Movie Rushing Is Opposed By High Schools

City Superintendent Says His Students Will Join College Movement

Dr. Henry H. Hill, superintendent of Lexington public schools, has announced that the high school students of Lexington will cooperate with college students in putting a stop to "the childish and unsportsmanlike" practice of rushing theaters.

Commenting on moves by college students themselves to stop the practice, Doctor Hill announced, "I am quite confident that the students of Henry Clay High School, Morton Junior High and Lexington Junior High will cooperate with Transylvania and the University of Kentucky in stamping out the childish custom of rushing theaters."

"Rushing theaters is not only childish but unsportsmanlike. Whatever is necessary to be done in the city schools will be done to stop this practice," declared Doctor Hill.

Last week, representatives of the Inter-Fraternity council, composed of members of the 18 social fraternities on the campus, adopted resolutions condemning theater rushing.

After the pep meeting Friday night prior to the Maryville game an attempt was made to organize a theater rushing party but failed. Comments that for the most part the crowd was made up of high school students and that few college men participated led Doctor Hill to issue the above predicting a more active operation from the high school students in Lexington.

Rushing Season Ends With Hallucinations For Blondes

By VIRGINIA ROBINSON Women and especially blondes. What is the cause? BLONDES! Blondes are the most surprised awaited each golden-haired high school graduate, who for a summer at least, has dreamingly originated beautiful plots for four-act dramas, with herself in the feminine lead.

All of which was very inspirational and satisfactory for her first year on the campus. What a joy! What a setback! What a break! What a disappointment! What a disaster! What a confrontation on every hand by MORE blondes - blonder blondes, sweeter blondes, peroxide blondes, blonde blondes, but blondes, just the same!

Dependency entered her soul. What was the use in being a blonde when she could be a brunette? Even a red-head would probably be more sensational, at least. Yet when each blonde sister awoke, lighting the world around her with a spark of electric current, the girl's partner, that blonde sister (when accompanied by a boy) "Isn't she cute?" fervently hoping she is portraying that un-feminine attitude. WATS TRAMPLE MARYVILLE 46-2 IN NETBALL GAME

Visitors Score Only Points on Bad Pass by Kentucky Pivot-man

"BO" McMillan Leads Wildcat Offensive

By JACK ANTHONY Flashing a varied attack brilliant and otherwise, the Big Blue football team easily defeated Maryville, 46-2, under the lights of the Hill field, Saturday night. Thirty-four Kentucky men saw service in the game which was unique in that the Wildcats never punted.

Maryville scored their two points on a safety in the first quarter while the lights of the Hill field tossed the ball over Kercheval's head and it rolled into the end zone, becoming an automatic safety.

"Pug" Bach scored in the first two minutes of play after he had placed the ball in scoring territory by throwing a 40-yard pass to Kreuter on the four-yard line. In the second quarter Kentucky scored again when Kercheval passed to Kreuter over the goal line. A few plays later Cassidy made a beautiful cut-back and reeled off 20 yards before he was downed. McMillan then skirred right end for a touchdown.

About this time Boretsky, Maryville's outstanding player, gained 12 yards and almost got away but was stopped by Walker and Kercheval, who made a great open field running, which combined with accurate passes by Rex and Walker, placed the ball on the one-yard line. Kentucky was stopped in three attempts to go over as the half ended.

McMillan scored again as the third quarter opened and after that he first team made a steady march down the field to place the ball on the four-yard strip. It took four plays to get the line before the Wildcats took it over.

Three plays later the regulars, under an excellent blocking and field generalship that made Kercheval once at least look like a big-time team. Kercheval started an end sweep, protected by Acker and blockers. While the interference held off the tacklers, Kercheval cut back and ran for a touchdown.

The Crothers' comedy recently closed a successful run on Broadway and was shown here in the movie version. The leads of the movie were taken by Ann Harding, Robert Montgomery, and Myrna Loy.

College of Law Men Prove Brains Accompany Brawn

By JAY LUCIAN In the law school and the middleweight champ. He is superbly built, and is a very real terror in the ring. He and Shepherd are appearing in a fight card in Lexington next week.

The last but not least of the trim-uvinate is Charles Holbrook, senior in the school and welterweight ruler of the college. He is a tall rangy, left-hander, and his boxing prowess is well known. He is very forcibly of the picture of a famous fighter, "Bob" Fitzsimmons. Holbrook is also a track athlete. Of these three fighters mentioned, Holbrook has the doubtful honor of being the fighter whom your correspondent would least care to challenge to fisticuffs.

