RALPH KERCHEVAL

Ralph Kercheval, Kentucky's sophomore ace in the 1931 Southern Conference grid deck, in his punting exhibitions during most of the Wildcats' games this season, promises national fame for Kentucky in 1932. "Kerchy," as he is known to his friends, has given as fine an exhibition of punting as ever seen on Southern gridirons. He also did a lion's share of hitting the line for the Wildcat school. He has two more years at Kentucky, and we who follow the Blue and White look to this youth and his "talented toe" to be of great help to Kentucky in future games.

History of the University of Kentucky

Miss Helen King, assistant director of the publicity bureau, has prepared the following article for publication in the national magazine of Sigma Nu social fraternity. Intensive research was conducted by Miss King in gathering data for the article.

—The Editor.

The establishment of the University of Kentucky, located at Lexington, was the result of the Morrill Land Grant Act of 1862

ed to the Legislature the union of Bacon College, Transylvania at Lexington, and the new Agricultural and Mechanical College to be recognized at Lexington under the name of Kentucky University.

The consolidation took place in 1865 with Bowman as regent, and was maintained until 1874, when dissensions arose and Bowman resigned. It was not until 1878, however, that the Legislature separated the A. & M. College from Kentucky University and established it as the Agricultural and scene of various drills and military manoeuvres. The town branch, (now a small creek) flows through the campus of the university and was once the meeting place of early settlers. A spring located in the beautiful ravine back of the stadium is the spring about which Henry Clay is once said to have remarked, "No man can consider himself a gentleman until he has watered his horse at Maxwell spring."

The University of Kentucky campus was at one time known as

which gave each state a land grant or land script, profits from the sale of which were to be used for the establishment of a state Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Following a sale of Kentucky's land script, which was for 330,000 acres and sold for $165,000, a committee was appointed by the Legislature to establish an agricultural and mechanical college. The committee, at the recommendation of John B. Bowman, at that time regent of the old Bacon College in Harrodsburg, suggested to the Legislature the union of Bacon College, Transylvania at Lexington, and the new Agricultural and Mechanical College to be recognized at Lexington under the name of Kentucky University. In 1909 the name of the school was changed to the State College of Kentucky and operated under that title until 1918, when the institution was given the corporate title of University of Kentucky.

The University of Kentucky is built on historic ground. It was here that the armed forces of the Confederacy, the Spanish-American War, the War of 1812, and the World War, drilled and prepared for conflict. The very ground upon which is now erected the university stadium was the Maxwell Woods and is the original land claim staked out by John Maxwell, one of the settlers of Lexington. Upon hearing of the battle of Lexington, Massachusetts, he is said to have jumped to his feet from the camp fire and suggested to his companions that the land upon which they stood be called Lexington. The home of the president of the university, situated on a rise overlooking the stadium, is still called Maxwell Place.

There is a tablet carved into the foundation of the Alumni gymnasium at the university which indicates that near there Maxwell and his band of patriotic confederates first camped on the site of Lexington.

Many and varied are the traditions at the University of Kentucky, principal among them being the "Battle of the Beer Keg," which takes place each Thanksgiving day when Kentucky meets its historic gridiron rivals from the University of Tennessee. The two state universities met first in 1893 and placed at intervals until 1906, when they began a series which has gone on uninterrupted, unearthed by workmen in the freight yards of the Louisville and Nashville railroad in 1915 and thus have been preserved by the university.

The Administration building, occupied by administration offices, and White hall, occupied at present by the College of Commerce and by the Botany department, the two oldest buildings on the campus, were erected in 1882. It is interesting to note that the custodian of the Administration building is a venerable, dark-haired darkey of doubtful age who, as a young boy, carried water to the in the early 1900's. The Kentuckians, completely outclassed, fought such a ferocious and gallant battle that they were given the name of Kentucky Wildcats by the press and enthusiastic partisans.

One of the most interesting relics of other days preserved on the campus is the trunk of Lexington's "Big Tree," which grew opposite the Henry Clay home and which was cut down a few years ago, amid a flurry of protests on the plea that it interfered with traffic. It has been preserved in large jagged-shaped tables with the exception of the two war years, '17 and '18, to the present day. The Keg is a highly decorated cask painted in the Blue and White of Kentucky and the Gold and White of Tennessee, and it has the same significance of the famous "Little Brown Jug." It goes to the winning football team each year and remains in its domain until it is brought to the scene of conflict for the next Turkey Day battle.

Situated on the campus directly in front of Mechanical hall, College of Engineering, is a cement block in which is embedded a section of the old Lexington and Ohio railroad in the West. The first were workmen on these tow buildings 49 years ago and has been in the employ of the university since that time.

Memorial hall, one of the recent buildings, was erected in 1929 and was dedicated in May of that year to the Kentuckians who lost their lives in the World War. It is a contribution of the citizens of the Commonwealth as a monument to their World War dead.

