Dear Friend

I scarcely dare to write to you and yet I cannot refrain.
I need not tell you how truly I grieve with you in this great sorrow - only those who have gone through such afflictions know the depth of their waters. You have lost the companionship of one of the sweetest ladies I have met.

I know your devotion to duty will be a great stay to you, and may I say with trusting assurance too sacred matters that believing as I do in the great hereafter, we must find comfort in the words
"What I do thou knowest but now but thou shalt know hereafter."

Your faithful and affectionate friend

Aberstone
