

Uxbridge, Cheshampton
March 29, 1817

Sir,

My friend Wrangham has been kind enough to write to you requesting your attendance on the Severn exemption bill, the passing of which is of considerable importance to me.

As by the desire of Government, it is postponed to the next session, you certainly ought not to be troubled with this. Nor should I have obtruded myself upon you, if I were not aware of an active canvass against the bill on the grounds of private interest.

If we may have the favor of your attendance in your place when the measure is brought before Parliament next year by my brother in law Protheroe, I feel confident of your being convinced that we ask for nothing but justice at the hands of the legislature.

I have the honor to be

Sir

Your most devoted servt
