John Brown's Body

On the night of October 16th, 1859, John Brown, self-styled "Commander-in-Chief of the People of the U.S.," led twenty-one armed men in a raid on the arsenal at Harper's Ferry, Virginia. His purpose (backed financially by Gerrit Smith and such potent New Englanders as Frank B. Sanborn, G. L. Stearns, T. W. Higginson, Theodore Parker and S. G. Howe): to establish and fortify a stronghold in the mountains where fugitive slaves might take refuge. The raid was successful, but on the 18th Col. Robert E. Lee, with a company of marines, overpowered him, wounding Brown, killing two of his sons. On October 31st, he was convicted of high treason and murder, and on December 2nd (despite seventeen affidavits swearing to his insanity) was prepared for execution at Charlestown.

As TIME would have reported it, had TIME been published in December, 1859:

.... To the jail porch at last came John ("Old Osawatomie") Brown, scuffling in carpet slippers and an ill-fitting black suit. Suddenly silent, 1500 soldiers stared, wondered how this patriarchal, white-bearded old man could have been guilty of the cold-blooded massacres in Kansas, of the bloody raid at Harper's Ferry. Those nearest him, guards and officers, saw the bright, fanatic, almost insane light in his eyes as he stood there, and wondered less. With no word, he handed out a written statement, curiously punctuated: "I John Brown am now quite certain that the crimes of this guilty land: will never be purged away; but with Blood. I had as I now think:

Cultivated Americans, impatient with cheap sensationalism and windy bias, turn increasingly to publications edited in the historical spirit. These publications, fair-dealing, vigorously impartial, devote themselves to the public weal in the sense that they report what they see, serve no masters, fear no groups.

vainly flattered myself that without very much bloodshed: it might be done."

Before the porch steps stood an open wagon, on it the fine oak coffin he had chosen for himself. Now, completely surrounded by guards, he descended the steps, climbed onto the wagon. In front three companies of infantry drew into line. On either side a file of riflemen formed. The rest of the soldiery deployed, filled in gaps, lest rumored attempts at rescue become fact.

Thus escorted, John Brown, sitting on his coffin, his arms pinioned, rode through the streets, out to the open fields where stood the gallows. Said John Brown, farmer: "This is a beautiful country".... Then, climbing the grim platform, he asked: "Why are none but military allowed in the inclosure? I am sorry citizens have been kept out"....

Before they put the cap on his head and the rope around his neck under the long beard, John Brown shook hands with Jailer Avis and Sheriff Campbell. Then said John Brown, martyr: "I am worth inconceivably more to hang than for any other purpose."

There was a wait of ten minutes while the soldiery marched, counter-marched to their prearranged formation. Finally at 11:15, the Sheriff's axe fell on the rope, releasing the trap, and John Brown dangled, grasping and twitching. Then all was quiet. For 35 minutes he hung there until the doctor was satisfied that the pulse had stopped beating, the silence broken only by Colonel Preston's calm, solemn declaration: "So perish all such enemies of the Nation, all such enemies of Virginia, all such foes of the human race."

There were no exultations, no tears as the body was cut down, placed in the coffin and conveyed under military escort to the railroad station. Meanwhile in far-off Albany, one hundred guns boomed a martyr's dirge, and in Utica, Gerrit Smith, chief backer of John Brown's raid, lay helpless in a lunatic asylum....

Homecoming-Day Welcome to the University

By President McVey

Welcome to Home-Coming Day!

Coming home is something that finds a place in all our minds and hearts sooner or later. We want to go back to the old homestead, to the town from which we came and to resume our relationship with our families and old friends. The same spirit is to be found among the alumni of a university—to look forward to the annual home-coming day. This year a great football game has been scheduled on Stoll field and we want all the Alumni to be there to take part in the great event of the day.

Besides this, I am inviting you to become acquainted with the new university. To many of you it has grown out of all bounds and all of you, old and young, will be glad to see what is happening. There is the extension of the campus on the other side of Limestone with beautiful buildings occupied by the College of Education. There is the lovely Memorial Hall, dedicated to the men and women who lost their lives in the Great War. There is the new library in process of construction and the new buildings on the Experimental Station Farm. There is the great student body of more than 3,000 and the large teaching staff that extend to you cordial and fraternal welcome to the university.

