HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

To know the history and needs of the University of Kentucky one has only to read the following article prepared by Dr. Frank L. McVey, for the Bond Issue Campaign Book:

The University of Kentucky is one of agricultural and mechanical colleges that owes its origin to the Morrill Act of July 2, 1862. Instead of establishing at once, as most states did, a higher educational institution, the Legislature did not place it upon an independent basis but made it one of the colleges of Kentucky University, now Transylvania College. To this institution the annual interest of the proceeds of the Congressional land grant was given for the purpose of carrying on its operations. This continued until 1878, when the act was repealed and a commission appointed to work out a plan for a state university.

As a department of the university, the Agricultural Experiment Station was created in September, 1885, under the various provisions of federal law which provide annual appropriations for the support of the Experiment Station. In 1912 the legislature voted an appropriation of $50,000 in addition to the amounts granted by the federal government for this work.

The purpose of the station is to carry on a continuous succession of experiments by specialists in order to learn what the application of science will do in bringing the best returns from the farm, the garden, the orchard, the vineyard, the stock yards and the dairy. In addition to this the Experiment Station is engaged in publication of bulletins announcing the results of these experiments which have brought untold advantages to the farmers of the state.

SPACE, BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT

The university has a considerable number of buildings but none of them are expensive and the majority of them were built with minimum amounts of money. The last building erected is the most expensive of all; the dormitory for men which cost $150,000. In 1908 the legislature appropriated $200,000 for the construction of buildings at the university and since that date no buildings for educational purposes have been erected from appropriations made by the legislature. In other words, the recitation and laboratory space for the university has not been increased by the state for a period of seventeen years.

COMPARISON WITH OTHER STATES

The University of Kentucky received for the purpose of carrying on its educational work the proceeds from 1 3/4-cents tax on each $100 assessed value. In the past four years it has received no addition to this sum which amounted to $395,000.00 annually. Other appropriations are made for the support of the Experiment Station and to meet the appropriations given to the state by the federal government for the conduct of Agricultural Extension work.

Beginning the week of October 20, the rest room for women on the second floor of White Hall passed under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. instead of the Woman's League, who formerly had control. The Association will begin immediately to re-decorate the room and will add necessary changes, in order that it may be ready in time for the Deans' Conference which meets at the university the week of October 27. The Y. W. C. A. is planning a series of teas to be held in the room in honor of the off-campus students. The first will be given at an early date.

WALKING CLASSES BEGIN

Two new classes have been added to the schedule of the department of physical education—walking squads—one for boys, and another for girls, under the direction of Mr. Hansen, and another for girls, under the direction of Miss Blanding.

Other universities have had walking squads for several years but this is the first time the university has scheduled them as regular class work. They have been introduced largely upon the recommendation of Dr. Lipscomb, who maintains that exercise should be given to students physically unable to take the regular gymnasium practice.

BOTANY CLUB TO MEET

The Rafinesque Botany Club will hold its meeting next Thursday night at 7:30 in White Hall. A Halloween party will be arranged for the occasion by Miss Cella Taylor, president of the club.

EVELYN KELLY IS GUEST OF ALUMNI

"Princess Kentucky" is Second in Beauty Contest

At the International Petroleum Exposition held at Tulsa, Oklahoma, the first week in October, where twelve oil producing states sent their fairest daughters to participate in a pageant of splendor for the selection of the most beautiful princess who would be crowned "Queen Petrolia," Evelyn Kelly as Princess Kentucky, ran a close second to Princess Kansas, who was chosen queen.

Miss Kelly and her attendants were recipients of many honors while in Tulsa. She, with the other princesses, was lavishly entertained by the exposition management, and the University of Kentucky alumni of Tulsa laid claim to her one day at their guest at a formal luncheon.

Seven of the old boys were hosts: Charles Gilmore, James H. Gardner, A. Marshall, E. C. Baldwin Spragues, Samuel J. Caudill, Price and Walter Morris.

Miss Kelly was a student at the university in 1922 and in that year she was chosen as the most beautiful girl in the university. She is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority.

DANCE IN NEW GYM FOR HOME-COMING

Will Not Serve Dinner, as Had Been Planned

The committee in charge of home-coming on November 1, has found it necessary to limit the entertainment to a dance in the new gymnasium, on that night, from 8 to 12.

Several fraternities will have former university students as guests and will entertain them informally with supper parties, after which they will attend the home-coming dance. Girls of the university will be permitted to attend this dance. Music will be furnished by the "Kentuckians."

