Vet About UK

By Clayton Roland

Postwar Grooms
With such booming and buzzing as was heard about our campus week, it was not at all hard to understand why a lot of people were heard asking, "What is it all about?" The answer came back immediately: "That sound is coming from Cooperstown. Everybody over there is protesting the signing of a new lease with the University."
First reports did sound bad for the University. It was said a renter must sign the lease which was charged for recourse to law, had to get permission to have guests and drive a truck in the wall in his own home and could be ejected from his house on one day's notice. The University agreed to furnish electric, etc., but was not liable if these services were not forthcoming. Their worst objection however came from the new rate of rent on the houses. Those having jobs felt they were being discriminated against by having to pay more rent because they were trying to better themselves. Many and many angry glances were cast in the direction of the University—which is a veteran in itself.

withstanding attacks and counter-charges. But all this is not the fault of the University. It was decided at a meeting earlier this week between UK officials and representatives of Cooperstown. The University has no control over the project except as provided under regulations of the Federal Public Housing Authority.
So it looks like a case of "blame it on Wilbur" and the PPHA is Wilbur.

Future For Veterans
In 1950 a majority of veterans new attending college will be graduated. What kind of world will they face? That problem is in the hands of the American people. They can present their veterans with one of the worst depressions in history—or with a sound, progressive, economic system ready to absorb them. How? It would be very easy to let inflation, with its sky-rocketing shadow prices, have its way. And then—the bubble burst and it's 1929 all over again. Dr. Vandenberg, head of the Department of Political Science, does like for us to compare a future depression with that of 1929. He says the 1929 jolt would be like landing on a feather bed in comparison.

The alternative course will take a little intestinal fortitude. It means submitting to irritating but necessary restrictions for a while longer, keeping that War Bond, waiting the easy profits that, in the long run, are actually the bread and butter of the veteran and his family.
For five years, the people have borne up under the irksome burden, because the principles of democracy were at stake. Is the economic future of their sons and daughters less important?

Were You There?
At the first of a projected series of historical narratives dealing with US military operations in France, the historical division of the War Department has published "Omaha Beachhead," an account of the first week of the invasion of the continent. The book consists of 167 pages of narrative and action photographs, and supplemented by 16 situation maps.
Copies may be procured from the Superintendent of Documents, G.P.O., Washington 25, D. C., at a cost of $1.50.

Southpaw Blues Sung In Letter From Krassner

To The Kernel:
Why can't the University be the first to placate the ruffled equilibrium and the aching backs of the left-handed sons? For decades I have been fortunate myself but have huddled over notebooks, arms twisted, trying to take notes. Have pity on us, and try to get some desks for Southpaws!
If I think what it would mean to see Mrs. Shrou, a junior in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, in a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary, and Alpha Xi Delta social society.
The new officers will be installed at a banquet for all Methodist students to be held May 30 at the Union Building.

Delts Remember Gold Star Brothers

Tribute to the memory of six Delta Tau Deltas who were killed in action during the war will be paid by their fraternity brothers as Delta chapter of Delta Tau Delta at the University holds its Founders' Day observance tomorrow night. The Founders' Day banquet will be held at the Lafayette hotel. The chapter's seven war casualties, William Hopfinger, Owensboro; Carl E. Wisner, Providence; Oscar E. Wisner, Danville; Lewis F. Cantrell, Greensburg; John Randall Hudson, Barboursville; Robert J. Ammons, Lexington and Glenn W. Carl, West Columbia, III.
All were commissioned officers. Two of them were killed in action. Hudson died in a plane crash in India. Wisner was killed in an operational flight against the Japanese in New Guinea and Hopfinger in the ground fighting on Okinawa less than a year ago. The four others were killed during the fighting in the European theater.
Principal speaker at the banquet will be Clarence R. Frank, Cleveland, Ohio, national secretary of Delta Tau Delta.

