Graduates Hear Hamilton At 78th Commencement

Judge Makes Plea For Lasting Peace

Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton told the 338 graduates, including those of the 1944 summer school, and the 4000 persons attending the 78th annual commencement exercises, held on Stoll Field June 1, that circumstances today seem more favorable than at any time in the past for the establishment of an enduring peace.

"The blood of young men of our country has sanctified the lands of all the earth," he declared. "Their bodies lie eternally sleeping on the floor of every sea and the broken wings of their planes dot every mountain top around the world. They had a rendezvous with death which they gloriously kept in the hope that their sacrifices would not be in vain. We who take the torch fallen from their lifeless hands have rendezvous with life. We must keep our covenant with the dead."

President Herman L. Donovan, who presided at the exercises, saluted the graduating seniors as the first "all-war-time" class in the history of the University.

Prof. Ezra L. Gillis, former University registrar who has been a member of the faculty for 40 years, was cited for "meritorious services to the University."

Honorary degrees were conferred on Mrs. Margaret Voorhies Haggin, donor of a trust fund in honor of her late husband James B. Haggin, multi-millionaire copper magnate; Dr. William H. McAdams, professor of chemical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Eli Lilly, Indianapolis chemist.

A fourth honorary degree will be conferred on Don Whitehead, former University student now an Associated Press war correspondent, when he returns to this country.

The academic procession entered the stadium while the University band played "Under the Double Eagle." Two rows of American flags, carried by 50 members of the ASTR unit, formed an aisle for the procession. Other flags flanked the stage on which Allied flags flew. The University service flag hung in the center of the stage, while the entire grouping was topped by a huge American flag.

WELCOME, SUMMER STUDENTS

Congratulations to those students who have returned to the University to enter the fourth quarter of the 1944-45 school year. The summer quarter is no longer considered a "summer school." It is an opportunity for students to complete their education in the shortest time possible, so that they may take their places in the post-war world.

By attending the University under the quarter system, the student is enabled to complete a full four-year college education in a much shorter time. He is then prepared to adapt himself to the reconstruction problems which shall arise when the nation is returned to peace.

This University is only one of the many educational institutions throughout the nation which has adopted this plan. Not only does the average student benefit by it, but also the returning veteran who desires to complete, as rapidly as possible, the education which he may have started several years ago — before the United States became involved in war.

The University congratulates and welcomes the men and women who are attending the University during the summer quarter, preparing to enter the post-war world with a whole-hearted desire to fill their individual places in restoring the country to lasting peace.

The summer quarter really promises great things—75-minute classes, the girls wearing their hair in pig-tails, and warm weather—maybe.

Things really started out in a confusing way when we began looking for the Journalism department. After searching through McVey hall for twenty minutes we finally went to Dr. Plummer's office and found our old classroom, then we went to our old classroom and found Dr. Plummer's office. He had moved to the business office which is in another old classroom and that old classroom is now a typing room—which we have yet to find—the classroom we mean.

The AST's say there are a lot of new welcome faces on the campus and they even appreciate the old students after last week. It seems that there were nothing but men around and after one girl passed the barracks, the dispensary had to set three broken necks and six legs. Patients are expected to live however.

Pvt. Burt Kreindel told us he was going to make an analysis on the effects of alcohol using himself as an experiment. We took this with a grain of wood, and nearly collapsed when we saw Burt in the library taking out a book titled "The History of Beverages."

We were aware that the draft boards were really having a hard time filling their quotas but we hadn't realized how bad the situation was until Marian Yates received a sharp notice, from the board asking her why "he" hadn't registered. Marian, in case you didn't know, is one of our cutest coeds.