These lads will no doubt be a success in their chosen field, for besides being able to persuade clients, judges and juries with homed words of wisdom, they will be able, if the occasion presents itself, to resort to a more forceful method and to induce people to their way of thinking by the more simple method of muscular persuasion.

First to lead the three is little Jack Shepherd, mentioned by sports writers as the best prospect for lightweights in Ohio and Kentucky. Besides being champ of the school he is amateur and professional champion of Lexington. He has won 16 out of 18 professional fights and held the championship of West Virginia.

Next is Tony Lowsky, a senior

STUDENT TICKET BOOKS

There has grown up, in the past few years, the practice of students selling their ticket books. This practice has grown steadily from its inception several years ago. Lending or selling of ticket books is a direct violation of the agreement signed when the books are distributed.

Students come to the University to get an education and certainly honor is a vital part of this field. A special rate is made to students in order that they may attend all athletic events. Such a concession could not be made to all the people desirous of attending the games. Also these tickets are sold at such a low price so that interest and loyalty is very much in the class. Every student who is true and loyal to the University should attend all the games possible. Those who put the most into life usually get the most out of it and so it is with life in the University.

If the students are honorable, true, and loyal there will be a discontinuance of such practices. The Kernel believes the students of our University are of the highest type and trusts that such acts will eventually cease.

MASS MEETING

An opportunity to consider seriously which part of the extra-curricular program of the University a new woman student would desire to enter will be provided when the annual women's mass meeting is held Thursday in Memorial Hall. An outline of the type of which is sponsored by each of the various organizations open to women will form a part of the program.

It is not new that one should get more from college than he or she learns from books or else the educational process will have been incomplete. However, old or trite this axiom may be, it still holds true. The benefits of engaging in co-operative enterprises with other students are a development of initiative, skill, a sense of responsibility and a more complete understanding of people. This last mentioned quality is the deciding factor which determines how well we shall succeed in the world where ability to deal with people is of paramount importance.

Although it may be necessary to stress to some few the importance of pursuits other than the study of books, by far the larger majority of the students come to the University determined to obtain more fully the advantages other than book learning offered by a four-year stay

In college. For those who have determined already that they will enter into college activities we should like to offer a bit of admonition.

A whole-hearted initiation of student enterprises is to be commended, but one should remember that after all the University is primarily an educational institution. Activities should be chosen to round out the educational process. One must realize the limitations of time and consider carefully before deciding how his or her talents should be expended. Choose wisely and enter into the activities of your choice whole-heartedly, and lay a careful foundation of scholastic work as well.

PARKING REGULATIONS

Since the advent of automobiles on the University campus the problem of parking regulations has grown more complex from year to year. Until two years ago there was no authorized University police, but since that time Officer Kelley has been striving to uphold the police regulations on the campus. Improvements have been made in the parking rules from time to time and more parking space has been provided to deal with the increase in motor vehicles. Some of these improvements include the assignment of a certain area to the faculty, the drawing of parking lines, and the use of $1.00 placed on violators of the second offense.

Now we have the additional rule stating that all student and faculty cars must be registered and assigned to a certain area, said registration to cost the sum of 25 cents per semester. This is another step taken by the department of buildings and grounds and the dean of men to attempt to control the parking problem to the advantage of all concerned.

Naturally some difficulties may arise, but this rule has been made to be enforced and the University authorities intend to do so. It is the duty of the students and faculty members who drive cars to cooperate, and if they do not do so they must pay the penalty. If it becomes necessary, additions will be made to the police force to enforce the regulations, but it is hoped that such an increase will not be needed.

In the article which appeared in Tuesday's edition of The Kernel it was estimated that there were 608 parking spaces on the campus and approximately 964 cars. If this is true, it becomes difficult to understand the reason for the congestion on the campus around the second and third hours of the day. The Kernel is heartily in support of this added endeavor by the authorities to solve the extremely difficult traffic problem on the campus and urges all drivers of automobiles on the University campus to register your car and then park in YOUR allotted area.

STOLL FIELD IMPROVEMENTS

The Kernel wishes to bring to the attention of the University students and faculty the marked improvement of the management in general of the football game held Saturday night on Stoll field, as compared to the management in former years.

Due to the influence of Major Brewer, head of the R. O. T. C., barbed wire has been stretched around the fence enclosing the field. At the first game of the season it was satisfying to notice that no one was allowed to enter the stadium without a student ticket pass or paid admission.

After the final bell had rung, there was very little of the usual shouting and pushing around the players as they left the field. Len Tracey, who announced the plays of the game over the amplifier, requested during the last quarter that this confusion be avoided and that everyone leave through the stadium gates.