Story With A Moral

"May privileges" for graduating senior women have become an annual custom at the University. Beginning customarily at the first of the month, it has been permissible to stay out until 11:15 p.m. every night until graduation.
This year it was announced the privileges would not start until May 15. Immediately there was a loud howl. "What are they trying to do—it's not fair—we've always had a month of privileges," etc. No one bothered to find out why before they complained. And there was a very simple explanation.

Mrs. Holmes said that the date was set up because graduation had been advanced from May 28 till June 7. The length of time varied last a few days. But if the seniors wanted it, she said that the privileges would begin on the 8th instead of the 15th. And so they will. It had not been the intention of the dean's office to deprive the women of a single privilege, but rather to simplify the task of the house and hall supervisors who have to "check in" both seniors and lowerclassmen.

Like a fable, this story has a moral. So many times when students get all perturbed over some minor rule or regulation there is no reason whatsoever for complaint. A simple explanation is all that is needed. Moral: Find out the facts before fussing.

Kernel, C-J Reporters Were Not Excluded From Meeting

The Courier-Journal and The Kernel reporters were not intentionally excluded from Tuesday's meeting of University officials with veterans concerning the Federal rental rates.

Dean Chamberlain, who called the meeting, explained Thursday that he suggested that they wait in the hall, because his office was crowded with persons participating in the discussion. Roy Steinfort and Clayton Roland did just that. But after the meeting had started the reporters from the Lexington papers simply edged in at the door, one of them taking a vacant chair.

Rather than rudely ask them to leave, Dean Chamberlain said that they allowed the two to remain. Roland and Steinfort were given their stories after the meeting, with the fullest cooperation of all concerned in answering questions. Dean Chamberlain went on to explain that it had never been University policy to exclude the press from any such meeting.

Write Your Own Ticket

All right! You tell us how to get students to go to convocation! This perennial editorial topic has been written from every angle from shaming students for lack of interest to appealing to their desire for knowledge—and all meet with its little results.
You know that if convocations were made diff-cult to attend—if admission was charged and worth-while speakers came from out of the state to our platform, you would fight to get in Memorial Hall. If SG-4 invited a chorus of can-can dancers to perform, the place would be mobbed. But the prominent and successful performer who comes to the campus should have enough to offer students in the way of information—even education—to have a good attendance without having to give away a set of dishes.

Now next Tuesday Miss Sarah Blanding, former dean of women here, and now president-elect of Vassar college will be the speaker—you know, Vassar—where all the society girls attend school in jeans!

There are at least ten reasons why you should want to go. You know them as well as we do. So write your own ticket and let your conscience be your guide:

1. You will see the dean.
2. You will see the president.
3. You will see the faculty.
4. You will see the students.
5. You will see the campus.
6. You will see the city.
7. You will see the state.
8. You will see the nation.
9. You will see the world.
10. You will see the future.

Reducio Ad Absurdum

Why don't college students go on a strike? Every other group is! If students all over the country went on a strike until the United Mine workers and the Ford employees, and all the other unions and organizations with major adjustments went back to work, maybe a stop could be put to this whole ridiculous business.

Never would we take from labor the right to organize, to bargain collectively, or to strike, but isn't this going a little too far? Every day there are new reports on how many millions of dollars are being lost in wages by striking workers, and millions of dollars lost to industry. What about the consumer public? He's almost the forgotten man in the whole fight for higher wages. And he's the one in the long run who pays and pays and pays.

Since the farmers and the business men are not sufficiently organized to protest collectively, perhaps college students could voice the dissent of the large part of the public. Why don't students strike until they all have new cars, each man—particularly vets who are having a hard time buying clothing—has a new suit, and every heating plant has a basement full of coal?

It couldn't be much more ridiculous than the strike situation is already.

This column was written last week, but had to be omitted out of necessity. There wasn't quite enough room. Besides that, everything in it was slander, libel or trash. It was pretty awful. It contained the most idiotic stuff imaginable; stuff like promoting the idea of junking apple-polishing and taking up "apple-peeling" instead—which would mean insulting your professor instead of the usual you-know-what. But it probably wouldn't be such a good idea. After years of lies, lies, lies, I don't know if the shock of finding out what their blessed little minds really think of them!

