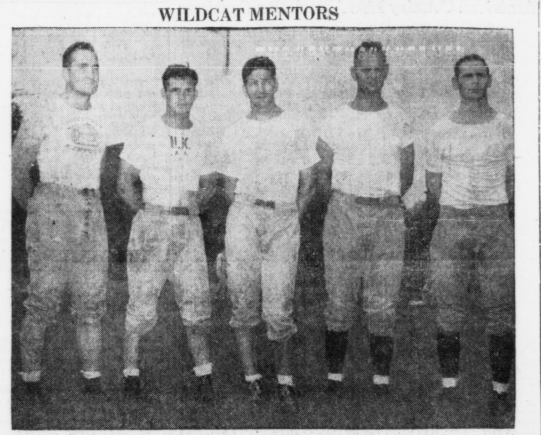

Gullible Males Are Inveigled By Clever Coeds

By SARAH RANSDELL
I bow my head in shame as I betray my sex but I can no longer see the poor gullible males on this campus caught by the tricks that the clever little coeds in Patterson Hall play on their dull wits.

The art of "inveigling" as it is called, has been developed to a fine point by the young wench who dwell in that domicile of feminine purlchurite. It's a game that all women learn to play almost as soon as they learn to play paper-dolls; in fact it is almost instinctive.

The telephone is a very necessary instrument and here are stated some of the more subtle means of hoodwinking the prizes and joys of the fraternities.

A clever little miss, Miss X, in doubt as to whether she has a date made, in a sudden moment trills out to the utterly innocent recipient of her wiles, "This is Emory Zlich. Do you remember me? You do. Well you have a date for the male tonight!" Whereupon the male turns of blind dates and not exactly recalling one, Miss Zlich, declared that she has a date with Miss X, thus committing his neck to the noose and relieving Miss X's anxiety.

These men guide the Wildcat picket agitation in this year's encounters. They are Gene Myers, Frank Moseley, Ah Kirwan, Bernie Shreve, and Joe Rupert.

U. S. Colleges Have Queer Appellations

By CHARLES K. STEELE
American colleges and universities go in for queer names at least they seem queer to us who are used to hearing a simple name like "University of Kentucky."

For instance picture a cheering section yelling with all spirit and vigor the well known college yell, "Rah, rah, rah, Pestalozzi Froebel Teachers' College, fight! fight! fight!" If you really want to fight, there's Brawley College in Colorado, but if you want to pull a Hitler, you may go to Bluffton College in Ohio. More amiable students would perhaps prefer Friends University in Kansas, or Friendship College in South Carolina. Savage School for Physical Education could probably provide some formidable opposition, and Defense College would no doubt stay in there and die for dear old Rutgers.

For students of a gentler disposition, there's St. Mary of the Lake Seminary, St. Mary of the Woods College, St. Mary of the Springs College, St. Genevieve of the Pines Junior College, Oceola College, Our Lady of the Elms, and Pine Names Normal School. The college of 72 college names in the United States beginning with the word "St." is being St. Mary's.

An efficient board of trustees in Washington apparently wanted something different from the G-ants, but in order to please them all, just named their school "Holy Names Normal School." The College of Holy Names in California probably felt the same way. Nervous students who jump when the professor says "Well, when was I?" would probably be all at ease at Seair's College in Tennessee.

Paine College in Georgia may be in some way connected with Drop-side College in Pennsylvania. Mercyhurst College in Pennsylvania could complete the trio.

Some students take to caffeine in order to study until the wee hours and they apparently made such a habit of it in Kansas that they named the school Coffeyville College. It looks like Lambuth College in Tennessee may really go in for a lot of night work and no doubt they keep the hall ways highly polished at Skidmore College in New York. Hamline University in Minnesota probably goes in heavily for dramatics. Shorter College will strike a responsive note in the heart of many students.