Tickets may be obtained at $1 each on the campus from Miss Margie McLaughlin and from Russell Van Sant, alumni.

LOCKER SYSTEM IS INSTALLED IN GYM

Number of Baskets Doubled—Towel Room Enlarged

The large increase of men students taking physical education and the transfer of the physical education department to the new gymnasium has made it necessary to enlarge the old locker system. The students' baskets have been tripled in amount and the towel room which contains them is twice as large as the one in the old gym. The purchase of this large supply of baskets has saved the university an expenditure of a large sum of money for new lockers which would have been necessary had the basket system not been adopted. The department is now able to handle twice the number of students formerly handled.

Thirty-five new lockers were bought this year. These were placed in the varsity room, and the old varsity lockers were moved to the gymnasium department for physical education students.

Miss Hopkins, head of the Home Economics department, attended a meeting of the board of directors of the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs in Louisville, October 15 and 16. Miss Hopkins acted as chairman of the Home Economics department of American Homes.

A week's course in dairying will be given January 12 to 17, 1925, and another in marketing January 19 to 24, 1925.

A NOBLE FIGHT

The fighting eleven of the university went down in glorious defeat before a gallant foe when the Blue and White of Kentucky met the Blue and White of the Old Dominion last Saturday afternoon. We are not abashed because we lost. There are moments when a defeat is greater than a victory. Time after time the surging crowd in the stadium was swept to its feet by brilliant plays on the field; again and again the visitors cheered the swift rapier-like maneuvers of the Kentucky men; and when the final whistle blew, it sounded in the ears of struggling teams and eager spectators.

The spirit of Kentucky was abroad that day. Never was a cleaner, a harder game fought in all the history of the university. For such a display of tactics and self-control as was evinced on Stoll field that day, the entire city of Lexington should be proud to claim the Wildcats for her own. Men were in the making there on that torn sod, and men worthy of the Blue and White.

There may be some on the campus who question the decision concerning Tracy's end run. Whether they are right or wrong there is but one sportsmanlike position, and that is to uphold the decision of the referee.

Our opponents from Virginia were gentlemen in name and deed, and we are glad that we shall have another opportunity to match our forces against them again next year.

YEA, ROMANY!

Many of the students are as yet unaware of the fact that there exists on this campus the only institution of its kind in any Kentucky college. We refer to the Romany Theatre.

Two years ago, from the little frame structure on Winslow street there issued quaint old-fashioned negro spirituals in soft darkie tones and the vigorous propounding of the Scripture by the African leader of the flock. Today the appearance of the one time church has changed completely. It is true that the exterior much the same except for fantastic decorations on the wall and the annex in the rear. But within, a sense of lingering enchantment and a reminder of gypsy caravans meet the eye of the visitor.

None of us are so old that we will not confess to having built in the secret places of our hearts a pattern to the undying spirit of romance and daring. We know by this, whether we admit it or not, that we are a part of the Romany Theatre. For it, too, was built in a spirit of daring. It is not a small thing for a body of men to undertake so hazardous a proposition as that of financing a playhouse, choosing the plays, and selecting the actors in a university which already has one dramatic organization and a city with a theatre and four motion picture houses. But in the history of all this the Romany has succeeded by sheer force of merit. Some of us have never been inside the theatre, but we are obliged to swing our hats in the air and cheer for those people who have fought a winning fight against heavy odds. In little more than a year the staff of the Romany has proved that any enterprise which possesses sufficient good within it will succeed. Already the leading theatrical magazines of America have mentioned it, prominent critics have praised it, and well-known stage directors have recruited several of their players for the ranks of the legitimate stage. Who knows but that from the Romany another star will rise upon the theatrical horizon. This much is certain. As the Meistersingers of the Middle Ages built the part for the entrance of world geniuses, so the Little Theatre movement of the Twentieth Century is keeping alive the histrionic spark that will some day flame into a glorious conflagration of dramatic art.

The Romany movement deserves the support of the student body. This community theatre is essentially a part of the University of Kentucky. Let us give it our deepest and most sincere support and reward the efforts of the staff with "Yea, Romany! Let's go, Kentucky!"

THE MONETARY WORTH OF A COLLEGE DEGREE

The value of a college education has at last been measured in terms of dollars and cents. The monetary worth of a college degree has yielded to the appraisal of economists. Dean E. W. Lord, of Boston University, in a recent report, places the value of a college degree at $72,000.