Why don't more people write poetry? Besides saving energy and brainwork, poetry is purty for its own sake.

Especially "Mac" MacCorkle's poetry. Please comment on it because she's modest and won't give us any more poems unless other poets do. That's the old trick: more than just a little on the ball. Autumn came while Spring was here.
I saw it creep through the sunset killing my love. . . .
Red fingers that are cruel and choking.
You sent the Autumn through your lips and eyes
Just to see you could really make me die.
I saw you laugh and then I knew
It wasn't Autumn that was cruel, but you.

The Darsity Show

TO BEGIN WITH, I wish to assure my readers that in my last stand-up, my Virginia students or the state's "greats"—the froth at the top of the Virginia colleges and universities. I did not intend to stir the memory of General Lee, or any other southern personage.

We have received a letter from Mr. D., a self-declared Virginia, in so many words, Mr. D., says, "That's no joke, son!" I firmly agree with him. Many states are crying out for the restoration of the old tradition of wearing the cap instead of the Virginia tradition of the decades of dress, pure tradition as does Virginia.

The greatest outrage of your whole column is the travesty you make of the honor we Virginians pay to our great heroes and honored dead," states Mr. D. We firmly agree with him on this point, as well. We hereby apologize for any and all slurring remarks we made against Virginia and its famous men, and we might add, we had no desire to re-light the Civil war.

Our use of Virginia tradition was to bring out one point—a point Mr. D. evidently overlooked. We wished to show the student body the lack of tradition that exists at the University. UK students should be proud of the existing tradition at Washington and Lee, V.M.I., and the University of Virginia. Frankly, Jerry, a deceased canine, is better known to us than the Virginia tradition of the decades of dress, pure tradition as does Virginia.

as a sumptuous boudoir, complete with a dressing table and cosmetics, perfumes, and a large bed. The man was held by the police on the charge of having no draft registration—pending further investigation. And speaking of investigation, who owns the car on the campus. . . . the one with the veteran blind?

So did Kate and Belle and Doris,
So did Jane and Violet,
I don't like to kiss and tell—
Still they did it.

I also liked Cecile,

Task! Task!

Have you heard the one about the experiment station chemist whose wife recently underwent a dental operation?
The chemist (B.S., M.S.), not knowing that carbon dioxide is a common member of the dental profession, observed the little student nurse operating the machine and asked what gas was used.
The student with a supercilious look and pitying tone replied that it was "carbon monoxide."

Quarter Million Veterans Now Full-Time Students

More than a quarter of a million World War II veterans are now enrolled as full-time students in American colleges and universities and another 30,000 are taking part-time courses under Public Laws 246—GI Bill of Rights—and 16-for-disabled ex-servicemen, a nationwide census by Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, reveals.

Walking with a friend one day, a professor passed a large fish shop where a fine catch of fish with mouths open and eyes staring were arranged in a row.

The prof suddenly stopped, looked at them, and clutching his friend by the arm, exclaimed: "Heavens! That reminds me—I should be teaching a class."

Maybe you've thought of the Bell Telephone System as using only wires. It uses and pioneers in radio too.

Radio waves are used to carry your voice across the seas to telephones in other lands... across water barriers here at home... to vessels plying inland waters and to ships out at sea. And before too long, radio links will provide telephone service for cars and trucks.

Radio relay systems that will carry long distance messages from city to city are now in the advanced experimental stage.

In every case the Bell System uses the kind of transmission, wire or radio, that provides the best service for the most people.

Friedly Elected Phalanx President

Harold Friedly, arts and sciences sophomore from Frankfort, has been elected president of Phalanx fraternity, replacing Howard Stephenson, arts and sciences junior from Mt. Sterling, who resigned.

Friedly and the other electees were installed in office Tuesday by retiring president Joe Covington. Jack Baranah was appointed sergeant-at-arms.