FRANK L. McVEY, President.

Homecoming Day

By Marguerite McLaughlin

Weather forecast: Fair and frosty.

Informal reunions in hotels and hangouts. Luncheon.

Parade of University Band and program in downtown section.

Football game on Stoll field, Alabama-Kentucky, 2:30 p. m.

Alumni Tea with President McVey and Mrs. McVey after game.

Informal dinner parties.

Home-coming dance in men's gymnasium from 9 to 12 p. m.

Home-coming for alumni of the University of Kentucky has, in the last five years, come to mean much more to both the guests and the university than it ever did before. This is due to several causes among which may be named: larger graduating classes leaving the campus annually, and, finally, a football team that rivals the best on any terms.

The football game between Alabama and Kentucky on Stoll field, starting at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, November 1, will be sufficient justification for all the enthusiasm and old time spirit that can be aroused and why not? Alabama's athletes will show as much class in football and manhood as any visiting group ever presented on the local gridiron and to whom will they have the pleasure of showing off? The answer is easy. You know it.

Some of the old guard here in the adopted home of many young Kentuckians feel that they have a very good reason to be proud of the aggregation that wears the beautiful blue and white of our own university and goes forth to meet all comers on that up-and-up basis that defies any effort at contention unless it is that of the highest type.

Stoll field is the prettiest in the South. Nature did that for us and we have a stadium which has to have an addition of 8,000 seats to accommodate the attending throngs this coming November 1. That stadium is not hard on the eyes. A handsome (and expensive) new fence has been put around the entire field and the old unattractive board fence has been removed. You think you are going into the Yankee stadium now when you start meandering through those tons of concrete pillars. The student body which will be on hand will number more than 3,000 and one third of those will don the blue caps of the freshmen. The Best Band in Dixie will be there strutting the stuff southern scribes have called "aristocratic" and making music that stirs the soul to unknown heights. The present day members of Su-Ky will be on hand to sell popcorn and peanuts and remind you of the good old days when you earned the right to wear the little blue band on your coat sleeve. The co-eds will do the selling and believe it or not, they are prettier than ever. A loud speaker has been installed and no matter whether you have forgotten your football rules or never learned the new regulations, some one up in the tower will tell you all about it and you will not have to follow downs on the scoreboard and miss the play.

Oh yes! At this home-coming party on Stoll field, Saturday afternoon, November 1, there will be about fifty Wildcats and eleven of them will work at a shift until there are no more—Alabamans. That's the football team of 1930 and we want you alumni to know it is some team. Captain Forquer and company, if you please. Every one knows 'Floppy' and there are about 49 other excellent reasons for the unusual interest in the contest. We dislike to start mentioning the interesting bits of gossip we have on many of the team because each deserves special attention, and whether they come from Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, or Colorado, they are doing the best they can and it's a mighty good best in the judgment of one who has watched every Wildcat squad develop since 1898. Win or lose, the team that makes the home-coming day program of 1930 is the greatest team that ever represented the University of Kentucky at any time and they are contenders for the honor of the Southern Conference Championship. As such they have been officially recognized in every state in the South and as such they will live until the last whistle blows in Knoxville on Thanksgiving Day and while the writer is not promising you anything in particular, the one and only motion that remains fixed and undisturbed is that it's going to be a powerful day for Thanksgiving. However, we must meet the gorgeous crimson tide before we get any further, and the best backing that can be given the team now is to show the world that the alumni from the beginners to the twenty-niners are on Stoll field pulling for victory from start to finish.

Believe it or not we have a Mr. President and a Mrs. President on this campus and they have invited the alumni, faculty, teams, and other visitors to "drink her down" with a cup of tea after the game. This exquisite courtesy on the part of President McVey and Mrs. McVey has come to be a charming part of every home-coming day program and this opportunity to spend the twilight hours of an exciting day in such delightful hospitality will indeed be appreciated.

The closing feature of home-coming day will be the dance which is sponsored by the Lexington Alumni Club and where you will have another chance to congratulate the Wildcats and enjoy a good dance.

PROF. GREHAN REAPPOINTED TO ATHLETIC COUNCIL

Prof. Enoch Grehan, head of the department of journalism, has been notified by President McVey of his reappointment to the Athletic Council for a term of three years. Professor Grehan has completed, this semester, nine years as a member of the council.