The collegiate habit of going without a hat probably doesn't wear well at John B. Stetson University in Florida. Several of our famous men have colleges named for them. There's John Brown University in Arkansas, William Jennings Bryan College in Tennessee, and Woodrow Wilson College of Law in Georgia. Then there's the College of St. Mary-of-the-Wasatch in Utah.

Bama Touchdown Puts Zoeller Ninth On High Point List

By scoring one touchdown on a 71 yard run last Saturday at Kentucky was defeated by Alabama 26-6, Dave Zoeller, Wildcat sophomore, left halfback, moved into eighth position in the Southeastern conference scoring sleepless-clas-

Meanwhile, the two leaders, Parker Hall, Mississippi and Dameron Davis, Kentucky, were held scoreless. University Men Show Facility At Earning $5

By JOHN ED PEARCE
It's amazing what some people will do for a college education. Here on the University campus is a boy who works his way through school by acting as assistant janitor at a public school near Lexington. Another serves as a companion to an old lady whose husband died recently; others do everything from washing dishes to taking care of children.

With more than 50 percent of its male students working for all or part of their college expenses, the University ranks among the highest in the country in percentage of working students. According to estimates given by Dean Jones, 1,500 men work during the summer months to help finance their education.

Garth House To Play For Union Dance

Garth House and his Orchestra will play for the All-Campus Dance from 9 to 12 Saturday night in the Ballroom of the Union building. Admission is to be forty cents a couple or single.

Union Cards must be presented when you purchase your ticket.

During the school year, there are 400 students employed on NYA duties, 275 of these being boys. Two hundred and fifty boys earn all their meals, while another 150 earn part of their food. Two hundred and twenty-five boys hold assorted odd jobs, ranging from undertaker's assistant to garage mechanic. Two hundred and seventy-five boys are given their room in exchange for work.

While the girls are not entirely left out of this work program, they fall far below the boys in number employed. Twenty-five girls are employed in the dormitories for table and room services, while others work in town or around the campus. One hundred and twenty-five girls are now employed by the NYA. Duties of these girls are almost as varied as those of the boys. Some work in five ten-cent stores; some take tables, wash dishes, clean rooms, make beds, cook, sew; others care for small children, tutor school children, bind books, sell jewelry, or work as assistants in laboratories.

The resourcefulness of the college student is also well shown in the positions held by men students on the campus. It is not unusual to see University men raking leaves, cutting grass. Many of men work on the campus in the library, in the various laboratories, or on the grounds. On the student lists are many electricians, mechanics, chemists and medical assistants. One boy pays part of his expenses by selling snapshots of students, which he takes himself. Some run presses or linotypes in the Kernel plant, while others sell advertising. Approximately fifty men and women earn a large percentage of their college expenses at the Kernel office.

Do Horses Have Moon Blindness?

By VIRGINIA SMITH
Do horses have moon blindness? Is the disease caused by light rays from the moon, hereditary, or a result of dietary mismanagement? second, that it comes from glandular secretion; and third, that it is a result of heredity.

The University of Kentucky now spends more time and money in this branch of research than any other institute or college in the United States.

Although there have been no actual discoveries made to date, authorities of the Agriculture college have made many progressive steps toward the solution of this problem. They are keeping more than fifteen horses under their observation, either at the experiment farm or on subsidiary farms in the state.

In The Control Room

Inaugurating its policy of name bands, the Student Union building is sponsoring a semi-formal dance on November 12, featuring the music of Don Bestor.

The name of Bestor has been synonymous with good dance music for years. Long a favorite in the Middle West Don brought his band to Broadway in 1931 and within a few months time became one of the nation's leading dance bands.

After a short while in New York, General Tires prevailed upon him to supply the rhythms for the Jack Emory program. This was the beginning of a long radio association with Jack Emory and together they launched the Jello series of network programs.

Don Bestor can rightly be called the psychologist of orchestra leaders. He has studied the musical tastes of people in practically every state of the Union and has achieved a happy medium in his rhythms. Don is always seeking new ideas to keep his music fresh and interesting.