Bart N. Peak, general secretary of the University YM, is group adviser, and David Sauer, Wesley foundation secretary, is chaplain.

Home Management Women Know Housing Problems Too

By Myrene Stepp The home is made in the classroom! Although this saying probably originated with a truant officer, it is true literally in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Before the war the University owned two home management houses. When the number of graduates decreased, the college sold one of them.

This quarter, with a larger group of graduating girls, it was necessary to buy another house; but the former owners were unable to find a home. Someone in the college conceived the idea of reconstructing three offices and a women's study in the Home Economics building into an apartment for the girls.

Painters, carpenters and plumbers moved in, and within four or five days the rooms were turned into a modern apartment. The furniture formerly used in the old house was rejuvenated and the walls were done in soft pastel shades. The large study has been turned into a combination living-dining room, which, according to Better Homes and Gardens, has become very popular.

The kitchen, complete with running water and egg-beater, was reconverted from a storage room by a connecting door to the dining-living room. The bedrooms, with their wide, venetian-blind windows, have a home-atmosphere such as one would find in his own house.

Home Management is a five-hour course which lasts five weeks and the girls living in the house do all the cooking, cleaning, washing dishes, and other household duties that they would do in a home of their own. The first girls to occupy the "home in a classroom" are Mary Jones, Rebecca Lowe, Ruth Anthony, Iris Shannon and Ruth Ann Grannis. The housemother is Mr. J. B. Brown.

The program: I—Symphony in D Major "The London," No. 104 ..... "Hymn Introduction—Adagio Allegro Andante Menuetto Allegro Spiritoso

The Symphony in D major was written in 1805 during Haydn's second sojourn in England, and was first publicly performed on May 4, of that year. It is commonly known as the "London Symphony" and is listed among his twelve "Salomon" Symphonies, all identified with London. In order of composition, it is No. 7 of this series.

The introduction is in the minor mode, but, like with Haydn's happiest thought of minor.

In both the first and last movements, there is an unusual degree of contrast between the Principal and Subordinate Themes. This is an example of the early history of Haydn's Sonata-Allegro form, in which was conceived almost solely to establish such close relations between the two themes as to secure complete thematic unity—instead of that effective cleavage of thematic contrast which is the chief aim of later symphonic writers.

A salient trait of this entire Symphony is the fourth frequent introduction of pauses a whole measure, and even two measures, in duration, with striking dramatic results that are as novel as they are effective. The most startling of these pauses occurs in the first movement, an episode near the end of the principal division of the movement.

For this reason an in consideration of other responsibilities which I have undertaken, the resignation seems the best thing to do. I appreciate the honor of having been elected president of Phalanx and deeply regret having to resign."

per, in E Flat Major, Opus 73

Allegro

Adagio un poco mosso

Rondo

The Concerto in E flat major, Opus 73 was dedicated to the Archduchess Rudolph of Austria; the title they so found on the original manuscript copy at the Prussian archive in Berlin, the work was not completed until 1810. During its composition, the Emperor Napoleon was thundering outside the gates of Vienna as Beethoven lived just the walls of the city, the turmoil occasionally penetrated even his almost complete deafness, and at times it is sought refuge in the ceiling of his house.

It is probable that Beethoven never heard the complete title of "Emperor," which has been applied to his fifth piano concerto. The first performance seems to have taken place at the Gewandhaus in Leipzig on November 28, 1811. It was first heard in Vienna, with the famous pedagogue Kapellmeister Franz Schuppanzigh, who self never played it in public, but probably performed it in private for the royal patron and pupil, the Archduchess Rudolph of Austria.

The little apartment then, overnight, turns into an "unexpected maternity ward" and the remarks of Dr. Bartlett that follow are priceless.

With this complicated situation facing two home-loving grandmothers, and with a threatened divorce in view for Kitty and Gene, the play comes to a quick and humorous climax—a climax that leaves the audience in stitches and keeps them clamoring for more.