The report of Dean Lord is based on a long and complete study of the earning power of college men in a period extending over a number of years. The cash value of a high school education is placed by the estimate at $33,000.

The peculiar interest of the survey is derived from the attempt to narrow the worth of an essentially spiritual quality into the domain of the material.

Many leading educators will in all probability take issue with Dean Lord because of this new effort to define and value the intrinsic worth of higher education.

From the remotest inception of colleges in the days of the Renaissance, that reeducation of knowledge and culture, college men and women have arrogated to themselves the possession of a spiritual thing; have prided in their collegiate training because they were imbued with an attribute denied to men less fortunate than themselves.

In those days, now gone forever, cloistered halls did not prepare men for ascendancy in the marts of trade. In this age of emphasis on material things, the commercial and technical training, with its ready earning power, is more intently sought. Life has become a continuous conflict. In the olden days men fought for honor and renown with the point of steel; now they fight with college training for the possession of gold.

But the mercenary element is not entirely dominant. Many educators of great universities and particularly of the smaller institutions, still believe that a college degree is not merely a foundry mark stamped upon the graduate. The true education cannot be weighed in the commercial balance with dollars substituted for the metric system.

The claim of a man to be called educated now, as in the past, must be based upon more effable qualities than the power to accumulate a fortune. The spirit of service as well as that of cupidity must be developed. Dean Lord's emphasis on the material side of the old and cherished view will elicit the disapproval of many; but we who are striving for an education are glad to learn that our pecuniary prowess, as well as our mental astuteness, is at the same time being enhanced.

THIS YEAR, NOT NEXT YEAR

The writer is an old student of the days of black headed "Doc" Boders of the days when the redoubtable "Doc" thrilled the stands with runs that Bo McMillin never made without superb interference. The thrills are as fresh as they were in nineteen hundred sixteen. The depression caused by six successive defeats at the hands of old students has not caused the team that wears the blue of Kentucky.

Whatever may be said of the past seven years will not erase them as far as results are concerned. But the future, the immediate future must be looked upon with brilliant hopes and with confidence in the Wildcat team that is going to stem the Golden tide from Danville. Some may say that Weaver, McMillin, Roberts and others have left and that some of the late Colonels will not appear this year, but Centre still has a football team. We are glad because we want to beat a football team. Some may say to themselves that our opportunity will come next year after eight of the present Colonels graduate. There is but one time to beat Centre and that is before her glory wanes.

Students on this campus have already said that we cannot win on November 1. Away with dope, better material and everything that forbids victory. Victory comes to the team and to the student body that will not be defeated. Most games are won by the team that plays a better game in general. Once in a while a team comes along that wins because it refuses to be beaten. We do not mean to say that Centre has better players, etc. It is certain that it has had something for seven years that we have not had. That something may be gone by, nobody knows. To make the victory safe for Kentucky we must play safe and take a conquering and unyielding spirit onto Stoll stadium on November 1.

At this meeting, the 180 women are going to step out on that green sod and play a game that will make Coach Murphy pop-eyed for sixty days. The old boys and the students will get a million dollars' worth for the hundred thousand they paid for the stadium.

The Wildcats could not beat Purdue but they did. The Wildcats can not beat Centre but they WILL!

—Alumnus.

A bon-fire will be lighted and J. W. Stoll and Desha Breckenridge will probably be among the speakers.

At this meeting, the 180 women and 90 men who have been selected from the student body to work at the polls will receive preliminary instructions. Final instructions will be given them at a meeting Monday evening, November 3. Breakfast will be served by the Woman's Club in the new gymnasium at 5:15 Tuesday morning.

JUST A WORD

Wildcats, we are still with you. Everybody is with you when you win, but we are with you always. We are with you more now than we have ever been before; you need us.

Now we have told you how much we love you and how we are for you, we shall ask you a question.

When Gregg made his beautiful run, and it was a dandy, why did you all run up and pat him on the back and say, "Great run, Turner!" instead of flopping down in position and putting that ball over? You still had 9 yards to go and you patted Gregg on the back, told him what a great run he had made and then nonchalantly wandered to your places in line and passively prepared for your next move with the attitude evident that if you failed to put the ball over on that play, you would get it on the next, and it made little difference which one you got it over on because you had four plays.

