

CLEARING HOUSE

Writing, Please

Although I heard a loud howl go up after last issue's letter regarding fraternities and sororities, only one person answered. Again let us state that we want your complaints, answers, and criticisms in writing.

Reiterations
"Dear Editor: In reply to E. P. G.'s letter in the last Kernel concerning sororities and fraternities I wish to state that we want your complaints, answers, and criticisms in writing. I think you are paying as much as twenty dollars themselves. While you give nothing in return. As to the mentality of the average fraternity or sorority member maybe you had better check at the Dean's office before you say any more. I think you will be due for a surprise all down in black and not in the red. E. P. G. are you a member of a fraternity? Not quite so biased as before?"—S. R. *

It's Clear, Now?
In Friday's issue concerning the football ticket books. Because we thought that all the students who had tickets were tearing out a ticket from the book at the gate and then showing the book to the guards before climbing the ramp, we did not make the distinction clear. Russell Davis, who has approached us and wanted to know what we meant by transferring the books after getting in the gate. Said they. It is impossible because the tickets have been torn out. That was the idea at all. The outsiders that are receiving student aid already in the game and not in the student section until they can show a student book—with or without the tickets—into the student section.

Wants Less Editors?
"Dear Mr. Editor: With due respect to SuKy, campus press organization, I wish to submit for publication certain views I have heard expressed by members of the student body who are in charge of the cheer leaders that attempt to function as they have been in the past. These criticisms have been constructive in every case and I think it is time that SuKy is making the changes suggested."

The Wrong Way
"This Corrigan story is sweeping the whole country. Even the Wildcat has been getting the wrong way since Vanderlier turned around. I don't think it is fair to blame Blue. Corrigan finally got on the right track and so will you. W. B. We need more like you, S. B."

Open Meetings
"Dear Sir: I am a member of a fraternity. The results of the last election has caused many meetings to be held behind closed doors. Last night I visited the Independent and invited me into their meeting. I think the fraternities should be as free with their meetings as we are with ours."

Take Your Wasserman
Another letter regarding the radio station will have to be carried over to next issue because of its length. Be preparing for your Wasserman test next week and look over the materials, especially the material concerning working conditions—and so to press it all to clock.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question:
How do you go about judging a person?

The Answers:
Marion Stewart, Sophomore, Engineering: "Personal appearance and conduct are the two things on which I judge a person. My first impression is always little bearing on my final opinion."

Wilma Abrams, Junior, Agriculture: "I judge a person by his general appearance, his personality, his speech, pose, friendliness, tact, and his sense of humor."
Jane Peiter and Martha Riley, Seniors, Commerce: "Personal appearance is the primary thing in making a snap-judgment. However, upon a lengthy acquaintance this quality is secondary to such factors as intelligence, humor, sincerity, conversational ability, and general and specific interests."

Jerry Schultz, Senior, Arts and Sciences: "Judging a person is not judged. And believe me, there are things that happen, that one says and does that should forever make a fine check on one's tendency to judge. On the whole, though, in the other hand, as far as my own judgment, I take people for what they are and either make more of companionship with them or withdraw from them as their qualities become better known to me. And what are these qualities? They are kindness and a sense of duty—de-emphasized according to the mood of the moment."

HUN DAVIS DROPS HIGH POINT LEAD

Parker Hall Of Mississippi Cops Honors With Three Markers Saturday

Held on the sidelines at the Kentucky-Xavier game Saturday by injury, Dameron Davis, high scoring Wildcat halfback, dropped the Southeastern Conference individual point scoring lead to Parker Hall, Mississippi halfback, who scored 100 points last Saturday as his team smashed Centenary.

Parker's total of 48 includes seven touchdowns and one point after touchdown, while Davis' 32 points include five touchdowns and two extra points. Two other players are listed among the first twelve in the school derby, "Hoot" Combs and Dave Zoeller, with 24 and 19 points respectively. So far only one field goal has been recorded by conference team, that being booted by Guy Miller of LSU.

Anti-Syphilis Campaign To Get New Start Monday

Starting on next Monday, the anti-syphilis campaign will be renewed. Unfortunately, the program had to be postponed because of the lack of facilities to give the Wassermann tests and make analyses.

