FPHA Rules On New Rents For C-Town

New Federal Public Housing Authority rent rates for Cooperstown went into effect Wednesday, Frank D. Peterson, University comptroller, announced today.

The new rents are scaled according to the provisions of the Lanham Act which requires that rents in a federal housing project be adjusted according to the renter's income. The scale is a national one made and approved by FPHA, Peterson said. On a national basis, it differs with differing areas.

The previous rates charged a flat price of $27.50 for a single-bedroom house and $29.50 for a double-bedroom house. The new rates charge less for low incomes and more for higher incomes. For instance, to take the high and the low rents, a veteran earning more than $9 per month but less than $95 per month will be charged $22.50 for a trailer unit, $28.50 for a single-bedroom house and $28.50 for a double-bedroom house. A veteran earning more than $140 but less than $145 per month will be charged $28 for a trailer unit, $34 for a single-bedroom house and $41 for a double-bedroom house. Rates vary between these figures.

Current Play, 'Three's A Family', Is Guignol's 150th Production

"Three's A Family," a hilarious comedy by Phoebe and Henry Ephron, which opens May 6, rounds out eighteen years of theatrical entertainment at the sequentennial production at Guignol theater.

The play, directed by Wallace N. Briggs, begins with a household of three in a small apartment in New York City—the apartment of the middle-aged Whitakers, Sam and Frances, and Mrs. Whitaker's sister, Mrs. Burtell, played by Larry Tucker, Benice Linville, and Charlotte Corn, respectively.

Very soon, however, it becomes a household of five when the Whitaker's daughter Kitty, portrayed by Sue Ann Turley, moves in with her baby, her husband having gone to war. A great deal of baby furniture moves in with them and Irma is relegated to the living room couch, which opens at night into a highly unmanageable bed.

Eventually, it becomes a household of seven when the Whitaker's son, Archie, played by John Rembo, and his wife, Hazel, played by Ridgely Park, decide to have their baby on their own because the hospital are full up.

At the final curtain it has become a household of eight, not counting various maids who come and go, and whose idiosyncrasies add to the gaiety. Added to this, there is Dr. Bartell, portrayed by Edmund Mills, whose professional visits mark the peak of the fun.

Others in the cast include: Adelaide, the maid, Alice Dean; a delivery man, James Sawyer; Eugene Mitchell, Ray Marcus; two moving men, Henry Foushee and James Steiner; another maid, Mary Mulligan; a girl, Betty Tuttle; Joe Franklin, Jack Penton; and Marion Franklin, Betty Harris Russell.

The box office is now open, and all seats are reserved. Admission, sixty cents for University students and one dollar for all others. All students must present student books for identification when purchasing tickets.

Our Problem. Our Future

The battle over price control in Washington seems far removed from the University campus. But if the prices were turned loose students would be among the first to suffer, from the inflation that would certainly result.

Whether it is OPA or some other body which guides business through this economic crisis does not matter, but inflation must be avoided some way.

Washington seems far distant, but the legislation enacted there within the next few weeks is just as vital to us as college students as it is to the builders, or homemakers, farmers and businessmen.

CAMPUS SCENE

JUST PICNICS, THAT'S ALL: Ah! Sunlit rocks and rills Inside the ten-mile limit, How could so many wooded hills Ever be crowded in 147?

Oh, Temple of Nature, the I tread, With unshed feet all shorn, The wild rose incense goes to my head, And to my bare toes a thorn.

I love the breeze, It carries the pollen, It brings the sweet, That fallin' pollen.

Aside from Nature, this is luncheon, All and ant and sand-strewn, sure, So when on a barbecue I'm munching, I thank the Lord I'm pure.

Nature lovers, arise, arise; Lift your heads and sing! Poison-ivy tortois, pollenized eyes, It certainly is SPRING!

Blues Play Whites Tonight At 8 In Preview Of 1946 Football Team

Athletic Ticket Book To Be Used As Admission

The first public appearance of the 1946 edition of the football team will be under the surveillance of approximately 10,000 watchful and anxious persons. Even the least interested spectator will be a dent critic tonight when Coach Bear Bryant trots out his squad to give the fans a chance to see what he has done to bring Kentucky out of its long sleep in the cellar. Since the beginning of the current spring practices the gridiron hopefuls have shown considerable improvement in blocking and tackling and recent sessions indicate that the engagement tonight will be a real battle. When Bryant first divided the team into the blue and white squads he gave the blue team the advantage but since then he has transferred Halbacks Jesse Tunstall and Carroll Jacobs and Quarterback J. B. Chiploch to the white squad for Halbacks Bill Chambers and Bernard Schuffedercker and Quarterback Robert Bentley. Bryant's idea was give the blue team a stronger backfield and the white team the stronger line but since the rivalry has become so keen between the opposing players he has evened up the two teams. The way the two teams are matched now the game will probably end in a tie in a see-saw battle up and down the field.

The game will start at 8 p.m. and students will be admitted on the athletic ticket books that were used during the basketball season. New students will be admitted with the receipt for tuition fees. This will also apply to baseball games.

Time Out!

By O. C. Halvard Jr.
We received two very good and almost identical suggestions about improving spring sports at Kentucky from two different persons, each unaware that the other had made the suggestion. One is a student here at school and the other is a professor.

The student referred to in a column we wrote on February 22 in which we suggested securing an excess hangar from the Army to use as temporary provision for the basketball games during the period it will take to build the field house. In that column we mentioned that after the field house was finished, the hangar would not be a loss to the University. At that time we suggested that it might be used for indoor tennis practice.