Wildcats, you did not show the energy and punch that should have been shown after your general had brought the ball within striking distance of the goal. Why didn't you get into your positions with a little pep and determination to put that ball over the goal line on the first play? You could have congratulated Gregg later, even between halves; the game is not won nor the score counted until the ball is carried over the goal line.

Are Kentuckians too polite? We have been told that the cats acted a little too polite to W. & L. Kentucky acted as if they did not want to be too rough with them for fear of apparent lack of hospitality. Make the visiting teams feel at home on the football field but have the understanding that you feel that their home is a h of a place. That is just a different way of saying "Give 'em Hell, Kentucky!"

The pep meeting was great, but we failed to see 800 freshmen there. You freshmen put your modesty away, rake out your pajamas and come to these meetings. You will enjoy them and we will enjoy having you. Better be at the pep meetings in pajamas than anywhere else in a tux.

LIEUTENANTS TO OPPOSE KITTENS

Centre Freshmen Will Play Here November 8th

Coach Ray Ecklund's freshman football team will play its second game of the season with the Centre freshman team as opposition on November 8 on Stoll field. This is the most important game on the Kittens' schedule, as the winner of this game will have a claim to the state championship and perhaps the southern title.

The Centre Lieutenants have not played a regularly scheduled game, but their showing against the Colomel varsity stamps them as a very dangerous team. On few occasions they have beaten the varsity in practice games with their coach "Red" Roberts, in the lineup, and with "Red" out, they are able to hold their own. The Lieutenants are light and are very fast. In Chez, Catlett, Smith, and Fanrest, they have a backfield which gains whenever called upon, as these men are fast and are adept at handling the ball. Their star line performers are Chutefield and Estes, of Lancaster, mentioned on numerous all-Kentucky teams last year, and Buckner, former Covington high school star. Coach Roberts says, "We have the best freshman team we've had in years."

The Kittens came out of their tussle with Georgetown in good shape. Coach Ecklund has three weeks in which to get his charges ready for Centre, and the Kittens expect a clean-cut victory.

The Lieutenants will play their first game next Saturday with the Sewanee freshmen at Danville.

U. K. WILL DEBATE THE BOND ISSUE

Meet Georgetown in No Decision Contest Tomorrow

It has been announced that the debating team of the university will defend the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue against the attack of representatives from Georgetown College. The debate will be held at the Phoenix Hotel at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

This is the first match for either college this season. Each college will be allowed two speakers who will speak for fifteen minutes with five minutes each for rebuttals. The university team will be composed of H. C. Johnson and C. M. C. Porter, opposed by Roscoe Oglesby and Rodney C. Ralston of Georgetown. As no decision will be made, there will be no judges.

Prof. W. R. Sutherland, professor of public speaking, will have charge of the debate.

NEW YORK USES KENTUCKY PLAN

Coach Buckler, Former Kentuckian, in Charge

Boys and girls of New York City are receiving instruction for training in trades and home-making by the organization of clubs, similar to the method used by the extension department of the college of agriculture of the University of Kentucky. This was reported by Miss Anita Burnam, field agent in club work for the college, who has been on an eastern trip, during which time she judged club exhibits at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass.

Miss Burnam judged exhibits of basketry, weaving, clothing, household furnishings and draperies, food work and demonstrations given by thirty teams. More than 5,000 club members exhibited their work.

Carl Buckler, former state boys' and girls' club leader in Kentucky, is in charge of the boys' work. This work in New York and the New England states is conducted under the supervision of the Junior Achievement Bureau, which works principally among boys and girls who do not have the advantages of a high school education.

FOUR APPLY FOR RHOADS AWARD

The following applicants will be recommended to the State Committee as candidates for the Rhodes Scholarship from Kentucky: Roscoe Cross, Mayfield; J. Sterling Towles, Lawrenceburg; H. E. Netherton, LaGrange; and James R. Davidson, Jr., Cincinnati, O.

The applicants for the scholarship met with Deans W. R. Melcher and P. P. Boyd, Saturday morning, October 18, and inasmuch as there were only four, all will be recommended.

These names will be submitted to the State Secretary of Rhodes Scholarship, Mr. Allen Barnett of Massie School, Versailles, Ky., who will on October 25 submit them to the State Committee, who will make the final selection of a Kentucky student.