Athletic teams at the University of Kentucky has carried the name "Wildcats" since a memorable football game between the Kentucky representatives and the St. Louis University team at St. Louis constructed on wrought-iron stands which were made in the College of Engineering where the idea of preserving the wood originated and where the tables are now used by young Kentuckians for study tables in the large recreation and study room known as Dicker hall.

THE THANKSGIVING GAME

November the twenty-sixth was truly a day for Thanksgiving at the university, for the Wildcats did the unexpected and turned in a great football game. As many of the fans that witnessed the struggle exclaimed, it was the best game that has ever been played on Stoll field.

The largest crowd to see the 'Cats play this year, was on hand for the holiday game. All Kentuckians expected the university's blue-clad men to play their best game of the year but none expected them to tie the powerful Tennessee aggregation, who up till this memorable day were co-holders with the University of Tulane of the Southern conference title.

Fans were aware from the opening whistle that Kentucky had placed eleven men on the field and that in the game, there would not be one or two stars, but instead, a team of stars. Never before had eleven men representing the university worked so well together and deserved to win the glory that they did, than these boys. After a very mediocre season, it was truly gratifying to see the game that the Wildcats turned in on Turkey Day. Followers have maintained all season that Kentucky had material and could be whipped into a team that would be a credit to the institution they represented, and following the game with Tennessee the 'Cats left little or nothing for their admirers to ask of them.

It is the policy of the Alumnus to give credit where credit is due, and too much can not be said of the Kentucky team that played Tennessee on Thanksgiving.

THE NEEDS OF THE UNIVERSITY THIS YEAR

In other columns of this issue of the Alumnus, there appears the budget, as submitted by the board of trustees to the state legislature that meets next month. This budget is truly in line with state financial conditions of the time, for the board has asked for nothing that is not sorely needed and has not been asked for before.

The university, feeling that it must do all it can to meet the conditions that are at hand, and the reduced income to take care of these conditions, has acted very wisely in not including any things that are essential to the success and usefulness for continued support on a minimum schedule, with only a few additional appropriations, that are necessary to take care of the youth, and general business of our state.

The university heads the educational system of Kentucky, and is yearly making great strides of progress, giving to those within its borders a wealth of information and service, as well as adding to the common store of knowledge for the world. Hence the fullest support of all former students, friends and Kentuckians, is very essential to our school.

Kentucky is a wealthy state in natural resources, and many traditions surround its history, but why not invest more in capital? Money put into educational facilities is truly money well invested. It is in capital that cannot be lost no matter how often a depression comes or how long one may last in the financial world. Your money in invested in the youth of the commonwealth.

In the anxiety of the time one is very likely to be over anxious to help a situation, and yet at the same time do it a great deal of harm. That can happen if our state legislature does not realize to the fullest extent the value of education to the youth and the people of the state. Why should we not build toward a future where all are more capable of handling a situation similar to the one today than we ourselves have been? Is there a better way to guard against the future than to fortify the boys and girls of our state with the best in education, and as inexpensive as can be had?

Following the trend of the times the university has shown its great state consciousness by asking to be maintained and given the wherewithal to contrive to give our youth the best training. It is sincerely hoped that the conservative requests will be granted.

INCREASED INTEREST

The year 1931 that is just closing has been one of great importance to the alumni association. It marks the turning point, so the officers believe, in alumni interest. Alumni have always been interested in the athletics of the school and the progress their respective colleges have been making, but this year they are interested in the university in its largest sense.

Active in securing support from all club members, seeking the good will of all, and soliciting legislative support for their alma mater, has taken the time of a good many of our alumni, the good that their efforts have brought cannot be measured.

The officers of the association and the university are greatly encouraged over this alumni activity and believe that the year 1932 will be even greater in alumni activity.

CLUB NEWS

New Alumni Club Organized In Kansas

Nineteen alumni of the University of Kentucky met at the Hotel Jayhawk and organized the Kansas University of Kentucky club. Dr Jesse Adams, of the university at Lexington, who came to Kansas to address two of the Kansas teacher-gatherings, was the guest of honor at the banquet, and delivered an address in which he told of the progress being made by the university.

In the organization that was perfected after the banquet, C. G. Blakeley, of Topeka, one of the oldest alumni of the school, was elected president; Dr. J. A. Yates, of the Pittsburg Teachers' college was chosen vice-president; and Mrs. Guy Smith of Lawrence, was named secretary-treasurer.

The organization plans to hold annual meetings and bring distinguished sons of Kentucky to Kansas for the occasion.

Folger P. Wilson

The name of Folger P. Wilson has been identified with the business life of Richmond for so many years that his passing away will be mourned in a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He came to Quaker stock in Virginia, attended Friends preparatory schools and the University of Kentucky, later took up farming near Richmond and subsequently moved to this community where he became identified with a number of enterprises.

