Wells, Charles Wethington, Angene Wilson, Constance L. Wood*, Robert G. Zumwinkle*

The approval of the Minutes of the meeting of January 20, 1986, was postponed until the March meeting.

Chairman Canon made the following announcements:

"As you know, last year's Ombudsman, Chuck Ellinger, formed an ad hoc Committee on Cheating and Plagiarism and it is the intention of the Senate Council to bring its report to the Senate at the March meeting.

The Senate Council is developing policies for implementation and oversight of the General Studies Curriculum which was passed last week. We may bring this up at the March meeting, but I think more likely it will come up at the April meeting.

There are a couple of announcements about external relations. I saw some of you at the Rally on Higher Education in Frankfort last Wednesday. I think UK was well represented. We had a fairly big contingent, probably bigger than any university in the state except Kentucky State.

There is a statewide faculty leadership organization called the Coalition of Senate and Faculty Leaders made up of the senate and faculty leaders at the publicly supported state institutions. We had a meeting prior to the Rally and planned some lobbying activities for this session of the General Assembly. You will probably get in the mail a request for a donation for our lobbying activities. The goal of the coalition is as follows: basically we are trying to get full formula funding or as much as possible. We are seeking a minimum of six percent the first year and seven percent for the second year increases for faculty salaries. We are working to get a faculty member on the Council of Higher Education. We are having a hospitality suite open to legislators during Higher Education Emphasis Week early in March and the organization will also be having a banquet Friday, March 7, in Frankfort. Information on this banquet will be circulated to members of the Senate. You are all invited. Members of the legislature are invited. The featured speaker will be Governor Martha Layne Collins. On Saturday, March 8, there will be some workshops on various topics. They are: "How to Lobby Your Legislator" and "Discussion on the Role of the Council on Higher Education in Kentucky." There will be a panel on General Studies in Education, on faculty benefits and one on the role of faculty in academic governance. More information about that will be circulated. The Senate Council is trying to take advantage of what we see as a momentum building up to funding higher education in the state, and we are trying to do this through direct contact with members of the General Assembly as well as public relations activities.

The Senate Council wants to withdraw Item 5 C, the proposed addition to Rule IV, 2.4 pertaining to transfer between colleges of students dropped from a college but not from the University from today's agenda. There have been several suggestions that the language would allow some transfers to occur that we do not want to occur. Rather than to rewrite the proposal on the Senate floor, we have thought it best to withdraw the proposal, rewrite it, and present it again in March.

The Chair recognized Professor Joseph Bryant for the presentation of the honorary degree candidates as recommended by the Graduate School. Professor Bryant is the Chairman of the Honorary Degrees Committee and is also a former Chairman of the Senate Council. The Chairman reminded the Senate that the nominations are to remain confidential until they have been approved by the Board of Trustees. Following Professor Bryant's presentation, the senators voted unanimously to accept the four candidates for recommendation to the President.

The Chair recognized Professor Wilbur Frye, Chair-elect of the Senate Council. Professor Frye, on behalf of the Senate Council, moved approval of the proposed addition to University Senate Rules, Section IV, 2.1, Admission Requirements, Undergraduate Colleges. Professor Frye said the new requirement would require that all new freshmen and transfer students attend an Advising Conference as assigned at the time of admission unless excused by permission of the University Registrar in special circumstances and emergencies. This proposed addition was circulated to members of the Senate under date of January 31, 1986

A Senator asked why it was the University Registrar and not the Director of Admissions excusing attendance. Dr. Randall Dahl, University Registrar, said the Registrar's Office is administratively responsible for the Advising Conferences.

The motion passed unanimously on a voice vote and reads as follows:

Proposed: (New section is underlined)

IV 2.0 Admission Requirements

2.1 Undergraduate Colleges

Students who satisfy the basic admission requirements may register in any undergraduate college at the University except as additional entrance requirements are hereinafter stated.

All new freshman and transfer students are required to attend an Advising Conference as assigned at the time of admission unless excused by permission of the University Registrar in special circumstances and emergencies.