His novelty innovations are talked about in all circles. He has one novelty called the vibratrap, which he discovered in, of all places, a funeral parlor. It looks like a piano. When Bestor starts playing the vibratrap, the dancers flock around him to watch, they find it so fascinating.

January, 1932, marked the 16th anniversary of Don Bestor's first broadcast. Back in 1922, when the crystal set was just coming into its own, KDKA, the listening-house station in Pittsburgh, one of the first radio stations in the United States, extended an invitation to William Penn hotel where Bestor was then playing. They told him they were experimenting to see if they could broadcast successfully by remote control. Bestor was skeptical.

His experience at listening in had brought him caustics and regenerative whistles. He hesitated at first, but finally consented to the experiment. When his music started up and sent over KDKA that day, it was a triumph. He became the first band leader to broadcast by remote control.

Stable chatter... an original Dixieland arrangement of "Swing and Sings" featured on the Remember When program last Tuesday afternoon surprised the modern arrangements of Berlioz's hit "The Swan" with her vocal rendition of the melody.

WHO'S WHO-EY

Continued from Page Two of delight emanating from Nell Foster (did you know that Nell Foster is a prof at Ohio State?) "He's so nice to everyone, you just can't help but like him" dark haired lass referring to the Hodge... and on into the night.

Sub grill at 5:30 p. m. "Don't Let That Moon Get Away" blaring from the loud-speaker... football players wandering in and out... a few scattered at far-apart tables, talking, eating and laughing... Hon. Davis tracking thru the door with that contagious grin spread from ear to ear.

Ed Ghoson and George Tapanoch, Chester Mason and Mac McCarthy discussing life and its whimsies... Mel French, Sully Jacobs packing cookies in a corner with Fresh Adonis Schlegle looking on from his perch on a stool... Jimmy McConall will wiggle withly from behind the soda fountain... Fresh Jim McGraw explaining the intricacies of raising a good crop to a wide-eyed honey... Luke Linden foot-footing and we mean zig-zagging, the cigar counter people in a daze talking soberly to the cigarette vendor... reference to "Lil Abner"...

Who offers the speckled lady with the umbrella top and unique slogan written on the back? "Pass quietly driver asleep" incites curiosity as to who is asleep. As it is parked with disconcerting regularity in front of Pat Hall, it is even more interesting.

Two puzzling excuses for dates. Sue Dornell explained that she was going briefly hunting one Sunday afternoon and Gret Grek, diminutive Yank, simply had to mail a letter a couple of nights ago. Coleman Judy and Lucy Portman seem sauntering near Saloshin's to their eve... Bonny Stapleton, tap dancer, is going to see a picture from an appendicitis attack... it seems quite prevalent lately... Doreen Burton just had one... observation seems to do the work... neither one of them have been operated on yet.

Why is it, many lasses cry, that U. K. men seem to resent it if they ask a date and someone else beats them to it? They seem to be quite sensitive about it. Here she blasts... "Didi Castle, why don't you try writing about someone else besides De Ann Young, Brownie Brown, Chi Omega, Sigma Chi's and all your chums. There are lots of other people on the campus and we are all interested... not seeing the same names every time. Brownie opens her mouth or Do-Ann brushes her teeth."

Try writing a good scandal column or quit... "The other half of the Campus" Here we go... Remember... if you are a avid reader of this kind of stuff as you seem to be, perhaps you will recall that I formed a staff of Independent helpers. Not Gret Grek, in slight. This particular staff, when functioning at all, turned in some interesting news and I offer bits of Gret news. At the beginning of this column today I officially fired the whole bunch and asked for a gathering of all non-affiliated and interested scandal-addicts in the Grill this afternoon... this was written before I received your note.

The Fall Archery tournament has been completed with Nathalie Dye as winner. She made 42 out of a possible 81 points, and will be presented an engraved arrow at our annual banquet next spring. This was the last week of Hokey practices. Next week will be devoted to games and make-up practices. The next sport will be volleyball, beginning November 14. It is a minor sport which will run three weeks and for which 50 points will be awarded. To receive points one must participate in nine practices and one game.