Mr. Wilson retained his affiliation with the Friends church throughout life. He had a genial and friendly nature and was kindly disposed to his fellow men. Mr. Wilson supported many movements for social betterment and reform; served on the board of the Y. M. C. A., and held various offices in the Friends church.—Palladium, Richmond, Ind.

PERSIA

EDITOR'S NOTE: Many alumni will remember reading a very interesting article on Persia written, especially for the Alumnus by Mr. C. B. Fisher, '20, who has charge of the school at Hamadan, Persia.

The fiftieth session of the American Boys' school began on September 9. Mr. Bentley and Mrs. Fisher are giving some help in the teaching of Ethics. On the whole the year seems most promising.

Eight of our teachers are Persian and two are Jews. One has been with us since the founding of the school, so his 50 years of service helps to bring the average experience of our teachers up to 8 years, otherwise it is 3 and one-half years. Two of the teachers are from Kermansheh, one from Daulatabad and one from Tabriz, the other six are from Hamadan. Five of them are earnest church members, one is a secret believer, one an enquirer, and the other three are imbued with more or less of the Christ spirit which they absorbed while students here. As we began the first teachers' meeting with prayer all seemed to enter into the spirit of it and to feel the greatness of the responsibilities and opportunities that are theirs this coming year.

Our school rooms were filled with 198 in the primary school and 59 in the middle school. Five boys from other schools have applied for admission to our tenth class but their lack of a workable knowledge of English was sufficient reason for not accepting them. In fact we feel that such students are not altogether desirable since too little contact can be made in one year to impress the boys' school stamp upon them.

This is an attempt to meet that demand. We plan to get out such short write-ups twice a month.

The ancient city of Hamadan or Ecbatana lies 6,000 feet above sea level at the foot of Mt. Alvand which rises still another 6,000 feet higher. Four hundred miles from Baghdad and 250 miles from Tehran, it lies in the heart of the Persian plateau, a natural summer resort, noted for its healthy climate and plenteous fruit. The mountains of Kurdistan and Luristan are less than 100 miles away. The government Educational System for all this region centers in Hamadan. The higher examinations are held in Hamadan and teachers are sent out from here to help in the smaller towns and villages.

Students come to us from Kurdistan, Sultanabad, Nahavand and other places and are forced to set up their own establishments since board and room is scarcely obtainable in Persia. Every year numerous applicants beseech us to organize a boarding school, but having neither plant, staff nor funds we sorrowfully turn them away.

The Alumni committee has taken an active interest in the work of the school for the past four years. This has been so helpful and promising that the Mission at its annual meeting in August consented to our going further with the idea of native control. * * *

Curtis-Thomasson

The marriage of Miss Martha Ray Curtis to Mr. Andrew B. Thomasson was quietly solemnized at the home of Dr. J. W. Porter, the officiating minister.

The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of Spanish-tile shade with trimmings of brown fur, and hat and shoes to match. Her corsage bouquet was of talisman roses.

Both the bride and bridegroom are members of prominent families of central Kentucky. The bride is the sister of Mr. Henry E. Curtis, of the University of Kentucky, and is admired by a large circle of friends for her graciousness and charm. Mr. Thomasson, formerly of Bourbon county, is well-known here, where he is a popular member of the Lexington bar.

The couple left immediately for a wedding trip, after which they will be at home at 410 Transylvania park. * * *

U. K. Graduate Wants State Geologist Post

Charles Straub, Bellevue, Democrat, is an applicant for the post of state geologist, now held by Dr. Willard Rouse Jillson, Frankfort, Republican, it became known here. He is understood to have the endorsement of the Campbell county Democratic organization, headed by George Herold, chairman.

Straub is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and of the University of Chicago and for several years was a practicing geologist for oil companies in the western oil field.

The appointment of state geologist is made by the governor. * * *

Patricia Jean Roy

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Roy, 224 University avenue, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Patricia Jean.

Mr. Roy is a research chemist at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station. * * *

Greene-Lefler

The marriage of Miss Hester Louise Greene and Julian Thomas Lefler, which was solemnized October 16, has been announced by

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Green, Pineville, parents of the bride. Mrs. Lefler, a graduate of the university, is now teaching in the Pineville High school. Mr. Lefler was graduated from the Maysville High school and received his degree in engineering from the university, where he was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He is now connected with the electrical department of the university. The many friends of the couple are wishing them continued happiness. * * *

'Between Us Day' at the University

By HELEN KING

"I hope that every student will carry back to his community an appreciation of good citizenship," said President Frank L. McVey in an address to the students at the University of Kentucky, assembled in Memorial hall, Wednesday, December 16, for the annual Christmas convocation. The program opened with the singing of "Holy Night, Silent Night" by the University Glee Club and general congregational singing led by Prof. C. A. Lampert.