GENERALS FIGHT BRAVELY FOR A 10 TO 7 VICTORY

W. and L., by Mighty Efforts, Eke Out Victory

6,500 VIEW CONTEST

Sanders Individual Star of Game Replete With Thrills

Although the endearing strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" prevented Washington & Lee from crossing our goal line after they had plunged and passed their way to the very shadows of it in the second period, these selfsame strains could not inspire the Blue and White warriors to overcome the dark blue Generals before them and Coach Murphy's Wildcats were defeated. The final score was 10 to 7 and the W. & L. boys gleefully strutted off the field of battle with a victory in the first conference game for the university wildcats.

It was a mighty team that faced the blue and white hopefuls, and aided by the powerful Cameron and deadly passing attack of Wilson, the Generals defeated Kentucky in a titanic struggle.

The days of Centre of 1921 were brought to the minds of the spectators as they saw a dark-blue clad figure dart in and through the lighter blue in front. The flashy warrior was McMillan, half on the W. & L. team. Down in West Virginia they call him "Bo" McMillan, and with the ferocity of the powerful "Bo" of yesterday, he hurled destruction into the demoralized Kentucky line and thrilled the stands with spectacular dashes and plunges.

The first few minutes of the game was a kicking duel between the two teams, but in the second quarter the Virginians fired the blast that was heard from one end of the huge stadium to the other. Dawson, Coach Dehart's ace in the hole, was sent in to replace Daves at the beginning of the quarter, and the dull thud of a dropkick came to the ears of the spectators—the dropkick which broke the tie of last year and gave victory to the Southerners. Tracy broke loose with a 60 yard run in this quarter and outdistanced all would-be tacklers. The referee, however, ruled he had stepped outside the line and would not allow the score.

The second quarter saw the Kentucky boys put up a game fight. An intercepted pass saved the way for the Generals' great chance of the contest. The ball was on Kentucky's six-yard line and the Generals had four downs in which to carry it over. The strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," played by the university band, put superhuman strength into the fighting Wildcats and at the end of the fourth down the ball rested six inches from Frank Smith sent the ball down the field out of danger.

The fourth quarter saw each team make a touchdown, due to the breaks of the game. At the start of the period Sanders kicked to W. & L.'s 41-yard line. Rauber immediately kicked to Kentucky's 36-yard line. Sanders made four yards over left guard and Hughes lost four and gained fifteen on the next two plays. Gregg lost five yards on an attempted pass and Wilson, for the Generals, intercepted the ball and raced for a touchdown, making the score 10 to 7. After this score, Sanders again kicked off to W. & L.'s 20-yard line. McMillan got two around left end but a kick was blocked by Kirwan and King recovered the ball for a touchdown.

Captain Sanders was Kentucky's outstanding luminary. He made half of Kentucky's tackles and carried the ball well. He suffered frequent injuries but would not surrender. Cameron, for the Generals, lived up to advance reports and carried the oval for necessary yardage when he was called upon.

Some 6,500 people viewed the contest. The south stands were completely filled and the north stands, which were opened for the game, were partially filled with Washington and Lee rooters.

AS SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By FRANK K. HOOVER

Watch out Centre freshmen! From the way our Kittens looked in Friday's game, they should sink the freshmen of dear old Centre easily on the 8th. The combination of Jenkins to Schulte became almost as famous as the "Tinker to Evans to Chance" combination in baseball. In Friday's game with the Georgetown boys, the trick pass these boys pulled would fool almost any fresh team on either side of the Mason and Dixon line.

For the first time this year every regular varsity man started in a game. Saturday's game marked this event.

OPENING GAME A KITTEN VICTORY

Georgetown Cubs Victims—Score is 50 to 0

The first freshman football game was played with the Georgetown freshmen last Friday afternoon, the Kittens coming out on the long end of a 50-0 score. The performance of the local freshmen showed that they have a good football team and although this was their first game, it showed that Coach Ecklund has formed his men into a well-rounded team.

The defensive work of the men was excellent but the offensive needs much more practice. The Georgetown team got a foretaste of the final result when Jenkins intercepted a pass for a score in the first few minutes of play. Van Arsdale added the extra point by a dropkick. Georgetown then kicked off to Van Arsdale, who returned the ball 35 yards. The Kittens took the ball to the Georgetown one-foot marker, and were held for downs. Hayes of Georgetown then tried to kick from behind his own goal line but was downed in his tracks for 2 points for Kentucky.

On the next kickoff the Kittens carried the ball to the Cubs' territory. Ellis made 28 yards and put the ball over on the next play. Van Arsdale added the extra point.