Members of a detective force and also local police attended the game at the request of University officials to protect the interests of the spectators who receive true pleasure from football. The referee and the girl companion becomes entangled with one of Garrity's gunmen. Murder of one of the boys, horrible torture of Garrity, and a grand mob scene featuring the triumph of the boys round off the show.

Starting Sunday and running through Tuesday "What Price Innocence" will be shown at the Strand. This story treats of the rather delicate subject of sex knowledge to youth. Jean Parker plays the strongest girl who we meet and the author of the play, playing the family physician. According to the previews this is the first show ever endorsed by the American Public Health Bureau.

The Return of A Native

Former Student Notes Various Changes and Many New Faces on the Campus

By STARR
It is a long time but we still remember of the old days. After two years' absence from the office we (editorial we) expected to find the old place changed and new faces taking the place of the old ones. Well so they have, but—
On our first stroll down the street of a thousand or so, we saw that slim dark fiddle and tenor saxophone player who was a freshman in '28 by courting a Kappa Delta and a Tri-Delt with such undying and impartial fervor that opposing teams sprang up in the women's residence hall and a feud ensued for the undivided attention of this famous Pi Kappa Alpha lad.

Wandering farther down the street we enter a coca cola dive that has changed hands three times in three years and encounter an Alpha Sig from three years ago and remember the incident and perplexing rushing he did at Patterson hall the spring of '29. If our memory is correct it was a hoop-boo-pa-do red headed gal from West by-dad Virginia. She did not prove herself equal to Bill, by the bye, you know, is dish-dish out the political scandal at Frankfort these days, and getting himself by-lanes in INS papers.

Mixing with the common herd by the band stand at Saturday night's slaughter we deplorable the appearance of that swaggering bravo that "Bromo" Sulzer's presence to the "Best Band in Dixie" in Reading in the Sunday paper that Shipwreck Kelly's professional team and last carried off with a victory in the East, brought back memories of our Freshman days when the greatest "Kelly was pressed upon us by himself, in trying to enter the Kernel office one morning we found the door blocked by the ample and dignified form of the "winged victory." Trying to crawl under his up-stretched arms we were roughly but thor-

Alice Brady, Jackie Cooper, Jimmy Durante, Frank Morgan, Fay Templeton, and Madge Evans are on parade at the Kentucky theater this week. What a show! "Broadway to Hollywood," spectacular cavalcade of the theater, is now showing. The picture is produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, tells the story of three geniuses, who have made a fortune out of vaudeville and its ultimate decline in favor of the motion picture. The career of fifty years in which their loves and joys, and their triumphs and heartbreaks are shown. Alice Brady and Frank Morgan play the original dancing team, Jackie Cooper appears as the young "hooper," and Eddie Quillan has the role of the grandson who finally becomes a famous Hollywood star. Jimmy Durante provides the comedy element, and Madge Evans and Russell Hardie handle the romantic interlude. The picture is directed by Willard Mack.

Scandal Snickerings

By CAMERON COFFMAN

It happened several days ago... along about the opening day of classes... two cars collided in the parking area in the vicinity of Mack Vey hall... Gerald Griffin, instructor in the department of journalism, was the driver of the first car. Mr. Student proceeded to give Mr. Griffin a pile of... Mr. Griffin retaliated with much verbosity... the two went round and round several times... the student dashed off to class. Mr. Griffin also left the scene for his class room... Can you imagine Mr. Griffin's embarrassment to see Mr. Griffin walk into the class room and to find that he was to be the instructor?

Shades of Chick Kasner!

'Tis rumored that Chick Kasner has a new affinity... Congratulations, Jean! and what's this we hear about Alphas Babe Burns?

Chlo Mary Andrew Persons has a guilty conscience... the desires no publicity... her sorority sisters are very loyal to her... We learn nothing.

We have learned what the hole near White Hall is to be... a flower bed is being constructed... the earth is being removed... fertilizer will be placed in the hole and the earth replaced.

Chlo pleb, Jane Crain, the platinum blonde from Evanston, is notified that "Unless she decides to come to Geology lab class she will receive the customary 'E'." (Listen, Jane, that "E" doesn't mean excellent).

The sorority rushing week is over... the forced snobbery exists no longer... the sorority girls and non-sorority girls are allowed to speak... many pledges now wear the ribbons of the various organizations... The Chio lead the list with a margin. The Kadies obtained 24... the Trields got 24 (and what a 24 they were)... among their group were the much-sought Nancy Dyer, the popular Society Chambers, the cute Jane Rostenberger, and many others including Carolyn Hurst and Josephine "Tums"... the Kappas led in the number of pledges... the Alphas also obtained a lively bunch of freshmen.