By special arrangement with the University Experiment Station, approximately 150 tests will be given the first day at the dispensary and an increasing number daily thereafter until the entire student body has been given an opportunity to avail itself of the free check-ups.

A concentrated drive is being made this week to enlist the support of campus organizations, because an organized group is so much easier to handle. But for those who would rather take their tests at another time, adequate plans will be proposed and a complete schedule be printed.

The Knox Hayes and believes that the student body will be interested in the campaign and will cooperate in stamping out the disease by a personal check-up, an intelligent realization of the dangers of syphilis, and systematic education in the ways and means of treatment.

For Democracy To Survive Rule Must Go

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler recently pointed out that democracy is defined as the rule of the people, but that for any real comprehension of the idea the people must be distinguished from the mob. Democracy is not the rule of the mob.

"A crowd rushing here and there, excited, hysterical, governed by the motive of curiosity, or of greed, or of cruelty, constitutes a mob. The same persons listening intelligently to an argument or appeal in the field of politics, religion, or of science are 'the people at their best'."

"Certainly democracy cannot be based upon mob psychology and mob rule. It calls for intelligence, knowledge, self-control, unselfish service, genuine patriotism and passionate love of freedom. The rule of the mob invariably is followed by the impositions of despotism."

"Mobs do not think, they feel. Those who lead them play upon their emotions and do not appeal to their reasoning powers. They are capable of excesses of every kind which the people could never be guilty. It is the mob, not the people, which is stirred up by the demagogue, which is led into all sorts of errors and blunders, and which conceives all sorts of fantastic notions."

Condensed and reprinted from the Lexington Leader of Saturday, October 22, the foregoing editorial admirably illustrates the dangers and the source of complaints of American democracy. Mob rule brings results which are responsible for the outrages of educated men who should know better to the effect that maybe we would be better off with a dictator.

Honoraries Can Help Improve Housing Conditions

Mention was made recently in "Clearing House" of the fact that Grade D cooking milk is being served to University students staying in certain local houses. Not mentioned, but known to be existent, are the unsanitary and poorly-ventilated rooms, attics and basements where a few individuals make their homes for nine months of the year.

Greedy-like, we students take everything that we can get, and selfish-like are prone to emphasize matters such as swimming pools and housing conditions rather than higher faculty salaries and departmental expansion when time comes to allot PWA grants.

But, regardless of whether we are on the right or wrong side of the fence, certain undesirable conditions do exist in a few of the student houses, and something can be done without turning to the federal government for aid.

On this campus is a committee termed the Board of Student Welfare which is authorized to act in the students' behalf. If these conditions could be brought to the attention of this group, action would be taken either to remedy the conditions or prevent our students from rooming in such places. Usually, the individual's low finances force him to engage this type of room, but it is necessary to obtain an education at the expense of health? And if we may have both merely by placing facts in the hands of an active committee, why don't we supply the necessary information?

Already the Men's Student Council and Omicron Delta Kappa are working on the problem. If they had the aid of a few conscientious members from other honorary organizations, the students would be benefited and the honoraries themselves would be furnishing a powerful reason for their existence on the campus.

Behind The Eckdahl

By Andrew C. Eckdahl

Misses Mary Lou McFarland and Barbara MacVey, two veddy KDelightful coeds, came bubbling up to us recently with information that they had an idea. Now we are always mildly surprised when anything feminine has an idea, but when two KD's have an idea—we are overwhelmed.

It seems that they want everyone on the campus to take an hour off each day and think about something. They failed to mention what we were supposed to think about.

We mulled over the idea and tried to think what we would think about if we tried to think about something for an hour.

Then we decided to think about something for an hour. It just won't work. We decided we would think about the vice-president under Coolidge, and we bet Misses MacVey and McFarland don't know who was vice-president under Coolidge—it was Charlie Dawes.

The minute we attempted to think about Coolidge's vice-president we got switched off onto the time Cal went to church. When he got back his wife tried to engage the always reticent Coolidge in conversation.

"Calvin," she said, "what did the preacher talk about?" "Sin," he replied. "What did he have to say about sin, Calvin?" "He's against it."