It is one of the four convocations held annually by the President and his subject was "The History of the University and the Relation of the Student to it." Dr. Howard M. Morgan, pastor of the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church gave the invocation and benediction.

"We think of the University rather as a newcomer in the field of education" said Doctor McVey, "although for 130 years the people of the state have been engaged in building higher education in Kentucky." He explained this by describing the beginning of the University, from the act of the Virginia Legislature in 1790 which set aside a land grant for the establishment of an institution for higher education in Kentucky. The Kentucky legislature increased this grant by 12,000 acres, according to Doctor McVey, but the state institution did not come into actual being until 1865, following then it was united with the old Bacon college at Harrodsburg, and Transylvania College, and existed for 15 years as a part of this combination of church and state, under the name of Kentucky University.

"Although this slow beginning caused the delayed progress of the University for some 15 years, it has grown with definite rapidity since the early 1900's said Doctor McVey, with the result that it now stands as the third largest institution in the south, being out-ranked in size by Texas and Tulane.

The President sketched briefly the history of education in Kentucky and in Lexington and advised the students that "a new responsibility rests upon each individual, in that Democracy depends on higher education to a degree that it never depended before."

He concluded with a plea to the students for loyalty to their work, their responsibilities, their obligations and their ideals, asking them to be thoughtful and considerate of those at home who had sacrificed for them in order that they might receive a college education, and stating that "disloyalty to ideals is the greatest sin in America today."

Tennessee and Kentucky Football Game

By CAMERON V. COFFMAN

Lady Luck rode onto Stoll Field in the face of a cold wind Thanksgiving Day and made things hot for the undefeated Volunteers of the University of Tennessee in their annual battle with the Wildcats of Kentucky. It was an exalted team that trotted on the field and occupied the Tennessee side of the stadium; their All-American quarterback of 1930, Bobby Dodd, who so gallantly sank the Wildcats last year, was gone. But in his place was "The Wild Bull of the South," Gene McEver, an all-American of '29, who sank into oblivion last season on account of an injury, but who returned to the gridiron this year to continue his brilliant record. It was a disappointed team that left the field at the end of the game only to find the score in a state of equilibrium, the count being 6-6. This score was the deciding factor which eliminated the Volunteers from the Southern Conference race, which before the game had stood in the lead with the Green Wave of Tulane. For three quarters the Kentuckians withstood the onslaught of the Vols and gained the advantage of the playing honors. Shortly after the beginning of the fourth period, with the score still 0-0, and the ball deep in the Vol's territory, and in their possession, the Kentuckians grew careless. Feather's Tennessee Sophomore flash, took the ball on an off-tackle play, and started for his goal. Twice he reversed his field as he sped along. Nearly every Blue clad tackler was laid low by the perfect interference in front of the flying sophomore. Fourteen chalked lines passed under his feet before he finally came to a halt behind his goal line, which previously had been 71 yards away. The try for extra point struck the cross bars and was counted no good. It was only a few minutes later after the kick-off that Tennessee was attempting to punt from her own territory, a great Kentucky line rose up, crushed the mighty Vols and Captain "Babe" Wright, a tackle of all-Southern calibre, rushed on and batted the ball from the air into the outstretched arms of Kreuter, Kentucky end. With no opposition, he dashed across the goal line to knot the count 6-6.

Throughout the first three quarters the Wildcats lead the Vols in the scoring of first downs and also ground gained. After the Kentuckians had annexed the six points, the Tennesseans started an offensive drive down the field. Feathers, with a 20-yard end run started the last concentrated drive of the Vols, who fought furiously for a touchdown to regain their Southern Conference supremacy. Down the field they marched with McEver and Feathers smashing their way through the Blue forward wall. It took just 10 downs to place them on the 15-yard line. Four more downs advanced them to the five yard marker, and left them with four downs to make the goal. Four tries by McEver and Feathers placed the ball—just six inches from the Kentucky goal.

From behind his own goal line Kercheval punted the ball to the 35-yard line. Once more the Vols made a mighty attempt to score. With the ball on Kentucky's 15-yard line, Robinson flipped a pass to Feathers, but Lady Luck once more intervened. Feathers missed the ball! Minutes, which seemed like hours, passed. Phipps was sent into the game to sub for Kercheval. Once more Robinson tried a pass to Feathers. Phipps is on the spot and intercepted the pass as the long expected report of the timekeeper's gun broke Tennessee long string of victories.

"Shipwreck" Kelly, who was playing his last game before a home crowd, fought desperately to evade the entire Tennessee team; but the Vols swept down on him every time he got his hands on the ball. He gained very little on his heretofore unstoppable end runs. His line plunges almost failed to click. But through the line and off-tackle he outgained the famous "Wild Bull" McEver. Just before the half ended, Kelly on a fake pass, tore out around end and was apparently loose for a touchdown. Fifteen yards he raced, spinning and twisting. Suddenly, Feathers came "out of nowhere," and stopped Kelly in his tracks with a low, hard, flying tackle.