Boles, faculty representatives; Louis Hillenmeyer and Judge John Stoll, alumni representatives; Len Miller and Gayle Mohney, student representatives, and L. L. Haggin, resident Fayette county.

AN EX-PRESIDENT'S ECHO

By DR. G. DAVIS BUCKNER

The moment a president becomes an ex-president, he becomes a pest. Fortunately, there are presidents who never say anything while they are presiding and consequently seldom say anything as ex-presidents, as least nothing of consequence. At other times there are presidents who fail to realize how little they have accomplished as a president and instead of quietly retiring into sweet oblivion they continue to talk and make idle suggestions and thereby annoy the new president.

It is not the intention of the writer to annoy President Frankel by any of his utterances or in any way to interfere with his administration which is destined to govern the most successful year in the existence of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky. But being of a communicative nature the writer cannot resist from calling attention to certain things connected with the University which deserve applause.

The Alumni Association might well have as its guiding motto the word "Sportsmanship" which should be interpreted as meaning justice and fairness in every phase of University activity. It should seek or demand for the University the things the University needs and see that the University obtains them. From time to time the writer intends to discuss this subject more fully.

The subject for brief discussion today will be the impressions made on the minds of many of the Alumni who returned to witness the Sewanee-Kentucky football game a few weeks ago.

Sportsmanship is not only exhibited on the field of scrimmage but also in the bleachers. It may be that the large and brawny are fond of the very popular Mr. Lane who acted as umpire had an influence that would inspire the players to be sportsmen, especially in accepting his decisions and in their contact and attitude towards their opponents. This influencing "mighty-right" does not reach into the bleachers and there one finds sportsmanship unhampered and freely expressed.

At the Sewanee-Kentucky game, the students, alumni, friends and patrons of the University of Kentucky as freely applauded the excellent plays and injured players of Sewanee as if they were wearing the Blue of Kentucky. It was also noticed that the decisions of the officials of the game were accepted without comment.

BAND MEMBERS PLAY AT FAIR

President McVey, Dean Cooper, seven members from the faculty of the College of Agriculture, and a group of selected musicians, under the direction of Prof. Elmer G. Sulzer, attended the annual Robinson Harvest Festival, held at the Experiment Sub-station, located at Quicksand, three miles east of Jackson, Kentucky.

Reports from the sub-station indicate that the exhibits were unusually good this year in spite of the drouth, as many excellent crops were produced in the valleys of eastern Kentucky. A special fruit exhibit was sponsored by the State Horticultural Society. The program also included a complete 4-H Club show, with premiums for cooking, canning, corn, cattle, and clothing. Many of the exhibits were judged by instructors from the College of Agriculture. These faculty members were: Deans Cooper and Horlacher, instructors Lewis, Logan, Sellards, Weldon, Magill, and Monroe.

The event at Quicksand was in the nature of a festival as well as an agricultural fair. The exhibits included antiques, relics, ancient books, home-made furniture, baskets, tool handles, rugs, coverlets, and also displays of handwork, wood work, and weaving from the mountain schools. Public addresses, instrumental and vocal music, and contests in hog calling, cow calling, competition between saddle mules, and between mule teams were all included in the festival program.

The gift of 15,000 acres of land by E. O. Robinson, Fort Thomas, Ky., and F. W. Mowbray, Cincinnati, Ohio, to the University of Kentucky has made possible the experiment sub-station and also the annual fair and harvest festival.

IT IS worthy of especial note that at all times of our lives certain duties are stressed. For instance, when we are in college the importance and fineness of school spirit is talked about, preached about, discussed from every point of view. We are made to feel that there is something radically wrong with us if we do not maintain the proper loyalty toward our school and for our team and we would have been very much chagrined to be suspected for a moment of not loving our school and her team.

But it seems when we leave school, we are prone to forget these things. "Alma Mater Spirit" is just as important to show as school spirit. What would happen to our great school if everyone forgot it as soon as he or she was graduated? Suppose alumni never came back to see a game, to visit instructors, to look up old friends made while they were in school? The university might progress but it could not do so well as if it were being supported by a loyal group of alumni who love the school and want to do worthwhile things for it.

