January 2^d 1824

The Sheriff of the County of Middlesex with their note, having received a copy of Windsor Jones together with a bill for the same - to w^{ch} the said Sheriff having been applied to for the purchase of it, to the direction being for the execution of the said Sheriff, the death was his being so obliged to enquire into it; & whether the person was entitled to possess the same, the Sheriff will therefore be bound to return it - to w^{ch} it after happens that publication is now - I proceed without any delay whatsoever. -

Said the Sheriff has no recollection having heard that such a copy was in the hands -

I thank you with all my heart for your kind note, & I should be much delighted to comply by your kind proposals, but I have this "bad a cold" & the matter is every respect, I am almost afraid of writing - The Prof has will I am expecting feel much your attention & I hope to see, which I will not fail to do when he returns from his visit to-day here - I say she is gone there I will let you know her decision immediately - I hope you see well & I am ever
Dear Sir

Yours

...women as here. I'm all for repairing our Ain' prongs & fighting our ain' battles.
But when the hour of trouble comes, to the mind or to the body. It seldom may it visit your Ladyship, & when the hour of death comes, that comes to high flood, long & late be it yours. I my Lady's what we have done for ourself's but what he has done for others that we think our most pleasantly. And the thoughts that ye have interposed to spare the poor thing's life, will be sweet in that hour.
Come when it may, than if a word of your Mouth could hang the hail Porteous Mob, at the tail of a tow."
He is dead, & gone to his place, & they that have slain him (Porteous) must answer for their ain act, but my Sister — my fair Sister Effie, still lives — tho' her days & hours are numbered! She still lives, & a word of the King's Mouth, might restore her to a broken hearted old man, that never, in his daily & nightly Exercise, forgot to pray, that his Majesty might be blessed with a long & prosperous reign, & that his Throne & that of his Posterity might be established in righteousness; O, Madam, if ever, I
