My dear Mr. Whitbread

I am so glad to have your letter. It was the day before its arrival that I saw Lady James, whom I was asking about you.
I think it was so wise leaving the old home - and beginning a New, altho' a sad life.

I am sure having Mr. Nesbitt & her daughter with you will be a comfort. for they knew well all you have lost.

I am not pleased with Lord Statherley's life. Every one agrees with me that it is badly done.

It does no justice either to his legal or private character.

Even I could have given him some charming & interesting anecdotes about his Uncle.