Bowling started Tuesday and 10 girls were present. We will meet every Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Phoenix Bowling Alley. All girls interested in receiving instruction are asked to be there next Tuesday. The council will meet at 7 p. m. Tuesday night at the women's gym.

When I found this column out twice a week I think, not in terms of fraternities and sororities, but of individuals. Everything I get in the hall as I do, I come in contact with Chi Omega possibly once or twice a week. Remember, Gripe artist, that plenty happens outside the Independent ranks, as well as in. And as I mentioned once before, it doesn't make any difference to me whether the scandal I get is about OUP or a Slappa Mappa. If it's good, it goes.

Incidentally, I sign my name to the things I write and if I get a boo from you, I know who it comes from... the other half of the campus is definitely putting it on too many shoulders. By the way, since you are so democratic, would you mind explaining that phrase? As far as I know, the campus is one unit. I wasn't aware of any difference, myself.

For crying in the night, stop beating around the bush, being mysteriously anonymous, and representing the student body as a whole, and hand in some of these hot tips. We need them and their cooperation. Sincerely, Diddi Castle. Patronize The Kernel Advertisers.

Sittin' And Watchin' In Union Building

It's Grand Central Station on a smaller scale!

Passing one's perfectly good time in the central hall of the Student Union building may not sound so hilarious but there are many ludicrous, pathetic and educational lessons to be learned from the people seen there. Some walk languidly, some briskly; one is amiable and the other tyrannical; a poorly-dressed student brushes the shoulders of an ostentatiously dressed sorority member. A typical melting pot for all classes and types. And a hurried glance shows only a hurried crowd.

Chose a seat which will command a good view of the passing throng. When you have become accustomed to the chaos and confusion you will be astounded at the incredible number of types of people. The show might progress something like this: A boy massive in size toils ardently by. He's puffing like a steam engine and it is evident that his one motive in life at this time is to get to his 10 o'clock class.

The next character seems to be having difficulties. It's Chi O pledge Ginger Watson. Her hat pushed back off of her forehead shows a face expressive of worry and extreme weariness. She is burdened with a copious number of articles which include: purse, gym shoes, those tricky knit gym uniforms, five books, loose papers and a mysterious box. Ask her what her trouble is and she'll say that she really doesn't mind the load she is dragging around with her but she is so dreadfully worried because she has made two luncheon dates and it seems almost impossible to break either one so she has about none to the conclusion to go to the hall for lunch. But it's such a shame to let them both go she'll call back over her shoulder as she disappears around the corner.

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

TO ERR is human—to forgive is divine—so please forgive (and forget) me for picking Kentucky to derail the Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech when the two teams collide tomorrow in Atlanta.

Honest, I do have a good reason for the selection, a sort of Halloween hangover vision in which I saw the Cats, wild again after their surprise game with Alabama, filing their nails for the Engineers and swearing to avenge the massacres of the last two years. Last season the Southerners annihilated Kentucky by 22-0 and the previous year they had snapped the Cats back into reality after Georgia Tech enters the game on the morrow with four first string men and one sub on the bench with injuries.

Of course I attempt to overlook the fact that Kentucky's line, so full of holes it sounds like a pipe organ in a cyclone.

So far this semester Tech has been six points short of being a Jack the Giant Killer on three occasions. One touchdown decision has been dropped to Notre Dame, Duke and Vanderbilt, three of the nation's leading elevens. The nearest case for a comparison between the two teams would be their games with Vanderbilt. The Commodores having sailed off Stoll field with a 14-7 win and last Saturday Tech was dropped by 13-7. From last year's powerhouse that won five, lost three and tied one game, the Engineers traded modest football togs for sheepskin diplomas to six members of their starting team.