Many times it is impossible for graduates and former students to get back to their Alma Mater unless they make their plans months in advance. This is the reason that we have "Homecoming Day." We feel that we have given our alumnus ample notice so that he can make his plans to be present on this big day of all days with collegians.

This year, "Homecoming Day" is on Saturday, November 1, the day that Kentucky plays Alabama. This is the second time that Kentucky has played Alabama on Kentucky soil. Our Alma Mater has a team that she may well be proud of but it is a team which needs the support of everyone, both students and alumni, in order to come through victorious.

Alumni are urged to show their real "Alma Mater Spirit" by coming back to the university for the homecoming game. Be here to support your school and your team as you did when you were a student. Cheer with the students, join in all of the homecoming activities, show your loyalty to your school in a few of the many ways in which it can be shown. It is your support that we need. Won't you be here with the rest of the crowd?

JUST as Kentucky is a state that we may well be proud of, so is the University of Kentucky a school that we may well be proud of. Kentucky has long been noted for her Blue Grass, her fast horses and her beautiful women. Now, through the State University it is fast becoming noted for something else, namely her athletic teams.

Last fall, the University of Kentucky Wildcat Football Team was a source of conversation and interest for football fans and sports writers all through the South. The same was true of the 1929-30 basketball team. Kentucky led in sports, her teams usually winning their games and always playing in the cleanest, fairest way.

This year, Gamage has a bigger and better football eleven than ever before. University supporters have great hopes of Southern Conference fame. Out of the eight games we play, seven of them are with Southern Conference teams. This should prove that the Coach has faith in his team.

A team that has worked as hard as the Wildcats, that plays the cleanest brand of football, and that fights to the very last for its school, deserves the support of every student and alumnus of the University. Let us all be there to do our bit for our Alma Mater.

TWO NEW BUILDINGS TO BE CONSTRUCTED

The construction of two new buildings will soon be started on the University of Kentucky campus. Work on these structures will begin after November 1st, and the approximate cost will be $80,000.

The "Farm Engineering Building" will be constructed in the Agricultural Quadrangle in rear of the stock pavilion on the east of Rose street. The structure has been planned by Frankel and Curtis, Lexington architects, and has been planned to meet the requirements of the Farm Engineering Department of the Agricultural College and the Experiment Station, under the direction of J. B. Kelly.

The building will be in the shape of a U, consisting of a middle wing two stories in height, and two side wings of one story. The combined dimensions of this building will be 172 feet across the front and 136 feet deep.

The two-story middle wing will have a basement in which there will be room for a hydraulic laboratory, lumber storage and general storage. The first floor will consist of a classroom, experiment room, sanitation and electrical laboratory, students' locker room, tool room, and wash room. The second floor will have a large drawing room, five offices, a blue-print room, womens' rest room, and the usual number of closets and janitor's space.

In one of the side wings will be housed the farm motors laboratory, a large tractor laboratory, and two crop-drying rooms. The other wing will contain a large farm shop laboratory, a storage room, and a farm machinery laboratory.

The style of architecture is much the same as that in vogue on the campus at present. The brick used will be similar to that in McVey Hall, the Library, and the Teachers' Training building. The building will be so situated as to form the key building of the agricultural quadrangle.

This addition to the agricultural grounds has long been needed. It replaces the old small sheet-iron building that was very inadequate. The cost of the building will not exceed $65,000, this sum being made available by state legislative appropriation.

The second building will be an observatory building, one and one-half stories, which will cost approximately $15,000, exclusive of the dome.

In the basement will be two large work rooms, and storage rooms. The first floor will consist of two large class rooms, storage rooms, and rest rooms. The roof is so designed that it will offer auxiliary out-door class-room space.

The telescope will be placed on a concrete pier in the dome of the building. It will operate by means of a synchronized motor drive, the latest of modern devices. Behind the dome room will be built a small room through the center of which will be a slot that practically divides the building into halves. In the center of the slot a mounted transit will be placed.

The feature of the building lies in its construction. It is entirely different from anything on the campus. It will be solid white, the walls, floors, and foundation being of monolithic construction. The inside walls will be insulated with a standard brand of insulating material.