Phipps, relieving Ross at fullback, intercepted a pass and carried the ball 35 yards. On the next play he carried it over for a touchdown. The combination of Jenkins to Schulte was effective in passing. Jenkins did some spectacular running with the ball. This combination should prove effective in the future games of the Kittens.

The second half opened with a kickoff to Georgetown. The Cubs tried to execute a passing attack but a pass intercepted by Jenkins resulted in another Kitten marker. Kentucky again kicked off to Georgetown but the receiver dropped the ball. It rolled over the goal line and before he could start with it, the Kittens bounced upon him for another safety. The captain of the Georgetown aggregation and the quarterback played exceptionally well. All of the Kittens who played in the game showed up well.

The score:

One of the largest crowds that ever saw a freshman game on Stoll field was present for the Kentucky-Georgetown scrap last Friday. Many came with the idea of seeing the best fresh team Kentucky ever had—and they didn't go away entirely disappointed either.

Saw a bunch of bright sandy locks shining in the sunlight below, Saturday and we knew it was the onepowerful "Red" Roberts, of Centre. "A scout from Centre" was what someone told us.

Kentucky made three first downs while W. & L. made seven. Sorta tight, wot?

West Virginia sends the word that without their "Bo" McMillan they are doubtful of a win over Centre tomorrow. McMillan, was substitute quarterback and West Virginia's only punter. His death last week deprives them of a valuable man. Our sympathy goes to the powerful West Virginia team.

Saturday's game with W. & L. marked the fourth meeting of these two teams. In 1889 we met the Generals in two games on successive days, one of which resulted in a tie and one of which resulted in a Wildcat victory. Last year the game ended in a 6 to 6 tie and Washington and Lee made it 50-50 all the way 'round this year.

Between halves, Frank Brown, as the male, and Billy Upham, as the female of the species, made a great hit by appearing on the field as Apache dancers. They danced everything included in Webster's New International and their steps ranged from earth to heaven—all of which made the dumb act unique. The murder scene especially, had a kick.

CRANETILT THREE-VALVE, LIFTING-TYPE STEAM TRAP

WHAT IS A STEAM TRAP?

A successful steam trap should be a passageway for water and a barrier to steam. It prevents the loss of any steam while it disposes of the accumulated condensation from pipe-lines and headers. Or drains receivers, drip pockets or steam using appliances. It is automatic, performing its important function without attention.

Steam traps of the right type, properly arranged, will return hot condensation directly to the boilers as pure feed water. Conserving the "heat of the liquid" of this condensate, they effect large fuel economies. They are the most economical devices on the market for boiler feeding. Steam traps can also be used to draw condensation from low pressures or vacuums, discharging directly into a higher pressure, and metering the discharge if desired.

Crane tilt traps perform these and similar functions in many important power plants, in chemical plants, paper mills and oil refineries. Their operation is fully described in a Crane publication entitled "Condensation." We will be glad to send a copy to any engineering student who writes for it.

Alpha Gamma Epsilon Wins the Scholarship Cup

According to a report from the office of the Dean of Men, compiled from data received from the office of the Registrar, of the 1,153 men regularly enrolled in the university the second semester of 1923-24, 440 are members of social fraternities. The object of this award is to promote group scholarship, since a fraternity must have at least ten members to be eligible to compete for the cup.

The highest standing of the second semester of 1923-24 was made by Sigma Alpha Mu ineligible for the cup because it has only five members in the group. The standing of this fraternity was 2.04. Of the fraternities eligible for the cup, Alpha Gamma Epsilon, local group, heads the list with 1.74. Standings of the various groups are as follows:

AG COLLEGE HAS POULTRY COURSE

Open to Ky. Men and Women Over 16 Years

A short course for poultry raisers will be offered at the University of Kentucky November 17 to 22. The announcement was made by Prof. Holmes Martin, who is connected with the poultry division of the college of agriculture, during the third annual field day meeting at the Experiment Station October 15.

All men and women over 16 years of age living in the state are eligible for the course. There will be no tuition fee and no examination.

The program has been so arranged that the first hour each morning will be given over to problems of feeding, the second hour to problems of housing hygiene and diseases, the third hour to problems of marketing, incubation and brooding. The afternoon is to be divided between demonstrations and lectures on judging and breeding and actual laboratory practice. At 3:30 each afternoon an inspection trip will be made.

Twenty hours of class room lectures and discussions and five hours of laboratory practice constitute the course, thus making a busy and profitable week for the student who wishes to acquire a thorough knowledge of poultry husbandry.