The University of Kentucky prefers that applicants for admission shall have taken the ACT examination. Applicants may be considered for admission, however, on the basis of Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores. The Director of Admissions shall establish annually an appropriate equivalency table of total SAT and ACT composite scores to be used with the established lower division selective admissions criteria. After approval by the Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards, this table shall be used by the Admissions Office in judging the acceptability of otherwise qualified applicants.
(US: 4/8/85)

Background and Rationale:

On March 21, 1983, the University Senate approved the University-wide selective admissions policy submitted by the Senate's Admissions and Academic Standards Committee. In subsequent codification of the relevant admissions section of the Senate Rules (Section IV, 2.0 and ff.), the provision for requiring Advising Conference attendance was inadvertently deleted. Since it was not the intention of the Admissions and Academic Standards Committee to delete this provision, the University Registrar has recommended that it be restored to the Senate Rules and the Senate Council concurs.

Implementation Date: Immediately

The Chair recognized Professor Wilbur Frye for the last agenda item. Professor Frye moved approval to waive the ten-day circulation rule. There was no objection and the Chair so ordered. Professor Frye, on behalf of the Senate Council, moved approval of the proposed change in University Senate Rules, Section III, 3.0 (i) relative to removing courses from the University Bulletin. This proposed change was circulated to members of the Senate under date of January 29, 1986. Professor Frye said because Chairman Canon had been involved in the proposal and had some strong feelings concerning the motion, he asked the Chairman to give the rationale. Chairman Canon said when he became the Senate Council Chairman he had been presented with a big list of courses that had not been taught within four or more years. The Senate Rules provide that the Senate Council remove such courses from the Bulletin unless the college asks for their retention. If retention is requested, the Council then considers the request on its merits. Often the explanations accompanying retention requests are something like a vague hope that a new faculty member will come along and be able to teach the course sometime in the future. Sometimes no explanation accompanies the retention request. This year there were over 500 courses listed in the Bulletin that had not been taught in four or more years and colleges asked that about 80 percent of them be retained. The chairman counted 65 such courses that had not been taught in a decade. The Senate Council believes the solution to this problem is to provide an automatic mechanism for removal of courses if they have not been taught for four years, but to preserve the existence of courses for another four years.

In the discussion that followed Professor Hans Gesund asked (1) how students would know about the content of a course offered after it had been removed from the Bulletin, and (2) when the new rule is implemented, would courses not taught for more than four years have a lesser time for remaining in the course file and would courses not taught for eight years be automatically purged? Professor Gesund also proposed that instead of removing courses from the Bulletin, that courses not taught in more than four years be asterisked. University Registrar, Randall Dahl, said in reviewing the proposed rule change and examining the logistical difficulties associated with implementation careful planning would be essential. He said the Registrar's Office was in favor of this kind of policy which would save about 15 pages from the Bulletin. He said in the procedures developed with an appropriate Senate committee the Registrar's Office would be working very carefully to coordinate published information in implementing the proposed change and would need some flexibility to handle the logistics.

Professor Jesse Harris' reaction to the proposal was positive. His objection to the proposed amendment was that if there were several hundred courses with asterisks beside them, he did not feel it would look good in the catalog. He felt eight years was also a reasonable length of time. Professor John Rea was bothered because there was no notification procedure to a department or college. He wanted some machinery whereby the Registrar's Office would notify the department when courses were deleted from the catalog. This would provide the possibility of appeal. The Chair had no objection to Professor Rea's suggestion, but he did not feel this would have to be incorporated into the University Rules. Professor Harris felt that a listing of the courses with their status and original catalog descriptions should be sent to the departments at registration.

In answer to Professor Gesund's second question, Chairman Canon said that if the proposal were adopted then next year all courses, no matter how far in the past they had been taught, would be considered not having been taught in four years. Courses would not be automatically purged that had not been taught in eight years.

Professor Gesund moved an amendment to:

"Instead of removing courses from the catalog the Registrar shall flag the course with a statement to the effect that the course was last taught at a certain time."

The motion was seconded by Professor James Hougland who said the Senate should not only be concerned about the truth in advertising issue but also the issue of nonadvertising. He felt having a description of courses during the eight-year period would be providing a valid service. The University Registrar, Randall Dahl, said since a number of procedures would need to be worked out to make the proposal operational, he could support the spirit of the suggestion but wanted the Registrar's Office to have some leeway in noting courses in jeopardy of being dropped in order to deal with that in an efficient manner. He was not really sure how the office would be able to implement the suggestion. He noted an alternative might be to list those courses (by title only) that have not been taught for a specified period of time at the end of the Bulletin.