No one or two players played the hero act in the Thanksgiving day tilt, but a galaxy of stars made up the two teams. For the Tennessee Volunteers the work of the "Little Giant" Herman Hickman is not connected with sporting words. We may coin a word for it or used a high toned adjective and call it "suberb." The sophomore Feathers is heading for all-Southern, or perhaps all-American, honors if he continues with his brilliant record made in the concise period of one football season. Not enough can be said for the versatile McEver and the elongated Rayburn, Vol's end, for the past several seasons. Mayer, Vol captain and center also played a bang-up game.

For the Wildcats, Captain "Babe" Wright ended a glorious career on the gridiron for the University of Kentucky. For three years, his playing has been marked by the same consistency. Kentucky also had a sophomore in her ranks who was a needle in the side of the Vols. It was none other than Ralph Kercheval, who now is rated at the top with the nation's finest punting list. He is ranked along with Schwartz of Notre Dame, Olson on Northwestern and others who have had three years of experience behind the line.

Dick Richards, Ken Andrews and George Yates, all of whom have a record of three years of varsity football at the University of Kentucky to their credit, also ended a very colorful gridiron career with their outstanding playing against the Tennesseans.

O. L. "BUD" DAVIDSON
Captain

When O. L. "Bud" Davidson leads the 1932 University of Kentucky football team into its initial game next fall, he will be the first junior to captain a Wildcat eleven since John G. Heber, now coach of the Henry Clay high Blue Devils, led the Kentucky eleven through its 1918 campaign.

Davidson, whose home is in Evansville, Ind., was elected captain of next season's team at the annual football banquet for the varsity and freshman squads. Twenty-one lettermen selected the new Wildcat captain and named George Skinner, Lexington, who will be a senior next year, as alternate captain.

The captain-elect was a regular guard throughout the 1931 season, his first on the varsity, and he is the second guard in three years to be elected captain. L. G. "Floppy" Forquer, captain of the 1930 team, was also a guard.

Ralph "Babe" Wright, retiring captain of the 1931 team, was a tackle, and Davidson is the third consecutive lineman to be named captain. The last backfield man to lead the Kentuckians was Will Ed Covington, captain of the 1929

GEORGE SKINNER
Alternate Captain

Wildcats. Skinner, who is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Skinner, is also a lineman and plays a flank position. He succeeds John Sims "Shipwreck" Kelly as alternate captain.

Jack Strother, Grayson, will succeed Duke Johnson as manager of the team, it was announced.

In introducing the new captain, Wright said, "We have elected a man who will be out there 60 minutes of every game fighting for you. All that I can ask is that you veterans who will return and you freshman who will move into the varsity ranks give him the same loyalty and cooperation that you gave me."

Approximately 100 persons, including about 20 persons not connected with the university, attended the dinner. Judge Richard C. Stoll, who presided as toastmaster, lamented the fact that a larger number of towns people were not present.

WRITERS SELECT WRIGHT AS BEST TACKLE OF '31

(Editor's note: The following article is reprinted from the Lexington Herald for Sunday, Dec. 6.)

Captain Ralph "Babe" Wright of the Kentucky Wildcats was chosen the outstanding tackle of the year by a committee of 10 sports editors from New Orleans, Atlanta, Birmingham and Nashville at a meeting held at Atlanta and will receive a gold medal as a member of that all-Southern Conference football team, it was announced in their newspapers yesterday.

Wright was enthusiastically praised for his work in the Alabama and Tennessee games. Shipwreck Kelly and Frank Seale also received favorable comment from the editors.

The all-Southern Conference team was selected as follows:

Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane, end.
Ray Saunders, Tennessee, tackle.
John Scafile, Tulane, guard.
Clarence Gracey, Vanderbilt, center.

Herman Hickman, Tennessee, guard.

Babe Wright, Kentucky, tackle.
Vernon Smith, Georgia, end.
John Cain, Alabama, quarter.
Don Zimmerman, Tulane, half.
Gene McEver, Tennessee, half.
Nollie Felts, Tulane, fullback.

say: "Captain Ralph "Babe" Wright, of the University of Kentucky, was considered by the committee the outstanding tackle of the year. Wright weighs 210 pounds, stands six feet tall, yet was one of the fastest linemen in the conference. He was a 60-minute player and never was injured. Wright played his best against Kentucky's two strongest opponents—Alabama and Tennessee. He used his hands with devastating effect on defense and could vary his charge, teaming perfectly with his end to confound any offense set to keep him out of the backfield. His play in the Tennessee game was one of the greatest all around exhibitions given by any tackle this season.

