Triumphants 'Cats Look East To NCAA After SEC Victory; Three Named All-Conference

Tingle, Parkinson, Campbell Honored By Sports Writers

The University's Wildcats won three out of the five berths on the all-conference team selected by sports writers who covered the Southeastern Conference tourney play at the Army in Louisville last week.

Jack Tingle, Kenton Campbell and Jack Parkinson gained the three positions for Kentucky, while Mule O'Shields and Paul Walther snagged the other two for Tennessee.

Three Cats—Wilbur Schu, Buddy Parker and Johnny Slough—received honorable mention in the tournament voting.

Says Jack Tingle, with 46 votes to his credit, received the highest single vote of any player selected by the sports writers at the tournament.

Kentucky earned the three all-tournament positions by successfully defending their championship title by a 20-35 victory over the Tennessee Volunteers.

The first team, with total votes in parentheses, follows (two points given for each first team ballot and one point for each second team ballot):

Kentucky Wildcats Win Southern Cage Title

By Dick Lowe

The Kentucky Wildcats claimed their eighth Southeastern Conference championship in 12 years and their seventh in 12 years to become the outstanding team in the South after the tournament-ending victory over the Tennessee Volunteers Saturday night.

There were 11 teams competing for the title when the tournament began Thursday afternoon, but as the weaker teams were eliminated, the Saturday semi-finals pitted the strong contenders. Georgia Tech against Tennessee and the Alabama Crimson Tide against Kentucky's Wildcats. The games Thursday and Friday were little more than warm-ups for the finalists and were played without much enthusiasm from the fans.

As the semi-finals drew near, attention became more intense as the set up for the final game and championship depended on the outcome of the games on Saturday morning.

Engineers Strong

The battle between the Engineers and the Vols proved the most thrilling of the meet and gave the Tennessee rooters a good scare as the Tech team was the dark-horse and came close to defeating its southern opponents. During one phase of the second half they scored 17 points while holding the Vols to two.

The Wildcats played a slow and rugged game against the Florida Alligators but took the game in a walk-away, 57-35. Coach Rupp was disappointed with the showing of the Big Blue and didn't hesitate in showing his dislike for their efforts.

L.S.U. Game Better

The game with L.S.U. was a much better contest as the Cats showed more accuracy and skill. They scored in this game the largest number of points made throughout the tournament by defeating the quintet from Louisiana, 68-37.

The victory over the Alabama Crimson Tide was a hard fought battle for the Wildcats as the Big Tide pushed the Cats all through the game for the lead and were not definitely defeated until the latter part of the second half. Red Bell, a member of last year's Kentucky team, kept the Tide on the heels of the Wildcats and scored the most points against the tight defense of the Cats. The Big Blue finally pulled away to defeat the Alabama quintet, 52-44.

Vols Match Wildcats

The final game was the gem of the Southeastern Conference rivals, Kentucky and Tennessee, against each other and since these teams play great ball there was a packed house of 6,500 fans in the Jefferson County Armory to witness the win-out of the SEC.

The game was an almost even match as the two teams fought liberally and used every bit of strategy at their command to win. The lead changed several times and it wasn't until the final seconds that the Kentuckians were assured of victory. At half time Kentucky held a one-point lead, 18-17. Then after Jack Parkinson scored from under the basket in the final minutes the Wildcats froze the ball until the final whistle and victory.

The following is a summary of all the Wildcats' victories:

'The Lowe-Down'

By Dick Lowe

If you were absent from the Southeastern Conference in Louisville during the last weekend then you missed the sporting event of the year as well as the social splurge of the year. Those who witnessed the games are still probably recovering from the effects and I thoroughly sympathize with them because I know it will be well into next year before I am again a reasonable facsimile of my former self. There is nothing like a basketball tournament to make one forget the fact that he is a student. Then he can have a little leisure time like the rest of the world, until the return from a hectic weekend and the discovery that there are but seven days left before exams.

There are only two more school days left after today and here's wishing you the best of luck.

The Southeastern Conference as a whole was a gala event with 11 teams participating for the crown. The best of sportsmanship was shown by every team, although the decisions of one official were unpopular in the eyes of almost everyone. The games of the first two days were a mere prelude of climination by the stronger teams in preparation for the Saturday's finals.

Tulane, Auburn, Mississippi, Florida and Mississippi State came to the tournament at a great expense knowing that they had no chance against the stronger aggregations from Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia Tech; but they were in the spirit of the game and put on fine exhibitions to the limit of their resources.

One of the best games of the series was the Georgia Tech-Tennessee battle, Saturday morning in the semi-finals. Almost every fan was for the dark-horse team which almost defeated the Volmanagers, and had the game lasted two minutes longer and had the Engineers played on at the same rate they did in the second half, Kentucky might have played them instead of the Tennessee quintet in the finals Saturday night. During a part of the second half the Engineers scored 17 points while holding their opponents to two which was quite a show and the spectators loved it.

Coach Adolph Rupp, one of the most prominent coaches in the country, is now gaining world wide fame.

A letter from Bob Zesch from St. Louis, now on the other side of the world reveals that the Yanks read a lot about the Kentucky Wildcats and their famous coach in the Stars and Stripes, the official overseas newspaper. Zesch said that the Wildcats were one of the armed forces favorite teams and that he hoped they came out on top in the tournament.

Dr. F. L. McVey Denies Dean's Claim

Denial of Dean James H. Graham's claim that he was on a half-time basis at the University was made by President Emeritus Frank L. McVey in a deposition filed in Franklin Circuit Court.

Dr. McVey declared in the deposition filed in Franklin Circuit court in a $12,749.92 suit against Graham and University trustees, that he had consented to Graham carrying on certain outside work from "time to time."

Dean Graham, named as head of the University's College of Engineering in 1933 when Dr. McVey was president, went to Washington as a government aide in 1941. In 1942 he was put on an $8,000-a-year salary there. The suit was brought by H. A. Harper and James M. Molloy, of Lexington, as taxpayers, to recover on the $5,000-a-year salary paid Graham as dean while he was "carrying his time hoggily to the bank."

The case is set for trial April 10 and in a recent deposition, Dean Graham declared Dr. McVey accepted his "half-time" basis stipulation when he signed his contract as dean.

Graham contended that with that proviso nobody would criticize his absence on war work and asserted that he continued to maintain executive control of the engineering college.

"I didn't think of him as such," Dr. McVey declared in his deposition in answer to a question by Attorney J. W. Jones, in behalf of Harper and Molloy, whether he regarded Graham as a part-time employee.

'Albert' Leads A Dog's Life But The Squad Loves Him

By Casey Goman and Ella Seal

"A dog's life"—and almost the end of his tale!

Kentucky's football Wildcats adopted the masterless semi-clow dog; he was happy, for he had a whole football squad of masters, instead of the usual one.

And then one day Albert decided to go for a walk by himself, and he ended up in the cafeteria all by himself. The people there looked at him, and saw that he was all alone.

They called the Humane society—they felt sorry for a hungry, stray dog. Albert was borne howling away, and put in the pound. The boys looked, and looked, and looked, but nobody had seen Albert. At noon, an attendant in the cafeteria overheard them talking of the disappearance, and promising dire consequences to the kidnapper, for they knew that Albert wouldn't deliberately run away? Thus the boys heard that Albert was down in the pound.

The team—maybe we've a track team, coach, they certainly traveled downtown in a hurry—made tracks for the dog pound, and Albert.

Then came the complication: The pound master demanded three dollars—THREE DOLLARS—before he would surrender small Albert to his team. Three dollars, at the end of the month. The man was unreasonable!