We were wondering what was Sue Swinford's idea in the sudden change of mind conferring her choice of sororities? Madge the Kappas should include a certain two Lexington boys on their rushing committee. The romance of Della and Fred Dye and Nellie Taylor survived through the summer... and seems to be as strong as ever. At the football game Saturday night one student walked up to one of the many detectives... employed by the Pinkerton detective agency to guard the field

PETITE PIECE

Portrait of a Sorority House Sunday Night—

Pledging is over and the boys are arriving. They come in droves, some of them you know, and lots of new faces. I tried saying "How are you?" as a change, but even that wore out. Somebody asked me, "Who do you know that you've met?" People drift in and out of the house like bees fly in and out of a hive. You can easily tell the hardened old girls and boys from the pledges by the wide eyes and half-believing gestures of the newcomers.

The house mothers are made, not born. And they all deserve the Croix de Guerre for their contribution to the art of human patience. But they do run the boys out early, and we settle down to the business of doing nothing with great precision and no much care. The house mothers are made, not born. And they all deserve the Croix de Guerre for their contribution to the art of human patience. But they do run the boys out early, and we settle down to the business of doing nothing with great precision and no much care.

For the tenth time I'm saying that I am NOT in love. In my dining room table to sleep. But there are worse things. Such as sitting on somebody's cream cheese and not getting up to clean it up in your lap. Or when you find everybody using your hat for a new bowler basket. We need books on the floor. There's a thin ribbon of Sophisticated slenderness through the rooms. Somebody wants to know it by tomorrow. A girl just borrowed my slippers to go down to the cellar and see if the hot water heater really was turned off. A maid and bookworms screeched followed and we all went down to see the rat. One girl is singing a particularly loud variety of the "I'm a Good Girl in Love with a Guy" to what she thinks is the wrong sorority.

Somebody hollers "Bride!" and we pile down stairs and set up tables. We play peacefully for a few hours, but there's a general disturbance because one of the girls has a bad side. Ice bars seem to be getting into the drug store and can't find one, we know better than to ask the house mother, for obnoxious slippers to go down to the cap with cracked ice. Back to the floor. The company we charge the ice box about two-thirty, and after the feed we consider playing murder. Somebody says that "I'm not in love" is a large as it had been. Would it if somebody has gone to bed? Unthinkable, but it must be true. Right? Right? I'm trying to interest everybody in a new card trick. When they all begin to try it, I'm on my feet and out of the room and my hair. And I won't need any knock-drops, either.

HEART IMPRISONED
A ring around the moon tonight
And a smell of rain in the air—
But there's warmth in the cabin
On the hills just over there.
Stars are fading in the sky-line
To shelter from the thunder's blare—
But a lamp glows in the cabin
On the hills just over there.
Rain in my face. The meadow
And a loneliness there
I lost the key to that cabin
On the hill just over there.

ODE TO POETRY
(Written during an English class)
O Muse of Poetry! Canst dwell
Within the white-walled classroom
With naught for inspiration
Save scraps of chairs and droning voices
Lifted not in praise to thee alone
But subject to the demon god of credit?
Canst smile on students
Madly seeking A's and B's
And caring naught for beauty for
Its sake
But each within his brain
Devolving pleasures gone, or joys
To be—
The last hour's lunch, the black-haired boy in front:
Will class-hour never end?
The dance tonight, the football game tomorrow—
All conspire to drive thee from the student's mind.

Twilight—A FANTASY
The last lingering rays of the setting sun
Are tongues of flame
Piercing the fleecy clouds as they float

School Service Compiles Data on Students

During the past four years women graduates of the College of Education of the University have been more successful in obtaining teaching positions than, according to statistics compiled by the bureau of school service.

Interesting statistics from 1929 to 1932 regarding graduates of the College of Education, who have obtained teaching positions upon finishing their school work is found in a bulletin entitled "The Graduates of the College of Education and the Depression."

Sixty per cent of the 465 prospective teachers who were graduated from the College of Education from June 1929 to September, 1932 replied to the questionnaire sent out by Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, director of the school service bureau, and L. E. Meace, associate, who collaborated in the collection of data on teaching experiences of school service and other information. Approximately 63 per cent of this group taught the first year after graduation. The survey showed that women, willing to work at a lower salary than men, have been more successful in obtaining teaching positions. The summary concluded that approximately 71 per cent of the 1929 class and the 1930 class obtained positions the first year after graduation, but the proportion of successful candidates was reduced to 56 per cent in 1931 and to 58 per cent in 1932. The average salary earned by graduates the first year after graduation was $1,288 in 1929; $1,198 in 1930; $1,124 in 1931, and $1,021 in 1932.

