

of you in London again for Carlyle's sake. He ought never to walk without an arm. His back bleeds sometimes. Backwards so that he has a difficulty in keeping his balance and has recourse to the attempts

Warmly yours
J A Roberts

2
1
2
2

NAWORTH CASTLE,
BRAMPTON,
CUMBERLAND.

Sept 1.

My dear Atteridge

I am much obliged to you about Pickering. I sent the Lucian .. addressed <sup>simply</sup> to Profalgan Square .. as I forgot the number .. but as I find the same address in this note I am afraid you the other side
The "Dialogues" which begins

on sheet 57. had letter be printed across the page. (not in double column). You can have it in smaller type if you please. but not very small. as it is the kernel of the text my own part of the matter being merely the skin and tin shells. My address will be here for another week. afterwards for ten days I shall be at the Spiddings Millhouse

Kewick
Thence about the 20th to go to Lord Berkeley at Knowlton and thence home.
I am glad to think

9326

FROUDE, JAMES ANTHONY (1818-1894).
Historian. Brampton.

A.L.S. to William Allingham (1824-1889).
1 Sept., n.y. 4p. (double sheet, octavo).
With embossed address of Naworth Castle, Brampton.

He speaks at some length about a translation he is working on, and gives forwarding addresses.
He is glad Allingham is in London, for Carlyle's sake, and mentions Carlyle's health. Allingham was at this time Froude's assistant in editing Fraser's Magazine.
In view of Froude's later writings, the reference to Carlyle is particularly interesting.

Sept. 1

My dear Allingham

I am much obliged to you about Pickering I sent the Lucian - addressed simply to Trafalgar Square - as I forgot the number - but as I put the same address on this note - if one finds you the other will.

The "Dialogue" which begins on sheet 5, had better be printed across the page (not in double columns). You can have it in smaller type if you please - but not very small, as it is the kernel of the nut my own part of the[.....] being merely the skin and the shell. My address will be here for another week. Afterwards for ten days I shall be at the Speddings,[.....] house - Keswick. Thence about the 20th we go to Lord Derbys at Knowsley and thence home.

I am glad to think of you in London again for Carlyle's sake. He ought never to walk without an arm. His back bends sometimes backwards so that he has a difficulty in keeping his balance.

Our best regards to Mrs. Allingham

Warmly [?] yours

J. A. Froude