Professor McMahon said the College of Law did not use the descriptions that were in the Bulletin. Each semester their Dean's Office distributes a pamphlet of courses and descriptions that are being taught, and he felt this was more cost efficient than keeping the information in the Bulletin. Professor Robert Altenkirch said the College of Engineering circulated new course descriptions among departments and had no problem in getting students to register for the course. Professor Gesund said there was a problem in getting information to students outside the individual colleges. He felt the extra cost of printing additional pages in the Bulletin was not that large. Professor Thomas Ingram felt the trade off of supplying more information to the student versus a potential ambiguous situation was not good. He felt students would want to know when the course would be taught. He did not want to give outside students more ambiguous information than they are already getting. He supported not printing a date when a course was last offered because it was incomplete information. The previous question was moved, seconded and passed. The Gesund Amendment to flag courses which have not been taught for four or more years and keep the descriptions in the catalog failed with a voice vote. The proposal to drop courses from the catalog after four years but keep them in the University course file for an additional four years passed in a voice vote and reads as follows:

Proposed change:

III 3.0 i. If a course has not been taught in the classroom, by extension, or by correspondence within a four year period, the Registrar shall remove the description of the course from the University Bulletin. A course so removed from the Bulletin shall remain in the University course file for an additional four years (unless the college requests its removal). During the additional four year period, the college may offer the course and, if it is taught, the Registrar shall restore its description to the University Bulletin. If it is not taught within the four year period, the course shall be removed from the University course file.

Rationale:

Currently, Senate Rule III - 3.0 (i) provides that all courses not taught within the last four years be removed from the University Bulletin unless the college teaching it gives an adequate reason to the Senate Council for retaining it. Every year we go through the following ritual: Colleges are sent a list of all their courses not taught within four years; they may allow some to be removed, but they ask that most be retained. The reasons vary. Often it is simply a vague hope that a faculty member hired in the future will be able to teach the course. This year, there were over 500 courses listed in the Bulletin that had not been taught in the last four years and the colleges asked that nearly 80% of them be retained.

The system clearly is not working. The Senate Council lacks both the expertise and the time to decide upon these retention requests. Moreover, the Senate Rules require that the Senate Council consult with Graduate, Undergraduate or Medical Center Councils as appropriate before making a purgation decision. Consequently, the Senate Council has almost always simply accepted the colleges' retention requests. As a result, there are numerous courses on the books which have not been taught for years. This year we counted 65 courses for which retention was requested which had not been taught in a decade.

The Senate Council believes there is a truth in advertising problem here. We are saying in the Bulletin that we are teaching a lot of courses which in fact we are not teaching, with many of them not likely to be taught in the near future. Moreover, the Visiting Committee Report of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in its 1982 accreditation review severely criticized the University of Kentucky for its listing of large numbers of untaught courses.

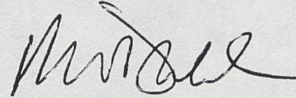

The Senate Council believes the solution to this problem is to (a) automatically remove courses from the Bulletin if they have not been offered in the past four years, and (b) divide courses into two categories, those listed in the Bulletin, and those retained in the Registrar's file for an additional four years after removal from the Bulletin, and (c) allow courses taught during the second four year period to be automatically reinserted in the Bulletin.

If this solution is adopted, the four year removal rule will operate automatically and no longer be a "dead letter" because of the difficulties of actually invoking it. The Bulletin will once again reflect what is actually being taught at UK. Courses removed from the Bulletin, however, will not "disappear" and can be offered at will for another four years. Thus colleges and departments will not have to fear removal because they might hire someone in the near future who can teach a course or that a sudden demand for it might develop among students. And if it is taught during that period, the course would automatically reappear in the Bulletin.

Effective Date: Fall, 1986.

The meeting adjourned at 3:55 p.m.

UNIVERSITY SENATE COUNCIL
10 ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

29 January 1986

TO: Members, University Senate

FROM: University Senate Council

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 10, 1986. Proposed change in University Senate Rules, Section III, 3.0 (i) relative to removing courses from the University Bulletin.

Current Rule:

III 3.0 i. If a course has not been taught in the classroom, by extension or correspondence, within a four-year period, the Registrar's office shall notify the Senate Council. This Council will then notify the Dean of the College in which the course is located of the intention to remove it from the University course file. If the College does not concur that the course should be dropped, it will so state in writing to the Senate Council, within twenty-one (21) days of date of notification, together with the reasons for its recommendation. If the Senate Council (after consultation with appropriate Councils) does not agree with the recommendation to retain the course, or if no statement is received within the prescribed period of time, the Senate Council shall authorize the Registrar's office to remove the course from the University course file, with a copy of said authorization to the College involved.