The production is scheduled to end tomorrow night, but it is hold-over material, and may run through the entire second week.

Air-Conditioning Unit
To Operate June 1

The air-conditioning unit now being constructed at the Union building will probably be ready for operation about June 1, according to E. B. Farris, head of the University Department of Maintenance and Operations.

A room to enclose the air conditioning machinery is being constructed on the south wing of the Bluegrass room balcony. Mr. Farris explained, stating that work on the Union building air conditioning was started in 1939 but was halted because of a War Production Board ruling ending that type of construction.

An air-conditioning unit for the Law library is also under construction and plans are being drawn up for a unit which is to operate in the east wing of the Biological Sciences building, Mr. Farris said. Probable date of completion on these units was not given.

'Her Day'

By Frances Jenkins

I am remembering. She was beautiful when I was seven. Her slender grace, laughing blue eyes, and beautiful black hair used to be envied by all the women on the block. Even the little girls wanted to look like her when they grew up, and everyone loved her because of her kindness.

She always took part in everything and had just as much fun as any of us kids. On Easter she was the Easter bunny. At Christmas she was Santa Claus, on Valentine Day the candy and cookie jars were filled with little heart-shaped dainties that she had made, and every birthday called for a big party with cake and ice cream.

At the years passed, her black hair became streaked with wisps of silver, but her blue eyes still twinkled. When I was sixteen I went away to school. Things were very different, and I was homesick much of the time, but she always came through just at the right time with a letter that said just the right things to make me feel better.

Today there is a special day set aside for her and millions of other women like her. This is the one day in the year that we can really show her how much we really appreciate her. I'm wearing, in her honor, the biggest red rose I can find. Don't forget your Mother on Mother's Day.

Eastern State Upsets Wildcats 4 To 1; Murray To Furnish Opposition Saturday

By Dick Love

The Wildcats handicapped by the lack of practice looked a little rusty at the plate Wednesday in losing 4-1 to Eastern State at Richmond. DiVenzio, curve-ball artist for the Wildcats, had the Cats swinging at the breeze most of the afternoon, allowing only three men to reach first on hits.

Powell and Jones shared the mound duties for Kentucky and allowed seven hits between them. Eastern scored first in the second off half and held a one-run lead until Gardner tied it up at 1-1 in the sixth. But the tie was short lived as Wren knocked in three runs in the last half of the seventh with his only hit of the day, a line double into deep centerfield.

The only other game played by Kentucky so far was the 15-9 victory over Georgetown. Games with Georgetown and the University of Cincinnati were cancelled because of wet grounds last week.

Since the close of the football practice, Coach Moseley has added Bill Chambers, J. B. Chlapalech, Charley Bradshaw, Jesse Tunstall, and Charley Kuhn to the squad.

Murray furnishes the opposition Saturday when the two teams meet on Stoll field at 2:30. The weakest for curve balls may not several of the starters on the bench and a revised batting order for Kentucky.

Spectators Seemed Satisfied With Blue And White Battle

By Hal Yard

Spectators and press men who braved the rain last Friday night to see the preview of Paul “Bear” Bryant’s first Kentucky football team generally agreed that it was worth their time. The Blue team and the White team battled for over three quarters on the soggy field before the Blues finally reached pay dirt for a 7-0 victory.

About midway of the fourth quarter the 2,500 dampened fans saw veteran halfback Frankie Kuhn flip a short pass to freshman halfback Donald “Dopey” Phelps after the Blue team had moved the ball from their own 31 to the White’s 18. Phelps, taking the ball on the 12, slid by one tackler and stumbled across the goal for the lone touchdown of the evening. He followed through with a perfect place kick for the extra point.

Although the Blues’ touchdowns march was the best sustained offensive attack of the evening by either team, both teams threatened several times. The Whites made the initial first down of the night and moved the ball deep into Blue territory before the drive was stopped. Late in the first period, the Blues with Bill Chambers, Phelps, and Kuhn punching the way advanced to the White’s six-yard line. However, the stubborn White team held for four running attempts and kicked out.