The original plans were drawn up by Towner and Sellew, Middletown Connecticut architects, who specialize in the designing and construction of astronomical laboratories. The plans were revised and changed to meet local conditions. The present design was worked out by Hugh Meriwether, graduate of the University of Kentucky in class of '24, under the direction of the Department of Buildings and Grounds.

Alabama-Wildcat Football Game November 1

By NIEL PLUMMER

Alabama's Crimson Tide playing Kentucky's Wildcats, all the folks back to Lexington for homecoming, the enthusiasm which always accompanies a Kentucky-Alabama game, and combine these with the possibility that the Big Blue may upset Coach Wallace Wade's charges, then you see why November 1 is the day of days for Kentuckians.

For weeks reservations have been pouring into the office of the manager of ticket sales at the university, and although thousands of extra seats have been provided, it looks like the Wildcats and Alabama will play a "standing-room-only" crowd on Stoll field on this first day of November, 1930. There are plenty of tickets yet to be had, but the choice seats are going rapidly.

It will be a new type of team which Kentuckians will see performing for them against Alabama. For years the cry was "hold them State" but gradually the defense attitude has changed until it's the other fellow's time to yell, "hold those Wildcats." In their earliest games, the Big Blue have shown a dazzling offense, with Shipwreck Kelly, Cecil Urbaniak, Carey Spicer, Jack Phipps, Dick Richards, Bo Meyer, Ellis Johnson and a list of other ball carriers showing brilliantly. The last two were kept out of early season games by injuries, but they have been showing rapid improvement.

Kentucky's line, while not so powerful as some of the great defensive teams, is still a joy to followers of the Big Blue. It averages more than 190 pounds from end to end. Captain "Floppy" Forquer and his buddy, Connie Rose, of Evansville, Ind., have been seeing a lot of service at guards, with Babe Wright, Windy Aldridge, Robert Kipping, and Robert Baughman performing at tackles. Of course Howard Williams, 211-pound outstanding candidate for all-Southern honors, is performing at center. "Dusty" loves the game and his playing is right up to the performance he showed in the all-star game at Atlanta last New Years. The ends probably will be taken care of by Ken Andrews, Bud Cavana, George Yates or Jake Bronston, although they may be ousted by some other ambitious young men who want to play for the Wildcats.

A great deal has been said about the Wildcats this year. They have attracted more pre-season comment this year than at any other time in the history of the university. This has been most gratifying to all followers of the Big Blue but most of them have guarded themselves against letting their enthusiasm exceed the bounds of reason.

Coach Gamage has given the sensible view of the football situation. He admits that Kentucky has a stronger team than in former years, but so have many other teams, he warns. Give all teams their just dues. But whatever is the result of a game with Kentucky . . . if Kentucky loses . . . the winners will know they have been in a real football game.

KENTUCKY BEATS SEWANEE 37-0

The University of Kentucky Wildcats made their 1930 debut in Southern Conference circles Saturday night, October fourth, when they defeated the Sewanee Tigers by a 37-0 count in the first game of the season for the "Big Blue".

"Shipwreck" Kelly, the boy of the winged heels, although carrying the ball but a few times, displayed even greater power as a ball carrier than during his sophomore year, having developed with his running ability, a propensity for forward passing. Kelly had to his credit Saturday night, runs of 25, 15, 46, 11, five and six yards on running plays, besides returning a punt 40 yards.

Sharing honors with Kelly in the Sewanee melee was Cecil Urbaniak, Fairmount, W. Va., boy who started the game in Ellis Johnson's place, Johnson being out temporarily on account of an injured shoulder. "Urbe" was the only player to play through the entire game, and jumped into prominence when he first skirted left end on a double reverse play 12 yards, for Kentucky's first touchdown. Before the evening had ended he intercepted a Sewanee pass and galloped 50 yards for another touchdown, having reeled off 12, 16, 14, 42 and 6 yard runs earlier in the game.

YATES, VERSATILE KENTUCKY STAR, RUNNING AT HALFBACK

George Yates, Kentucky's elongated end from Elizabethtown, who snags passes with such deadly precision, has been transferred from end to wingback position for the time being, and according to sports writers and teammates, he is going great guns at the backfield job.

George is one of the best blockers on the squad, and is second only in speed to "Shipwreck" Kelly, the Springfield sprinter. His size, 191 pounds, combined with his more than six feet of height and his decided blocking and passing ability, should make Yates one of the big threats of the Kentucky team.