LITERARY CLUB IS REORGANIZED

Patterson Society, Under Direction of Professor Dantzier, To Meet Weekly ELIGIBLE FOR AWARDS

Re-organization of the Patterson Literary society was held at 7:30 p. m. yesterday in McVey hall. The Patterson Literary society, according to Prof. L. E. Dantzier of the English department, ceased to exist about three years ago. This society was a rival to the Union Literary society. Both of these societies were for men students. The programs were made up of addresses, debates, and discussions.

An October issue of the K. S. C. Record, the University paper in the year 1900, was received by Registrar Willis just recently. This paper contained the programs for the Union and the Patterson societies. Among the names on the program were those of Capt. Clyde Grady, of the military staff and Asst. Dean George Roberts, of the College of Agriculture.

The only known book surviving of the two societies is the minutes of the Union society. This organization died approximately 15 years ago. The book was found by Prof. Dantzier, and is now in his possession.

Education Dean Addresses Group

Dr. W. S. Taylor, dean of the College of Education, was one of the speakers at a meeting held in the Fayette county circuit court room Saturday, September 23. The meeting was sponsored by the Fayette County interpretation committee, and was attended by all those interested in the state educational system, including many representatives of farm unions and parent-teacher associations.

In his speech, Doctor Taylor told something of the monetary value of the University to Lexington and the vicinity. In telling of the history of higher education in Kentucky, he pointed out the fact that from the time of its founding until the time when President McVey came into office, the University graduated ed 1,768 students, while during President McVey's term 5,605 have been graduated.

Dean Taylor also pointed out the tardiness of the state in its development of higher education, although Kentucky is one of the oldest states outside of the original thirteen.

Those of you who missed the Marvill game Saturday night lost the opportunity to witness one of the most thrilling exhibitions of ball-carriage that has been our privilege to witness since the departure of "Shipwreck" Kelly. "Little Bo" McMillan, the smallest man on the Big Blue, gave a very colorful exhibition against the Highlanders, getting off some beautiful runs. His runs were all the more remarkable due to the fact that he had little or no interference. Kercheval, Cassidy and Ayres showed up well, playing great defensive ball in addition to their offensive exhibitions.

Let it be said that the band was very good; in fact it sounded real "bigtime." Also, the cheering of the band was much better than that of the entire student body. Again the Suky vendors and vendors were scattered throughout the crowd and withheld a good view from many persons present at the game. But perhaps the bravest of the fair sellers was the little girl who climbed up on the score board at the instigation of "Bud" Hocker to sell her wares.

Encouraging? Several times Saturday night it looked like the Wildcats really had a great ball team, but the next instant they looked as ragged as a last year's sock. But they have great potentialities; in fact they

Then she, apparently nonchalantly, takes in every little detail while the following questions are shrewdly asked by her blonde self and answered by her female self in the course of two seconds: Is her hair lighter than mine? Do you reckon she uses peroxide? I wonder if her hair gets oily in two days like mine does. Is she dizzier looking than I am? She must be the beautiful but dumb type, don't you think so? Will she appeal to men? The answers of which are optimistically arranged in order: yes, no, no, yes, no, yes. In conclusion I can do no more than predict an eventful, or should I say hair-raising, college future for the majority of lady students. Well now I ask you—hadn't I oughta know? Ain't I a blonde?

Howard "Hack" Wilson, number 1 player last season, and George Yost, number 2, are the returning letter men. The loss of such players as Turner Howard, Don Braden, K. P. Smith, and Emil "Papa" Johnson will be felt very keenly, but some very promising sophomores will be trying for positions on the 1934 team, among them such outstanding players as George Tulloch, Sam Warren, "Chuck" Randall, Elvin Stahr, and Jimmie Moore. Also John St. John, captain of the 1932 freshmen, after being absent from school for a year has returned and should add considerable strength to the squad.

A squad of very promising freshmen answered the initial call. In so far as prep school reputation is concerned, the group is headed by O'Brien, the Highlands high school star, who was state high school champion in 1932 and runner-up last spring. Then there is the younger Randall who defeated his brother "Chuck," number 1 freshman player last year, when the team played University High. Also Lawrence Jenkins and Fowler Reed have excellent records.

Although a definite schedule has not been arranged and will not be published until February 1, it is a certainty that several first class teams in the north and south will be met. These will in all probability include University of Illinois, University of Indiana, Alabama, Emory, and Tulane.

Coch Downing, in order to get the teams in shape, is featuring exhibition matches between the members of the varsity and freshmen squads. These matches will be played off every Wednesday afternoon until bad weather forces the players inside.