"Seale, of Kentucky, a junior, was a most resourceful center, and was in a large way responsible for whatever success was attained by the Wildcats.

"Kelly demonstrated his worth in more than one game and wound up his career against Tennessee in glamorous style, outstanding all other players on the field. He is one of the best backs that has ever failed to land a berth on recognized all-Southerns."

'Cats Outplay V. M. I. Gridders By 20-12 Count

Without the service of Ellis Johnson, Cecil Urbaniak or Coach

Harry Gamage, the University of Kentucky Wildcats Saturday afternoon, November 14, outplayed the Flying Squadron of the Virginia Military Institute and chalked up the satisfactory score of 20 to 12. The game was played on the V. M. I. field at Lexington, Va., and although the weather was nearly perfect and the game was the occasion of the Cadets' homecoming, only 3,500 persons attended the contest.

"Shipwreck" Kelly flashed splendid form and gave the Virginians a dazzling exhibition of his speed and shiftiness. He gained consistently and made one run good for 69 yards and a touchdown in the third period.

Kercheval showed plenty of power in tearing through the Squadron's line; in fact, all the backs gained consistently and the score probably would have been much larger had not Coach Shively chosen to use his reserves freely.

The Cadets made all of their first downs, four in number, during the second quarter and three of these were on forward passes. They gained 99 out of their total 140 yards by the air route, but even at that their record was not impressive, since they tried 20 passes, 13 of which were grounded and two intercepted. Passes were hurled thick and fast, but Kentucky's pass defense showed up remarkably well against the aerial attack. Because the first string line was impenetrable, the Cadets were forced to take to the air.

Kentucky made 15 first downs, and gained 331 yards on straight football and 15 yards with three successful passes. These figures show more than does the score that V. M. I. was outplayed. The Wildcats lost ground on five occasions, but only for a total of 13 yards, while the Cadets were caught behind the line 10 times for a total loss of 30 yards. Another department in which the Kentucky players excelled the Virginians, and one in which they have excelled against all of their opponents this year, was in number and yardage of penalties received. The Wildcats were set back a total of 75 yards to a mere 30 for V. M. I. This old bugaboo has cost Kentucky at least one touchdown in practically every game this season, and it did not fail in the V. M. I. tussle.

'Cats Win From Florida 7-2 in Final Grid Tilt

Kentucky's Wildcats outplayed heat, a sandy field, and a hard-fighting Florida team to win from the Alligators 7 to 2 in the final Southern Conference game of the 1931 season, Saturday Dec. 5. The tussle took place in Fairfield stadium, Jacksonville, Florida, before a crowd of 10,000 persons, including more than 100 Kentuckians.

The victory placed Kentucky sixth in the Southern Conference, with four wins, two defeats, and two ties, and behind Tulane, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, and Maryland in the order named.

The Wildcats did not flash the same form that they displayed against the Vols, but they gave a fine exhibition of courage in the face of the unaccustomed heat. The big Kentucky linemen were so nearly exhausted by the heat that their playing became listless; yet it did not take the 'Gators long to find that the gains they would make through Kentucky's line would be few and far between. The first quarter ended with the ball on Florida's 12-yard line and second down for Kentucky. Kercheval went two yards on the first play in that second period, and then smashed over his left tackle, through Jenkins, who later blocked "Kerchie's" punt, for the remaining nine yards and the marker. With Johnson holding the ball, Captain Babe Wright sent a perfect placement through the up-rights for the extra point.

The Alligators' safety came later in the same period. Rogero punted over the 'Cats' goal line and it was Kentucky's ball on its 20-yard line. Kercheval hammered at center for three yards, but on the next play was dumped for a 7-yard loss. It was third down with 14 yards to go, and the sophomore punter dropped back to kick, but his attempted boot did not sail high in the air as it does customarily; the tackle who Kercheval dashed over for the touchdown eluded Kelly and leaped in front of the ball as it left "Kerchie's" foot. It took quick work on the part of Ellis Johnson to recover the ball over his own goal line for the safety which made the score 7 to 2.

ALFRED G. POWELL

Alfred G. Powell, for three years district representative of the United States Corporation, has entered the insurance field, joining W. Viley McFerran, widely-known Lexington insurance man, in the firm of McFerran & Powell.

George Yates

George Yates, of Elizabethtown, Kentucky's All-Southern center, will lead the Wildcat basketball team this season. The basketesters have been working for two months under the direction of Coach A. F.

