if I can do ought to introduce it to the notice of the Editor
if I think there is a chance of doing so
to any purpose - but these notes or letters require some fact &
address not to risque
doing harm rather than good - of the best I have written
no one would do for another - such sort
of addresses if not as far appropriate to the respective parties - as they can be made with due regard to consistency & self respect - can have no possible use - I have had some correspondence with the conductor of another & more formidable Journal - through a personal friend of his -

so I need not write
to him through you
but if I see a chance of the Book being noticed in that Journal I will direct you to send a copy of the Book to said Editor
I had a note from Six Robt. Peck yesterday giving me directions
where to leave his copy - which he is pleased to say he
"shall highly value"
I told him honestly he would find its Politics wore of no Party -
All this letter
- writing, mind, I tell thee of, in confidence

so let it be between ourselves - I do not write to all these sort of people from choice but simply that I may neglect no fair
honorable means of making the Book
known in quarters
which I think may serve it, and you.
You need not therefore fear that I shall ask you to give away a single copy in any quarter where I do not think there is a fair chance of its
selling you a dozen,
or a score, eventually.

In haste truly
yours