With difficulty we wrenched ourselves away from the subject of Coolidge jobs and back to the vice-president, who, as we have told you before, was Charlie Dawes.

Now Dawes was an Indian, a part Indian, or knew an Indian or something. (Or maybe that was Curtis, we don't know.) Anyway, whenever we think of Dawes we think of Indians, which immediately led us to the subject of Indian wars, John Smith, and turpentine. (We don't know how turpentine got in, but there it was.)

We fought our way back to vice-president and immediately angled off into trying to name the vice-presidents. Coolidge was vice-president under Harding, then came Dawes, Curtis was under Hoover, and Garner is under Roosevelt. (We had to go to the World Almanac on that last one.)

Then we happened to remember we were supposed to be thinking about Dawes. But we gave the whole thing up. The afternoon paper came and we wanted to read 151 Abner.

To The Kernel office recently came hefty sports expert Tom Watkins with information that Dixie Howell playing for Alabama in 1934 and not in 1935 as we reported in the column of Friday last. We bet the sports staff is still chuckling at our ignorance.

Our Thought for the Week comes from Miss Amelia Talbot who says, "What I can't understand is why a big, healthy man, with a sound mind would want to be a teacher."

From the H-E times we learn that students in a civics class at Henry Clay high school voted Adolph Hitler the most outstanding person in the world. There must be some mistake. Look children, Hitler is the man with the mustache who is not funny. You must be thinking of Charlie Chaplin who has a mustache and is funny.

CAMPUSCENE

By JOHN ED PEARCE

IT SEEMS that our boy Hitler is coming in for an awful lot of criticism these days. Not that it's news or anything but it does seem funny that so many people should be mad at Adolph. Just what they are mad about, nobody seems to know. Some of the people don't like his anti-Jewish policy very much, others think he was rather greedy in his feasts on Czechoslovakia, others don't like the idea of concentration camps, and others just naturally don't like dictators.

So Red The Face

While the democratic nations of the world were throwing up their hands in horror over the terrible war our Feurher was carrying on, Adolph got up one day and wrote some pretty good remarks about British hypocrisy, which caused indignation in Parliament. Some commentators say that the indignation was half embarrasment, and well it might have been, for the British have coasted to a world empire on just such tactics as the Herrid Hitler is using now.

But to look at it from our own slant, the American people think of Hitler as being a horned devil because of the way he treated Austria and Czechoslovakia. They don't like his aggressive policy. If history is to be believed, one of the worst things that have ever happened to the American people, when they took over the Southern chain gangs to put the Klu Klux Klans in, we wiped out the Indians.

The American people from upon the Southern chain gang, but that system is not half the black eye to Germany that the German blubbering idiot, Adolf Hitler, is doing to the U. S. Nor do we hear of the mob lynchings in Germany that continue to shake the forces of the land of the free.

Another point which causes some little wonder is the attitude that the forces of publicity and propaganda in the American world have of Hitler. It seems to be the idea of these men to paint Hitler as a madman, a blubbering idiot, fool. Why such a view should be taken is beyond comprehension. Surely it cannot be the desire of the democratic powers to have the people believe this.

Recent events have shown that Germany, under the rule of Hitler, has adopted more of the spirit in the history of that nation; that the German government has been elected to power on a platform of bluff that scared England, France, and their allies into a complete sequence; that Germany under Hitler has come from the point of being the scourge of the world, to one of the mightiest powers.

Now, if such progress, such power, can be brought about by an idiot, it does not speak very well for the ability of the democratic powers, does it? If a complete fool can exist at all the democracies in existence, then we can see the cause of the present situation. If a madman can bring about victories for his country that Hitler has, perhaps we should all forsake our forms of government and let Hitler run the world.

And as far as the Jewish question goes, let's begin at home. On the campus of our own University, there have been attempts have been made repeatedly for the last two years to organize a Jewish fraternity. This would seem easy enough, but the intervention of the inter-collegiate football staff, Stan Evans, whose letters are eagerly received and answered.