Kentucky flashed a beautiful offense in the first half, which weakened considerably toward the end of the game, a fact which is evidenced by the fact that first downs dropped from eight in the first quarter, to three in the second, four in the third and three in the fourth. The forward passing attack of the "Big Blue" was brief but poisonous, three out of three passes being completed, one over the goal and the other two resulting directly in touchdowns.

Although the score was decisive, the game was not perfect in every department, and Kentucky's defense was a long way from the Blue stone wall perfection of last Thanksgiving Day. The tackle problem about which sports writers have been talking all season, is still a problem to Coach Gamage, as that one weakness in the line was most evident during the Sewanee encounter.

KENTUCKY DEFEATS MARYVILLE 57-0

The heat of a late summer afternoon slowed down the offensive drive of the University of Kentucky Wildcats during the first half of their encounter with the Maryville (Tenn.) Highlanders Saturday afternoon, October 11, but was not sufficient handicap to prevent the "Big Blue" rolling up a 57-0 score before the close of a game which was featured by numerous sensational runs, leading to four touchdowns, reeled off by the irrepressible, invaluable Shipwreck Kelly.

The first half of the game was replete with Kentucky fumbles, penalties and misplays, but in spite of that, the Kentucky team again demonstrated a marvelous scoring power, and a much improved defense. As was the case in the opening game, Cecil Urbaniak, young West Virginia lad, shared the glory of the game with Kelly, "Urbe" getting off several long runs, two of which resulted in touchdowns. Jack Phipps broke through the line time after time for impressive gains, while both Dick Richards and Tom Phipps, substituting for Jack at the fullback berth, thrilled Kentucky followers with repeated plunges for long yardage.

Although Kentucky was held to but one touchdown in the first quarter, the Cats turned on in the second period, tallying four more touchdowns before the half. The failure of the Wildcats to make point after touchdown was the one sore spot in the game to spectators, only three out of nine tries being good for extra point.

Kelly was the big ground gainer for the Wildcats and reeled off six long runs, for 69 yards, 54 yards, 17 yards, 46 yards, 19 yards and 24 yards. In the last quarter, Gamage used practically every man on the bench, with second and third string men holding Maryville scoreless and adding another touchdown to the total.

KENTUCKY DEFEATS W. & L. BY A SCORE OF 33 TO 14

By Gerald Griffin

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 18.—Led by that dashing, twisting load of human T. N. T., the incomparable Kelly, Kentucky's never-say-die Wildcats this afternoon had the Washington and Lee Generals groggy at the end of the half, blew up in the third quarter and then, in true thoroughbred fashion, staged a great comeback to grind their worthy foemen in the sod.

The final score was Kentucky, 33; Washington and Lee, 14; but before all those scores were marked up there were more different kinds of football displayed in this stadium than there are attractions in a three-ring circus. Half of the spectators left the stadium nervous wrecks and everyone left shouting the praises of both teams in spite of mediocre football displayed at times.

"Shipwreck" Kelly again demonstrated that he is of all-American caliber, carrying the ball for great gains, blocking as beautifully as any coach could hope to see and topping off his stellar performance with a spectacular interception of a pass which he returned to scoring territory. The fans, in appreciation of Kelly's gallant efforts, came near tearing down the stadium when he was taken out in the last quarter.

Kentucky opened up like a sure winner and scored one touchdown each in the first two periods, but went to pieces in the third period to allow the doughty Generals a pair of touchdowns in the third frame. With the score 14-all at the beginning of the final frame, the Wildcats came back to life with an attack that left the doughty Generals helpless and brought three more touchdowns for Kentucky.

Another touchdown was almost a certainty for Kentucky just as the half ended for the Wildcats had the ball on the General's 2-yard line with three more downs in which to push it over, but the gun barked too soon for Kentucky and another touchdown died abornin.

Packed With Thrills

It was a game packed to the neck with thrills and mixed with superb and terrible football on both sides, but it was the kind of a game that gridiron fans hope to see once before they die. It looked like everybody's game until the last few minutes of play when the superiority of the Wildcats became as evident as a light-house in a fog.