THE HERALD POST SUPPORTS BOND ISSUE FOR U. K.

Need of More Funds is Felt Greatly by School

TURN MANY AWAY
Northern Universities Not Financed so Poorly

The present inadequate facilities at the University of Kentucky are graphically compared with those of the universities of the thirteenth century in Europe, according to Ralph Coghlan in the Sunday Herald-Post, of Louisville. This paper is showing real friendship to the university, in the cause of education, by its support of the bond issue.

In sixteen years the attendance at the university has more than doubled and if the present congested condition continues, the high school graduates of Kentucky will either have to seek their education in neighboring states or will go without a college diploma. The university now has about one-half the class room space it needs, the dormitories are too small to house the students, and the Library is so small that reference work is well nigh impossible. Each year hundreds of students are turned away from the doors of their own state university because it is already too crowded.

University Delightfully Situated
The University of Kentucky is situated in the most desirable section of the state; the Blue Grass region is known everywhere as one of the garden spots of the south. One hundred and sixteen of the 120 counties of Kentucky are represented at the university. This fact shows that the youth of Kentucky yearns for higher education.

Mr. Coghlan says that no state university north of the Ohio river is so neglected by her state as is the University of Kentucky. Only three southern state universities have been handicapped so by the lack of funds appropriated by their state, but one of these states, Louisiana, has realized the importance of higher education and has provided a clause in the constitution that its university shall receive not less than $1,000,000 a year. The University of Kentucky has never received more than $600,000.

More Funds Needed
If the university does not get more funds, the attendance will have to be regulated and that is a condition seldom found in a state university. The Herald-Post published the following statement:

"Kentucky is at a standstill educationally. It is a situation that no state can be proud of."

ROMANY SCORES

played by Mary Fagua Turner, who portrays her with charm of surpassing quality. Miss Turner's natural grace and ability fit her to play the part of the wife who makes her husband a success and is content to let him think his achievements come through his own efforts.

Dr. Rush is an accomplished actor in the role of John Kinkead, the stern, matter-of-fact business man, who admits deep in his heart that he owes his hold on the top rung of the ladder to his wife.

Mrs. Frederic von Engelken, who plays opposite Dr. Rush in the part of Kinkead's wife, possesses those ever-present qualities of dignity, loveliness and charm which are already so familiar to the social circles of the community.

Roger Adams, who takes the part of the irrepressible Chester Mullin, leaves nothing to be desired. He gave a very successful delineation of a difficult comedy role and furnished many of the high spots of the evening.

Tom Baker, played by Junius Millard, was convincing to say the least. The part of Miss Fletcher, the "hard-boiled" stenographer, showed that the Romany will not lack for portrayals of character parts as long as Nell Pullman remains in the cast. Finally, one of the high spots of the evening was furnished by Wallace Sanders as Senator Martin L. Small, the obese gentleman from Washington. Other parts were ably played by H. J. Scarborough, Robert Moss, John Murphree, Chas. H. Boyer, Henry B. Moore, Joseph B. Stegmon, Mrs. Chas. H. Boyer, Mrs. Jack Powers, and Miss Virginia McVey.

"To The Ladies" is the last offering of the season of 1923-24. The season of 1924-25 will open in November. The play of the week is under the direction of Mary Lyons and James Dixon, and under the management of Caribel Kay.

The Romany deserves the appreciation and support of the university for the presentation of a charming comedy, free from unnecessary situations and bubbling over with humor and homely truths that are forcibly presented. "To The Ladies" is a difficult production to surpass.

You Can't Keep Your Head on Your Work

If Your Pen Demands Your Attention

YOU cannot compose your thoughts—cannot note the points of a lecture, if you are writing with a pen that loses step as you go along. That pen is a mental drag.

The sooner you replace it with the never failing, never ailing Parker Duofold, the quicker you will hit your stride in college work and social correspondence.

Duofold not only gives the mind full play and the hand full swing—in its fit and balanced symmetry and jewel-smooth point inspire and stimulate. They tend to develop a hand of speed and character.

And we guarantee the point, if not mistreated, for 25 years' WEAR. So Duofold at $5 and $7 is the most economical pen—less costly than short-lived pens priced lower.

Any good pen counter will sell you Parker Duofold—flashing plain black; or black-tipped lacquer-red, a color that makes it handsome to own and hard to lose.