KID Heins Bannell and Tridell Mary Agnes Penny return from Homecoming at Centre bringing the story of the Centre former Centre student who engineered an announcement by the band leader to the effect that the girls would be permitted to stay out 45 minutes after the midnight hour, interesting to watch the deans of men and women routing the naughty little girls out of the forbidden "Park."

An interesting campus twosome is dark haired Be Monk and law student Joe Waller, serious intentions 'n' everything... but he studies too hard to court her except on Saturday nights.

Thus ends the ramblings of N. R. who, it must be admitted, turned out a crop of nail-biting tidbits. Thank you, R., consider yourself the recipient of a large bouquet.

There was a death of couples at the campus exhibition of Garth House Saturday night, which made it a stagnation where the girls were concerned. It was supposed to be a wallflower that night and a merry time was had by all as there was so much room for all to dance that you were practically alone with your own string-cin... so we heard.

Current Brush and Pencil Club Show Presents Works By Kentucky Artists

President Frank L. McVey Is Represented By Two Water Colors

By RUTH JEAN LEWIS Recent work by some of the best known Kentucky artists and members of the Brush and Pencil Club is now on exhibition in the Art Center with a majority of the paintings by former students of the University. The exhibit will continue through November 12.

Edward Fisk, member of the art department, gives the show a good send-off with his four canvases. The self portrait done in oil and tempera technique has the luminosity and total quality that can be achieved so successfully in good tempera base painting. The three landscapes done in oil, on paper, form a unique group in the show.

Frank Long, creator of the Browning Room murals, is represented by three paintings done in tempera. A pair of panels, with yellow flowers as the background, decorative in color and design, and the study of a cat, are quite typical of Mr. Long's style of painting.

Doris Bannells exhibits several canvases that are very good as usual. Incidentally, the "Green Dress" is a portrait of Dean Sarah Blending.

A scene in a bus station is remembered both artistically and humorously by Christine Swenson, a former student of the University. Visitors to the previous exhibition will remember two outstanding and popular landscapes by Theresa Newland. This fall she is represented with two more landscape studies done during a summer spent in the West. These have the high quality of her earlier work.

President McVey is represented by two pleasing water colors and Prof. Edward Rannells, head of the art department, exhibits a sensitive drawing of a girl's head. Devotees of Keeneland will be interested in Gladys Maddams' "View From a Club House Window," with a vase of iris in the foreground.

Alumni News

ROBERT K. SALTERS, Secretary

Homecoming
Homecoming for Kentucky Alumni will be this coming Saturday, October 29, when the Wildcats battle Alabama on Stoll field at 2 p. m.

The homecoming game will be the first game that many alumni will have a chance to see since Al Kirwan took over the generalship of the Wildcats. The Wildcats defeated Maryville and Oglethorpe by large scores. Just a hard fought game to Vanderbilt, were defeated by Washington and Lee, and were beaten by St. Xavier.

Pep and enthusiasm will be the highest on Homecoming day. Sorority and fraternity houses, as usual on Homecoming, will be uniquely decorated.

Immediately following the game, President and Mrs. McVey will entertain with their annual homecoming tea. The tea will be informal and all alumni and friends of the University are invited to attend.

The alumni dance will be the highest on Homecoming day. Sorority and fraternity houses, as usual on Homecoming, will be uniquely decorated.

Two Thousand Spectators Witness Battle On Stoll Field

Employing a powerful offensive formation to particular advantage, a heavy Volunteer freshman eleven battered a fighting University of Kentucky kitten aggregation into submission 13-7, Friday afternoon on Stoll field, before 2,000 spectators.

Butler crashed over guard for the tally on the final play of the quarter. His attempt at conversion via placement failed.

Although the Kitten defense was impregnable during the third quarter, the final quarter found the Baby Blues weakening.

Two excellent performances were turned in by J. B. Faulconer as Ruth and Shubbs and Christine MacBryer as Charlotte Marley. Mr. Faulconer, as the 50-year-old millionaire, gets across some very humorous lines, plus showing superior voice control.

Others of the cast were Leslie Bell as Clyde Rochester; Evelyn Gable as Lenora Stubbs; Helen Friedman as Leeds, a maid; and Adelle Ball as Leonine, a nurse.