The graduation axe cut Konemann Sims, Appleby and Collins, one of the best backfields in the South, and Jones and Jordan, two great ends, from the Yellow Jacket line.

One From 28,000

I suppose now here on the campus can there be found anyone, other than myself, who expects Kentucky to win Saturday. My only foundation for any optimistic whatsoever rests with an intangible football necessity that can't be bought with equipment, called confidence, the lack of which reduces potentially great teams to the trial horse class. With a team depending so largely on sophomores as Kentucky, an intercity confidence is to be expected, that is until they accomplish something better after Saturday's game that weight should be from around their necks.

To play Alabama a four to one touchdown game is a feat, recall, Southern California only held the Tide to a 14-6 win? Any team haunted by a 16 year night-mare, and picked by prognosticators as the poorer team by 40 to 60 points as Kentucky was against Alabama, and can still put up such a game fight must have something on the ball other than the dealer's name.

Until the injury dec-mings writhed four of their line-men down with disabilities, the Yellow Jackets front line gaps were dammed by experenced performers. Then the jinx struck and Bob Ison, 185 pound end, fell by the wayside with a broken leg and was followed to the bench by Lackey, Wood, Wilcox and Beard.

Stop, Look, Then Bet

But before you unfold the bank roll on Kentucky because of my prediction, let me quote to you my qualifications for picking winners. My outstanding triumphs have been Schmeling to Louis, the Cubs to beat the Yankees and Kentucky to beat Xavier. The pick that will always live in my memory was in the last Kentucky Derby when I became raving mad and picked a bayrunner who walked under the name of Mountain Ridge to cop the classic. You remember how he finally ambled across the wire early Tuesday over Kentucky's battered list.

First, you can find Captain Sherman Hinkins parking a body full of bruises and his understudy number one, Harold Black, out for the scene with a knee turned the wrong way. John Elmer, out all last week with the miasma in his leg and may get to see the Engineers from down on the line. The remainder of the line, if the adhesive tape holds, can at least stand on its feet.

The backfield was diminished Saturday when Chet Mason was given a dislocated collarbone by the Tide. This necessitated the induction of Doc Combs into the mysteries of right halfbacking since Dameron has been laid up since he runs. Joe Shepherd, though battered like an old pug derby, will probably be able to play 60 minutes Saturday, a trick he has done in practically every game. The chief offensive drills this week have been through the air with Dave Zoeller, who may get to run against Alabama broke the Tide's goose egg monopoly on the Cats, on the directing end.

By far the most pleasing feature of the game of last week end was the excellent play of the ends, who constantly swept the Tide's fleet runners broad in toward the line and apply the interference. This improvement is one of the chief causes for my sudden fever and the selection of Kentucky in the winner's ring Saturday.

CAT NET SQUAD OPENS PRACTICE

Coach Rupp Starts Working With An Aggravation Of 20 Hopefuls

Faced with the problem of uncovering a scoring successor to graduate Joe Hagan, last season's high point contributor, Coach Adolph Rupp and a squad of 20 hopefuls officially started varsity basketball practice Monday.

The necessity of a consistent post maker to fill Hagan's forward post will be emphasized this season more than any campaign in the past few years, for the assignment that stands above that of the Cats is one of the toughest ever billed for a Kentucky net team. Jimmy Goodman, a letter-man from last year's team that was undefeated in Southern conference play, has been drilled at the vacated post in sessions to date.

"Bubby" Thompson veteran at the center post, Layton Rose, senior sophomore guard of the forward post, and Captain-elect and inspiring leader of last year's combats, Bernie Opper, are among certain fixtures in Mentor Rupp's starting plans.

Walter Hodge, injured athlete of football and basketball fame, who was expected to bolster the five's quarter back, either Charley Latham or Wilce Carnes will get the fullback call.

The training personnel of the team will include 27 members and will have Friday afternoon for the final practice after working out on Stoll field. The return trip will be made after the game Saturday night.