Proposed:

III 3.0 i. If a course has not been taught in the classroom, by extension, or by correspondence within a four year period, the Registrar shall remove the description of the course from the University Bulletin. A course so removed from the Bulletin shall remain in the University course file for an additional four years (unless the college requests its removal). During the additional four year period, the college may offer the course and, if it is taught, the Registrar shall restore its description to the University Bulletin. If it is not taught within the four year period, the course shall be removed from the University course file.

Rationale:

Currently, Senate Rule III - 3.0 (i) provides that all courses not taught within the last four years be removed from the University Bulletin unless the college teaching it gives an adequate reason to the Senate Council for retaining it. Every year we go through the following ritual: Colleges are sent a list of all their courses not taught within four years; they may allow some to be removed, but they ask that most be retained. The reasons vary. Often it is simply a vague hope that a faculty member hired in the future will be able to teach the course. This year, there were over 500 courses listed in the Bulletin that had not been taught in the last four years and the colleges asked that nearly 80% of them be retained.

The system clearly is not working. The Senate Council lacks both the expertise and the time to decide upon these retention requests. Moreover, the Senate Rules require that the Senate Council consult with the Graduate, Undergraduate or Medical Center Councils as appropriate before making a purgation decision. Consequently, the Senate Council has almost always simply accepted the colleges' retention requests. As a result, there are numerous courses on the books which have not been taught for years. This year we counted 65 courses for which retention was requested which had not been taught in a decade.

The Senate Council believes there is a truth in advertising problem here. We are saying in the Bulletin that we are teaching a lot of courses which in fact we are not teaching, with many of them not likely to be taught in the near future. Moreover, the Visiting Committee Report of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in its 1982 accreditation review severely criticized the University of Kentucky for its listing of large numbers of untaught courses.

The Senate Council believes the solution to this problem is to (a) automatically remove courses from the Bulletin if they have not been offered in the past four years, and (b) divide courses into two categories, those listed in the Bulletin, and those retained in the Registrar's file for an additional four years after removal from the Bulletin, and (c) allow courses taught during the second four year period to be automatically reinserted in the Bulletin.

If this solution is adopted, the four year removal rule will operate automatically and no longer be a "dead letter" because of the difficulties of actually invoking it. The Bulletin will once again reflect what is actually being taught at UK. Courses removed from the Bulletin, however, will not "disappear" and can be offered at will for another four years. Thus colleges and departments will not have to fear removal because they might hire someone in the near future who can teach a course or that a sudden demand for it might develop among students. And if it is taught during that period, the course would automatically reappear in the Bulletin.

Effective Date: Fall, 1986.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Chancellors, Deans, Department Chairs and Directors

FROM: Bradley C. Canon, Chairman BCC

RE: Change in University Senate Rules relating to removal of courses from the University Bulletin

This is to let you know that on February 10th the University Senate changed Rule III - 3.0 (i) relating to removal of courses from the University Bulletin. A copy of the current and new rules is attached along with the rationale for the change.

Under the new rule, a course number, name and description will automatically be removed from the Bulletin whenever a course has not been taught for four years. However, the course will remain a viable part of the University's course file for an additional four years. If taught during that time, the course listing will automatically be restored to the Bulletin. If not taught during the next four years, the course will be automatically deleted from the University course file and will no longer exist.

The new rule takes effect in the 1986-87 year. All courses initially removed from the Bulletin next year will be kept in the University course file for an additional four years no matter how long it has been since they were actually taught.

The Senate Council office will give a one year warning by notifying college deans about each course that has not been taught for the past three and seven years. It will also notify college deans when courses are removed from the Bulletin and from the University course file.

30 January 1986

TO: Members, University Senate

FROM: University Senate Council

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 10, 1986. Proposed addition to University Senate Rules, Section IV, 2.4, Transfer Between Colleges

Current Rule:

IV 2.4 Transfer Between Colleges

Students eligible to attend the University may transfer from one college to another, including professional colleges, at times specified by the college deans and the Registrar. In every instance the entrance requirements of the college to which the student is transferring must be satisfied.

Proposed Addition:

However, no college may deny admission, solely on the basis of the student's grade point average or quality point deficit, to a student seeking to transfer to that college from another college within the University, if the student meets all of the other requirements for admission to the college to which the student has applied for transfer, and such student would not have been academically suspended from such college on the basis of his or her grade point average or quality point deficit had the student been enrolled in that college at the time he or she achieved said grade point average or quality point deficit. If such student would have been placed on academic probation by the college to which he or she is transferring if the student had been previously enrolled in such college, then the college to which the student is transferring may place such student on academic probation at the time of admission.