Rupp while Yates has been with the football team. In this sport "Big Gawge" was also a star player, giving his best performance against Tennessee when he shifted from end to safety position, and filling the role of "Shipwreck" Kelly's running mate. The 1931-32 schedule follows:

Dec. 30—Marshall at Lexington.
Jan. 2—Clemson, at Lexington.
Jan. 8—U. of Detroit, at Detroit.
Jan. 14—Clemson at Clemson (ten)
Jan. 15—Ga. Tech at Atlanta (ten)
Jan. 16—Tennessee at Knoxville.
Jan. 21—Chattanooga at Lexington.
Jan. 30—W. & L. at Lexington.
Feb. 3—Vanderbilt at Nashville.
Feb. 6—Duke at Lexington.
Feb. 8—Alabama at Lexington.
Feb. 13—Tennessee at Lexington.
Feb. 15—Ga. Tech at Lexington.
Feb. 20—Vanderbilt at Lexington.

Election Brings Ballots From Many Localities

By BETTY HULETT

After counting the ballots for election of the alumni member of the board of trustees, it was found that Dr. George H. Wilson, Lexington, was the favorite of the majority of University of Kentucky alumni. Dr. Wilson received 631 votes. Dr. W. H. Grady, of Louisville, was second with a total of 557 votes, while E. B. Webb, Lexington, who is now the alumni member of the Board, received 493 votes.

These three names will be submitted to Governor Ruby Laffoon, Kentucky's new governor, and he will appoint one of them to serve on the Board.

University officials were well pleased with the number of ballots sent in. Eight hundred and forty-two people voted, the largest number ever to vote in any election at the university. This shows that alumni are becoming more and more interested in their Alma Mater.

It seems that those who have graduated more recently take more active interest in the university than do those who have been out for some time. Of the 842 ballots returned, over half of them were sent by people who had been graduated since 1920, and over a third of them had been graduated since 1925. In other words, 57.6% of the voters have been out of school ten years, and 39.3% have been out of school six years. Isn't this encouraging, so far as the younger generation is concerned? But how about the "old grads?" Shouldn't they take a more active interest in their Alma Mater, or have they lost interest? We hope that all graduates have love and loyalty for their University instilled within their hearts long before they have left her portals.

Many places were represented in the voting. Ballots were sent in from 41 states, District of Columbia, Cuba, Havana, Germany, Spain, and Siam.

Of course Kentucky led the rest of the states with a total of 504. Of this number, 198 were from Lexington. Louisville followed with a total of 60. The remainder of the Kentucky ballots were sent in from all parts of the State, east, west, north, and south.

New York State followed with a total of 36 ballots, 18 of which were from the metropolis. Ohio came third, that state sending in 29 replies, 10 of which were from Cincinnati.

Illinois and Pennsylvania tied for fourth place, having 25 each. However, Chicago sent in 20 of those from Illinois while those of Pennsylvania were scattered throughout the State.

The number of votes sent in by each locality is as follows: Kentucky 504, New York 36, Ohio 29, Illinois 25, Pennsylvania 25, New Jersey 20, Tennessee 16, Michigan 14, District of Columbia 14, Missouri 13, Indiana 12, Texas 11, California 9, Florida 9, Georgia 8, Alabama 7, Lexington 198, Louisville 60, New York City, 18, Cincinnati 10, Chicago 20.

Maryland 7, Oklahoma 7, West Virginia 6, North Carolina 6, Kansas 6, Virginia 5, South Carolina 5, Minnesota 4, Massachusetts 4, Iowa 3, New Mexico 3, Connecticut 3, Louisiana 3, Wisconsin 3, Arkansas 2.

Delaware 2, Washington State 2, Montana 2, Mississippi 2, Arizona 2, North Dakota 1, South Dakota 1, New Hampshire 1, Nebraska 1, Colorado 1, Utah 1, Cuba 1, Hawaii 1, Spain 1, Siam 1, and Germany 1.

Although this is the largest response ever recorded by the alumni Association, the balloting should have been much heavier. The University of Kentucky has over 6,000 living graduates, all of whom should vote in matters of such importance.

The three men whose names will be given to Governor Laffoon are outstanding in their various walks of life. Doctor Wilson is a capable and well-known physician of Lexington. Mr. Grady is a valuable member of the American Creosoting Company, of Louisville. Mr. Webb is engaged in real estate business in Lexington.

The Executive Committee feels that the alumni were very wise in both their nominating and voting. Governor Laffoon cannot make a mistake in his appointment from three such splendid men.

1897—Henry Clay Anderson is head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

1898—Wm. Thomas Carpenter is Lieutenant Colonel of the Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Totten, N. Y.

Campus News

Sir Ben Blessum, a native of Norway and at present the representative in the United States and Canada of the Norwegian Government Railway, spoke at the University of Kentucky, December 9, under the auspices of Pan Politikon, student organization for the study of International Relations, as the closing feature of a study program of Scandinavia, which has been under consideration during the fall months at the university.

Sir Ben's subject was "Modern Norway" and was given at a general convocation in Memorial hall on the university campus. Among other speakers on the Scandinavian program sponsored by Pan Politikon were Ole Singstad, Swedish Engineer, who addressed special assemblies in the College of Engineering November 25.