TAU BETA PI TO HOLD PLEDGING

Bi-Annual Tapping Ceremony To Be Held In Training School Auditorium

Tau Beta Phi, national honorary for engineers, will hold its bi-annual pledging exercises on Friday afternoon in the auditorium of the University Training School.

Dr. George E. Brady, assistant professor of English, has been asked to make the principal address at the exercises. His topic will be "The Engineering Mind."

The pledging exercises will be conducted in the traditional manner. Active members of the honoraries will circulate through the assembly and tap those students and graduates who have been designated for membership.

To be eligible for membership in Tau Beta Phi, an individual must stand in the upper one-eighth of the Junior Class or in the upper fourth of the Senior class of the College of Engineering. Undergraduates are chosen on the basis of distinguished scholarship and exemplary character. The honorary also recognizes men who have distinguished themselves as graduates in the field of Engineering.

In addition to the pledging exercises, a prize of $10 will be awarded to the sophomore in the College of Engineering who attained the highest scholastic rating during his Freshman year.

RURAL MEET

Educational tours for those attending the convention will be conducted in the Bluegrass region at Berea College and through eastern counties of the state at 8 a. m. Saturday, November 5.

Among the speakers for the three-day meeting are Grace E. Freyinger, Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture; Louis H. Bean, U. S. Department of Agriculture; B. L. Hummel, Virginia Extension Service; David Donoho, Brechtitt County School, Jackson, Ky.; William van de Wall, University professor of musical education; C. E. Brehm, Director of Agricultural Extension in Tennessee; Nat T. Frame, Oglethorpe Press, Frank L. McVey, and William J. Hutchins, president of Berea College.

Members of the reception committee for the Rural Youth section of the national conference were Byrd Kendall, secretary of the National Rural Youth Section; Bina Baird; Paul Barnett; and James Quisenberry. Wendall Binkley and Grace Silverman were speakers on the youth program.

President and Mrs. McVey entertained with a reception and tea in honor of those attending the convention Wednesday afternoon at Maxwell Place.

Handcraft Exhibit By Rural Meeting Shown On Campus

An extensive handcraft exhibit, representing 20 states, and showing the use of native materials in making household equipment, has been placed on exhibit in the first floor of the Agriculture building in connection with the American Country Life Association meeting.

Articles are constructed of metals, leather, wood, wool, cotton, cornhusks, birch, nuts, pine needles, etc. The exhibit includes graded furniture, clothing, and household equipment were made by members of homemakers' clubs.

States represented include Virginia, West Virginia, Louisiana, Nebraska, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Tennessee, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, and Kansas.

Miss Ida Hagan of the College of Agriculture is in charge of the exhibit.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question: What do you think of the Kernell's syphilis campaign?

The Answer: Carolyn Stidham, Junior, Commerce: "I think it is one of the best campaigns that has ever been sponsored by the Kernell or any other organization at the University. It involves something that should be of interest to everyone. First, it serves as a protection to you, and secondly, it serves as a protection to others."

David Zoeller, Sophomore, Arts and Sciences: "I think it is a good idea because there are too many college students that don't know what syphilis is."

Bessie Campbell, Senior, Agriculture: "The Kernell should be commended on starting such a campaign. If we all do our part in this campaign we are doing our part to prevent syphilis."

"Gah" Curtis, Junior, Education: "It's the latest thing. I am glad that the Kernell has come out openly in answering this very important question which other schools have neglected. I sincerely hope that everyone takes advantage of the opportunity offered by this campaign."

Lawrence Lectures At Christ Church

Prof. A. G. Lawrence of the Commerce College spoke on the possibilities of another world war before the University Club of Christ Church on Sunday evening.

Professor Lawrence was the third speaker in the forum planned in order to present the view towards war of an economist, a philosopher, a political scientist, and a psychologist.

Dr. Amry Vandenberg and Dr. John Kulper have previously addressed the club in this series. Dr. Henri Beaumont of the psychology department will conclude the series on November 6.
