My dear Sir Baldwin

I did misread your letter.
and now without limitation
I agree in all ways with the work you have in hand.
Two years ago I wrote in a Paper in this sense.
I gudge every young man &
every strong arm that is with,

from the industries of Ireland,
This it was I meant by
'clearance'

Perhaps things can only be done in their time, but I have wondered that Government has been so slow.

For two years hunger, &
nakedness & misery nights
have been rampant.

These are the things that drive a people mad: &

make good men extreme, &
bad men dangerous.

I am rejoiced that you will take it up in front of Parliament.

I would subscribe if it were
in my power: but my poor flock makes me poor as they are.

Believe me, always
Yours very truly,

H. P. Card: Archbishop