That great run of fifty-nine yards by "Shipwreck" Kelly for Kentucky's first touchdown will be sung by the Wildcat troubadours of many years from now when the Saga of that hero is sung, and young men who saw the game today when they are rheumatic graybeards will stop the passersby and tell of what they saw today.

The game was typical of Kentucky and Washington and Lee—hardfought and a thriller—like it always is, but this was one time that Kentucky entered the game favored to win and they came through. The Generals battled bravely, and Kentuckians long will remember "Monk" Mattox, General half-back, who, when taken off the field because of injuries, battled his way back on the field only to be dragged to the bench again.

GUIGNOL PLAYS

The Guignol Treatre is opening the year on October 27th, presenting "Royal Family," written by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. The principal roles are being taken by Miss Katherine Davis, Marion Galloway, Andrew Hoover, C. Kraatz, and Murray Benton. Other players are, Carolyn Speyer James Boucher, Frances Moher, Leonora Howe, Morton Webb, Joe Ferguson, and Delroy Root.

First night will be formal, and reception will be given by the players on the stage after the performance. A new feature and attraction is the addition of an orchestra pit in the theatre. Music will be furnished before and after the performances and between acts.

Other productions of the year will be "Camille," by Alexander Dumas fils, translated by Marion Galloway, to be given December 1st; "Les Femmes Savant" (The Learned Ladies), by Moliere, on February 1st; Shakespeare's "Macbeth" will be presented as the Easter production. The season will be closed with "Holiday," or "Serena Blandish," two New York successes this season, about May 1st. Season tickets may be bought at the University Y. W. C. A.

NEW YORK ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Dear Fellow Alumnus:

The New York Alumni Chapter of the University of Kentucky has at last been established on a good working basis. Eight directors were appointed at a dinner-dance last spring and they in turn chose the present president and secretary.

We have decided to put the club on a normal financial basis by charging yearly dues. These are $5.00 for all those who have been out of school for over a year, and $2.00 for those who have finished within the year. This money is to be used in defraying the expenses of the Club and help in subsidizing the various social functions that are given during the year.

A number of the Alumni have been appointed on a Committee for obtaining members, and the names of all those eligible, distributed amongst this Committee. When the member of the Committee calls on you, I hope that you will respond at once and join the Club, so that we can make it a really worthwhile Club for our own enjoyment and for the betterment of the university.

We are at present compiling a booklet which will give an alphabetical and geographical list of all the Kentucky Alumni living in the vicinity of New York City. You will be sent a copy of this booklet as soon as it is printed.

Our next social event is a dinner-dance to be given Friday, November 7th, at the Ambassador Hotel, New York City. I hope that you will make this reservation on your social calendar, and will arrange to meet again your old friends from Kentucky.

The following day, Saturday, November 8th, the University of Illinois plays the Army in football at New York City, and we have obtained a limited supply of seats for this game, which we will make available to those who attend the dinner-dance. If you expect to attend our party and wish to go to the football game, drop me a line and let me know how many seats you want.

Those first applying will be served.

The seats are $4.00 and will be delivered to you at the dinner-dance. These seats are all in a block and will give us another splendid opportunity to get together.

Very truly yours,

W. G. HILLEN,

Secretary.

P. S. Don't forget, Friday, November 7th, Ambassador Hotel.

VESPER SERVICES

Vesper services at the University of Kentucky are a comparatively new activity in the life of the campus. The idea was originally that of President Frank L. McVey, who appointed a music committee under Dean W. E. Freeman to have charge of the arrangements. Dean Freeman appointed a vesper committee, headed by Professor R. D. McIntyre, of the College of Commerce, to make out a series of interesting programs for each year.

The following programs, arranged by Professor McIntyre, will be presented during the next month:

On Sunday, October 26, Dean Gordon Laing, dean of the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Chicago, will deliver an address. Miss Frances Arnold South, soprano, and Mr. A. W. Kelly, organist, will furnish a musical program.

On November 2, a joint recital will be given by Miss Edith Rose, organist, of Hamilton College, and Mrs. Eugene Bradley, pianist, of Georgetown.

Sunday, November 9, will bring the well-known baritone, Alexander Kisselburgh of New York City. Mr. Kisselburgh will bring his own accompanist.

The recital for November 16 consists of a program of German music. This will be presented by the members of Phi Beta, honorary music sorority of the university.