Rationale:

On May 6, 1985, the University Senate amended Rule V - 3.1.7 (attached) to make it clear that a student dropped from a college or program with retention standards higher than the University retention standards based on quality point deficit was not dropped from the University but only from the college or program. The language of the amendment, which was thought to implement this intent is as follows:

Students suspended from a college or program because such college or program has requirements more stringent than general University requirements, may transfer to another college or program provided they are eligible for such transfer under the policies of that college or program.

Rule IV - 2.4 authorizes colleges to establish entrance requirements for students attempting to transfer into the college from another college within the University. Since the enactment of the amendment to Rule V - 3.1.7 experience has demonstrated that some students who have been dropped from colleges with selective retention programs but who have an insufficient quality point deficit to be dropped from the University do not meet the minimum requirements for admission by transfer to those colleges in the University with the least restrictive requirements for admission and retention. Thus, students who have not been dropped officially from the University under Rule V - 3.1.7 have nevertheless been effectively suspended from the University due to the operation of Rule IV - 2.4 governing transfer between colleges within the University.

This is contrary to the intent of the amendment to Rule V - 3.1.7, and the proposed amendment to Rule IV - 2.4 will bring the letter of the Rules into conformity with the intent. Under the proposed rule the standards for admission to a college by transfer from another college within the University may be no more stringent than the retention standards imposed by that college for students already enrolled in that college. For example, if a student enrolled in college X, that required students to have a GPA of 2.5 for both admission and retention, achieved a GPA of 1.99 but had not accumulated a quality point deficit of 15 points sufficient to be dropped from the University, the student could be dropped by college X and would have the right to transfer to any other college that would not drop a student with a GPA of 1.99 and a quality point deficit identical to that of the student in question. On the other hand, the student would not have the right to transfer to a college that suspended students who failed to maintain a GPA of at least 2.0 while enrolled in the college.

The proposed rule does, however, allow colleges to enforce any other entrance requirements. This generally refers to admission requirements, other than grade point average, described in Rules IV - 2.2 and 2.3, although it is not intended to be limited to those criteria currently set forth in the Rules, but also to encompass those that may from time to time be applicable.

The final proviso of the proposed rule preserves to the college to which a student is transferring the power to place a transfer student on academic probation at the time of admission. In determining whether a transfer student is to be admitted on academic probation, the college is to apply the same standards (including discretion) that are applied to students previously enrolled in the college. If the student would have been placed on academic probation if previously enrolled in the college to which he or she is transferring, then it is contemplated that the student should be placed on academic probation when he or she is admitted to the college by transfer.

University Senate Agenda Item: IV 2.4
30 January 1986

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 10, 1986. Proposed addition to University Senate Rules, Section IV, 2.1, Admission Requirements, Undergraduate Colleges.

Current Rule:

IV 2.0 Admission Requirements

2.1 Undergraduate Colleges

Students who satisfy the basic admission requirements may register in any undergraduate college at the University except as additional entrance requirements are hereinafter stated.

The University of Kentucky prefers that applicants for admission shall have taken the ACT examination. Applicants may be considered for admission, however, on the basis of Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores. The Director of Admissions shall establish annually an appropriate equivalency table of total SAT and ACT composite scores to be used with the established lower division selective admissions criteria. After approval by the Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards, this table shall be used by the Admissions Office in judging the acceptability of otherwise qualified applicants. (US: 4/8/85)

Proposed: (New section is underlined)

IV 2.0 Admission Requirements

2.1 Undergraduate Colleges

Students who satisfy the basic admission requirements may register in any undergraduate college at the University except as additional entrance requirements are hereinafter stated.

All new freshman and transfer students are required to attend an Advising Conference as assigned at the time of admission unless excused by permission of the University Registrar in special circumstances and emergencies.

Background and Rationale:

On March 21, 1983, the University Senate approved the University-wide selective admissions policy submitted by the Senate's Admissions and Academic Standards Committee. In subsequent codification of the relevant admissions section of the Senate Rules (Section IV, 2.0 and ff.), the provision for requiring Advising Conference attendance was inadvertently deleted. Since it was not the intention of the Admissions and Academic Standards Committee to delete this provision, the University Registrar has recommended that it be restored to the Senate Rules and the Senate Council concurs.