Since we started crusading for better provisions and more interest in spring sports, we have thought of that suggestion several times. And now that others are beginning to think it would be a good idea, maybe it would be the logical solution for the problem.

We understand the Athletic Department is now looking for an excess hangar large enough to seat from nine to 12 thousand spectators, to act as temporary housing for the basketball games until the new field house is finished. This is a wonderful idea, and with the number of persons demanding to see the Wildcats play basketball, such a hangar could easily be paid for in a short time.

After the need for the hangar at a field house is over, the Athletic Department will have a perfect opportunity to give the Spring Sport a tremendous boost. For a small additional fee, which would be minute compared to the thousands being and going to be spent for other sports, the University could have indoor provisions for the early practice of Spring Sports as outlined in previous columns.

SEC and Big Ten in Spring Sports.
At the present time we have several good athletes attending the University and participating in minor sports without scholarships, athletes that would be good in any school in the country. The least we could do to encourage them to stay at Kentucky and encourage others to come here would be to provide adequate facilities for the fielding of first rate teams in their sports. There are plenty of boys who are not looking for a scholarship to play the game, but like to play for the love of the game. If Kentucky could on top in minor sports like we already do in basketball and are

Such a boost from the Athletic Department would show a definite interest by them in Spring Sports. An interest without which we might as well scrap any plan for competing with schools in the working do in football, these boys would have an added reason to some to the Bluegrasses. But unless something is done soon to help that we plan on boosting the minor sports, these boys are going to school for a more extensive athletic program.

The alumni and the students wholeheartedly get behind the program to rejuvenate the football team. Let's don't stop here, if we plan to be on top in sports we have to be able to beat the big team consistently. We've tried to do our part by presenting the idea and facts to you, now it's up to you. How about it?

Don't forget, if we're going to participate in a sport, let's be able to play any school and win.

Tennis Team On Southern Trip; Play Cincinnati Here Wednesday

By "Hal Yard"
Kentucky's tennis team will return home late Sunday from their five-day trip through Tennessee and Georgia, and start preparing for their final two weeks of competition. The Wildcats left Tuesday afternoon for the trip after losing to the University of Cincinnati in the Queen city last Monday 7-2.

The game which was postponed because of rain featured some good tennis. Both teams were much better than last year, but Cincinnati playing on their cement courts in consistently threatening weather, gained victory in all but two matches.

Normal Appel, their No. 1 man, was a steady brand of ball, but couldn't cope with the hard playing.

W. A. A. News
By Em Asbury
Spring play day Saturday at Transy proved most interesting and profitable for the Glamour Cats, as they won badminton doubles, all four volleyball ball games and lost in the semi-finals in tennis.

Pat Shely and Peg Reynolds teamed in both tennis and badminton doubles. Wesleyan College of Winchester dropped Kentucky, represented by Peg Reynolds, in the tennis singles.

Kentucky defeated both the University of Louisville and Georgetown in soft ball, coping the opener 6-3 and the last 8-0 (forfeited after the third inning).

In an election for state W.A.A. officers, Miss Ruth Wilde, Kappa Delta, was elected vice-president, and Miss Emily Asbury, Kappa Delta, was elected publicity chairman of the state.

Sites for next year's play days were chosen and Kentucky will be hostess at the winter session. The tennis tournament is now being held. Anyone desiring, may sign up in the Women's gym by Friday.

Catch Is Good
Among the ten thousand spectators at the recent exhibition baseball game between the Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds on Stoll field, the most enthusiastic rooters were two University of Kentucky baseball players. These young aspirants stood outside the left-field fence, armed with gloves, catching balls that flew that far.

During the game, the "catch" was made since only one homer cleared the fence. However, in pre-game warmup batting practice, the University baseball team collected a number of balls for their use throughout the coming season. The exact number acquired is difficult to estimate, but, according to unidentified sources, Athletic Director Bernie Shively was seen rushing into the gymnasium with his pockets loaded with the little, white pellets.

Kentucky captain, Al Reynolds, Reynolds won in straight sets 6-3, 6-2. The remaining Wildcat players didn't have such an easy time, however. Bill Hedges, Kentucky, lost to Marshall Chambers, Cincinnati, 6-4 and 6-2. Chambers, a returned veteran, was one time runner-up in the National Clay Court single, and is just getting back into the game following his military service.

In the remaining singles, John Meyerholz, Kentucky, dropped his point to Frank Inouye, Cincinnati. In two fast sets, 6-1 and 6-2, Inouye, an American-born Japanese from California, was No. 1 man on the Bearcats' team last year, but although he still looks as good, has been pushed down to the third spot by the stiff competition.

Ray Hensley, Cincinnati, handed Dick Meadows 6-2, 6-0 set-backs for a Bearcat point. Ernie Spiller, Cincinnati, beat Carroll Fears, Kentucky, straight love sets, and Tommy Asbury, Kentucky, lost to Weinstein Aaron 6-2, 6-0. Reynolds and Hedges formed a double team to play Chambers and Spiller, Cincinnati. In what proved to be the most exciting match of the afternoon. The crowd watched as the Cincinnati boys played hard and carried both sets to 7-5 before losing the point to Kentucky.

The remaining doubles pitted Meadows and Meyerholz, Kentucky, against Inouye and Appel, Cincinnati. Cincinnati won 6-1, 6-1. Aaron and Hensley formed the other Bearcat team and beat Fears and Long 6-2, 6-1.

The Bearcats had the advantage of playing on a cement court, which Kentucky was not used to, but they still have a smooth operating, experienced team. They are scheduled to meet the Wildcats in a return game here on Downing Courts next Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. If you're in the market to see some good tennis drop around, admission is free.