These programs give the people of Lexington and surrounding vicinities a variety in music and speeches. The recitals are sponsored by the University of Kentucky, and are held at 4 o'clock each Sunday afternoon at Memorial hall.

THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE

It is no mere lexicographer's whim that has made men designate their university as ALMA MATER. The university through which we pass the ripest years of our life, is in every sense, a dear mother. It educates us, it cherishes us and, finally, with our will, it takes us unto itself and makes us part of the great student family. Lacking the intimate, personal touch of a mother, it yet gives us of the fullness of its spirit and endears itself to all who have a true sense of obligation and gratitude. He who passes through the University and then severs all connection with it or merely allows it to lose all attachments for him is like the young son who forsakes his poor mother for the glare and glitter of the world. He thinks his formative years are over and that he can gain no more from his parent who has toiled and labored with him and given the best years of her life to make of him a man.

He forgets that his obligation cannot even be paid in contributing to her support. He must always recognize her as his mother and never exchange his love for her for any worldly attraction.

So it is with the University Alumnus. He is all too likely to forget the debt of gratitude to his Alma Mater and he is but repeating the indifference of an ungrateful son. He ought to be moved not merely by a sense of obligation to the university, but he ought himself to feel an everlasting devotion to its progress.

Now, the University of Kentucky, our own Alma Mater, has made tremendous strides in the last twenty years. From graduating a class of 100 in 1910, to a class of 537 the past year, with scores of improvements, new buildings and noteworthy athletic improvements, our Alma Mater is rapidly gaining recognition over a far wider field of acquaintances. It rests, therefore, with the alumni to further these moves already started. It is up to the alumni to encourage this progress and bring our university to the front rank of American universities. We ask only that those alumni who are still unaffiliated with our alumni association should attach themselves to it at once. In this way they would only be paying a well deserved debt to their university, and like true alumni, would be showing their attachment as well nurtured sons, to their alma mater.

A letter from graduates, signifying their willingness to join our ranks, would, therefore, be a true indication of their interest in their university and would be greatly appreciated by the officers of the Alumni Association as a sign of encouragement in the work they are doing.

L. K. FRANKEL, President.

FRESHMEN ENTERTAINED BY LEXINGTON ROTARIANS

The Lexington Rotary Club entertained as its guests for luncheon at the last meeting, sixty-five members of the freshman classes of the University of Kentucky and Transylvania University. The meeting was held at the Phoenix Hotel.

Each fall, the Lexington Rotarians entertain representative members of the freshman classes of Lexington's two universities. This has been a custom for years. In the spring, members of the senior classes of the two colleges are entertained.

Mr. Frank Jones, a charter member of the club, extended a welcome to the freshmen on behalf of the Rotarians. Mr. Jones' talk was very interesting and entertaining, pleasing the freshmen, as he did not give them advice or a list of do's or don'ts.

The program consisted of short addresses by representatives of the two classes and a vocal solo by Richard Allison, Transylvania student. The University of Kentucky freshmen were represented by William E. Fanning, and Transylvania was represented by Davis McGarvey.

AMERICAN RADIATOR HEAT FOR APPROXIMATELY $75 PER ROOM—WHY HAVE ANYTHING ELSE?

ARE you going through another winter with inadequate heating? . . . It is really an extravagance to do so, aside from the discomfort, when you can have an American Radiator heating plant installed for approximately $75 a room. And now is the time to install it.

Radiator heat is so natural that it is used in conservatories to protect flowers—and it is equally vital to the health of the family. It is the only kind of heating that assures you clean, even warmth in every room, all winter long, regardless of the weather.

And see that your heating plant is "All-American" . . . part American and part something else means parting from efficiency. "All-American"—Boiler, Radiators, and Accessories—means perfect team work. Then get ready to see a transformation downstairs when the "Ideal" Boiler in its red enamel jacket gets busy. It sheds the glamor of a room into the gloom of the cellar.

CONVENIENT PAYMENTS IF YOU DESIRE

And don't worry about the cost. You can take out the old heater and put in American Radiator heating paying for it while you enjoy it. Defer the payments—not the benefits. Modernize your home now with a heating system that will promote the wealth of your property and the health of your family.

Write for details and call in a good local heating dealer.