U. K. Holds Seventh Annual Rural School Tournament

The seventh annual rural school tournament was held at the University on Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14 with pupils from counties representing all sections of the state participating. The program consisted of music, achievement tests in scholarship and athletics and declamation.

Approximately 900 pupils, teachers, and county superintendents representing more than 40 counties from all sections of the state attended. The following counties with representatives attended: Anderson, Barren, Boone, Boyd, Calloway, Carroll, Boyle, Caldwell, Daviess, Elliott, Fayette, Fleming, Floyd, Garrard, Grant, Grayson, Greenup, Hardin, Harrison, Henderson, Henry, Kenton, Lawrence, Larue, Lewis, Logan, McCracken, Madison, Mercer, Montgomery, Morgan, Oldham, Scott, Owen, Nicholas, Pendleton, Powell, Rowan, Robertson, Shelby, Trimble, Webster, Woodford and Union.

The rural school tourney at the University of Kentucky is sponsored each year by the department of University Extension under the direction of Dr. Wellington Patrick, and concluded at noon on the second day with the awarding of trophies. Luncheon was served the students and their chaperones both days at the University Training school cafeteria at which time the visitors were guests of the university.

Enrollment Covers Practically Every County in State

The University of Kentucky's fall enrollment includes every county in the state except one. That county is Butler, of which Morgantown is the county seat. The student body this semester represents 33 states, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and China. One student is enrolled from each of the last named places.

Next to Kentucky, the largest number of students enrolled from any state comes from Illinois which has 51 residents at the University of Kentucky. New York is a close second with 50. The registration from other states follows:

Ohio, 39; West Virginia, 29; Indiana, 26; New Jersey, 15; Florida, 14; Pennsylvania, 13; Connecticut, 11; Virginia, 10; Missouri, 6; Arkansas, 5; Maryland, 5; Michigan, 5; Texas, 5; Wisconsin, 5; California, 4; District of Columbia, 4; Georgia, 4; South Carolina, 4; Colorado, 3; Massachusetts, 3; New Mexico, 3; North Carolina, 3; Kansas, 2; Iowa, 1; Nebraska, 1; Oklahoma, 1; Rhode Island, 1; and Minnesota, 1.

New Courses Added to University Curriculum

A course in X-Ray Technology, primarily for the benefit of Pre-Medical students and Bacteriology majors, will be offered for the first time at the University of Kentucky, beginning with the second semester of the 1931-32 school year, by the department of Physics.

The course will deal with the operation of X-Ray machines, from the physical analysis of the tube and accessory apparatus through the process of picture taking, development of pictures and positioning patients for pictures.

The introduction of this course into the University of Kentucky schedule is of particular interest because of the fact that a member of the University of Kentucky faculty was one of the first men in the United States to perfect his own X-Ray machine and successfully make pictures.

In 1895 Roentgen made the first discovery of the X-Ray in Germany, and as early as April, 1896, Professor James Pence, after having read newspaper accounts of Roentgen's discovery, had not only successfully made pictures, but had made his own X-Ray tube for the process. Even the pump, used to evacuate the X-Ray tube was made by Professor Pence, and is still in the possession of the Physics department at the university, together with an old fluoroscope, dated 1896.

Among other interesting courses in the various colleges of the University of Kentucky which will be introduced for the first time at the opening of the second semester in February is a course in "Industrial Arts for Elementary Teachers," offered by the College of Education which instructs teachers in the possibilities of development in elementary school children the ability for doing constructive hand work.

Other courses listed for February, to be offered for the first time are:

In the History department—"Expansion of Europe in the East" and "American Diplomatic History"—the last a seminar course for graduate students; in Philosophy a graduate course on "Plato and Aristotle"; a course in "Curriculum Construction for Elementary Teachers" in the College of Education; "Advanced Money and Banking" offered for the first time by the College of Commerce; a graduate course in "Research Statistics in the Commerce College; and a course in "County Government" and one in Government of Kentucky, both for upperclassmen in the department of Political Science, both of which have been given once before.

Betty Whipp Is Chosen Sponsor of U. of K. Men's Band

Elizabeth Whipp, sophomore in the College of Commerce, and member of Zeta Tau Alpha, social sorority, was elected new band sponsor December 7, in the annual election of the "Best Band in Dixie." She will succeed Virginia Dougherty, present sponsor, and will assume her duties at the beginning of next semester.

Miss Whipp is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Whipp, Liberty, Kentucky, and was active last year in the Women's Athletic association and Y. W. C. A. Her duties will consist of appearing with the band at all public appearances of that group and marching with the drum major on parade. Miss Dougherty, the present sponsor, will continue her services until the end of the present semester when Miss Whipp will assume her duties.