The Blues were forced to punt back promptly, and then the Whites began to move. Jesse Tunstall picked up 15 yards on two plays and Dick Hensley added 20 on an end around, but the Whites bogged down in the mud and the half ended scoreless.

Little was accomplished in the third quarter as both teams seemed to be settling down for a defensive battle to the end. Then came the lone marker and following that another desperate attack by the Whites. Tunstall passed to J. B. Chlapalech for 15 yards and Bernie Schifferdecker bucked the line twice for an additional ten. Tunstall heaved another to Chlapalech this one for 14 yards. As the clock was ticking away the final minute the Whites elected to try another pass and Tunstall faded back once again. The Blues’ forward wall broke through this time and trapped him behind the line for a 12-yard loss.

Tunstall dropped back once again to pass and once again the Blues’ line was in on him, but this time Tunstall was destined to execute one of the outstanding plays of the game. Seeing that he was being rushed again, he drew the ball in close and started to run. He waded, squirmed, side-stepped, and feinted his way through the Blue forwards, and for a moment it looked as if he might be loose, but was finally dragged down after making 18 yards just as the final whistle ended the game.

Paul “Bear” Bryant and his four assistants have the makings of a football team if last Friday night’s inter-squad clash is any indication. The big southerner sat in the grandstand with the spectators and watched as his assistants pitted their teams against each other in what proved to be a “tooth and nail battle.”

Everyone seemed pleased with the showing that the two squads made. At least it looks as if we will have some reserve strength this year. Remember last November when we held Tennessee’s Bowl team to a 0-0 count for the first half only to have them over-come us with large numbers of reserves late in the game.

Of course you had a Kentucky team matched against a Kentucky team and they might look different against other competition. However, the coaches have been working hard and scouring the country for capable material. Those who watched practice acquired an admiration for the new coaches, and the way they handled their men. They were just like one of the players hitting the dummies, blocking and tackling, working with each man and showing him his mistakes. Mistakes that were so small that the average spectator couldn’t even tell the difference, but mistakes that when corrected give the player more drive and speed and better assurance of his footing.

Now when you have coaches like we have and material for them to work with as it appears we have there are the potentials for a good team. Ernal Allen has said definitely that he will be back next fall. Now if we can just get a couple more backs and just a few additional linemen during the summer months, chances are that our team will be fair next season.

Phelps, Kuhn, Tunstall, Chambers, Chipalech, Serini, Haas, Kazniarski, Rhodemeyer, Hensley, and several others look good in the game. But still we repeat they were just playing an inter-squad game and things might have looked different against some outside competition.

The drafting of Jack Parkinson probably hit the basketball team in the most crucial spot, the guard positions. “This year’s team was weakest in the guard positions and Parkinson will be missed out of the line-up, unless the Baron can really pull one out of the bag. With the return of Brannum and Groza the center spot and the forwards will be greatly strengthened. Johnny Crockett was playing some nice ball last year on the “Lost Battalion” and may continue to improve enough to make the traveling squad, and there is still good old Buddy Parker, but we’ll be needing some reserves.

Don’t forget to back the Spring Sports. If we’re going to participate in them let’s be able to play any school and win.

TIME OUT!

By O. C. Hayward, Jr.

Tennis fans are scheduled for a week-end of good times here on the Downing Courts, when the Wildcats tangle this afternoon with Tennessee Tech 6-6, the doubles had to be called because of rain. Then they traveled to Vanderbilt and lost a tough one 3-2. The Kentuckians had one set advantage and were leading in the second set in the final doubles when that match had to be called because of darkness. Captain Al Reynolds lost his point to Vandy’s player coach, Johnny Hyden. Had he won this and the Cats taken the doubles that was called they would have had a 5-4 victory.

The game with Swannee and the one with Georgia Tech were both rained out and the team returned home Saturday afternoon.

Kentucky lost their second game of the season to a superior Cincinnati team, but not before they gave them a tough battle. In Cincinnati the Cats lost 7-2, but gained one group in the match. The Kentuckians tied the Cincinnati group here last week.

The Kentucky team now has a record of three wins, one loss, and one tie. The Low score of the match with Cincinnati was Foster, with a 78. Hicks and McMullen of Kentucky did manage to come through with scores of 80.

The Kentucky team has two more matches of regular season play, one with Miami and one with Tennessee. The Wildcats will meet the Volunteers on the Vol’ link tomorrow afternoon. If the Kentucky team plays as well there as they did in their meet here with Tennessee, they should come out as the victors since they easily defeated the Volunteers here.

The Kentucky team has defeated Miami twice, and Tennessee once, while losing a match with Cincinnati and losing one to the Clincy boys.

In the opening meet of the season, the University of Kentucky track team defeated the track group from Tennessee Polytechnic Institute by a score of 84-33. The Kentucky team had no trouble in overcoming the opposition, of 148 TPI boys and quickly ran up their 84 points while the opponents only tallied 33.

Jim Weber, six foot six basketball center on Kentucky’s reserve squad last season, led the Kentucky team to victory in racking up four first place marks. He won the high and low hurdles, the shot put and the discus throw.

The Cats took up eleven first place positions while TPI was way down the line with only four. However, the TPI group excelled in the fact that they turned in the fastest time of the afternoon. Zeparko of the TPI ran the 100-yard dash in 9.7. This was one of the fastest time marks ever set in the Southeastern Conference. Kentucky’s Frank Dean ran second in the 100-yard dash, being very close to the mark set by Zeparko.

Bully Jacobs, UK track coach, was very well pleased with the showing of his boys.

Coach Jacobs announced that this would be the only meet held this season. However, he stated that he would take several of the team to the SEC meet to be held the latter part of May.

Kentucky’s linkmen, playing their first away from home match, suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of Cincinnati by a score of 20-7. The Kentucky men, playing a very ragged game throughout, did not present a serious threat to overtake the Cinoy more point here to loose 6-3. Reynolds and Hedges combined to win the first set 6-3. Reynolds’ attack was short lived and he found himself behind 4-1 in the final set. Al slipped one in to make it 4-2, but still everyone conceded the set to Chambers, and when he added one to lead 5-2 even Coach Downing wouldn’t have taken much for Al’s chances. Chambers seemed to let up a little and Reynolds realizing that he had to drop only one more game to lose the set, pulled a surprise come back and took three straight to tie the score in games at 5-5.

Chambers snapped back from the bewildering momentarily to win one more but Al was hard to come and took two to win the match 8-5.

In the other singles Bill Hodges (K) lost to Normal Apple (C) 6-3 and 6-3. John Meyerholz (K) went three sets with Ray Hensley (C) losing the first 6-1, winning the second and dropping the third by the same score. Dick Meadows (K) lost to Eric Spiller (C) in straight sets 7-5 and 6-1. Carroll Pears (K) was beaten by Aaron Weinstein (C) 6-0 and 6-2. Tommy Asbury (K) added another point to his team’s score by overcoming Don Vockel in straight sets of 6-4.

Reynolds and Hedges combined their efforts in doubles to win the last Kentucky point by beating Chambers and Spiller 6-3 and 6-2. Meyerholz and Meadows dropped their doubles to the Clincy combination of Hensley and Weinstein 6-2 and 6-4. Pears and Asbury up to tough fight before they gave up to Appel and Vockel 7-5 and 6-4. Frank Inouye, American born Japanese, and leading player on the Beocrats team couldn’t make the tip because of his scholastic difficulties.

The Cats are expecting some trouble from Notre Dame Saturday afternoon and there should be some real tennis played on the courts when these two teams connect. The Irish beat Michigan State 4-3 earlier this year but have dropped a 7-0 decision to Navy. Their top men probably will be Bill Tully and the No. 2 spot may be filled by George Ratterman of basketball fame. If so Reynolds and Hedges will have their hands full.
